THE SPRING FASHIONS. It is now reasonably certain that we have fairly entered upon a season of real spring weather.

It is an interesting feature of this law that the Attorney-General of the United States cannot take this juror's oath; nor can many judges who will have to administer the law in the South.

The Sherman amendment was materially modified; but we have not seen the text of the bill.

GRANT AND LOUIS NAPOLEON. A Washington letter says that "the President, though favoring the Prussians during the late war, expresses great sympathy and solicitude now for the French people, and fears that Napoleon may be again made Emperor."

Yes, the SPRING OPENING has occurred many days ago, and, since Easter how have our ears been mystified by female gossip about the untold treasures of apparel, which have appealed so lovingly to tender and appreciative eyes.

The New York Sun is considerably discouraged about Democratic prospects, and goes on in this way after reading a paragraph in the Mobile Register: "The Democratic party, as it has been constituted and managed for the last eight or ten years, and as it seems to be constituted and managed now, is a subject of curious interest to the impartial mind."

Mrs. Myra Clark Gaines is at last beginning to reap the reward of her efforts to obtain possession of her New Orleans property. From the papers of that city we see that the U. S. Marshal has just put her in possession of several tracts of land within the city limits.

An interviewing reporter remarks that Olive Logn says she is thirty-two years old. We think we remember a statement that her first lecture was published somewhere about 1830.

An Iowa church has expelled a deacon for attending a base ball match.

prevailing vogue, we expect to see them look only the more charming in the fashions yet to come. Especially do we love them in the bright and delicate hues of Spring, and when we shall be in our hundred and first year, we shall not disdain the school-boy's rapture as he sees his putative angel blushing forth in her ethereal muslins and gauzes, which harmonize with the flowers, and bespeak the wearer as the symbol of all that is lovely and pure in nature.

THE INIQUITY DONE. Our dispatches have already announced the passage by Congress of the Ku Klux iniquity. In the present form of the bill it is left to the District Attorney, and the Judge to determine whether the members of juries, empaneled under the law, shall be required to take the test oath.

The Meteor, a German war vessel, put into Charleston this week. This is the vessel that had the fight off Havana with the French war steamer, Le Bouvet, last November.

The Greenville Mountaineer says: Early last Sunday morning, the body of Mr. Porter H. Burnham was found lying on the ground in his mother's yard, where he lived, and although there were some signs of life remaining, all efforts at resuscitation proved ineffectual.

The Address of the Democratic Congressmen to the People. WASHINGTON, April 20.

Everything that malicious ingenuity could suggest has been done to irritate the people of the middle and southern States by gross and exaggerated charges of disorder and violence, which had their origin in the mischievous minds of political managers in the Senate and House of Representatives, and to which we regret to say the Executive has given his aid, and thus helped to influence the popular feeling.

A Panic in a Circus. The Indianapolis Journal of the 12th instant says: "Yesterday afternoon during the progress of the performance in Robinson's circus a number of the keepers in the canvas adjoining were engaged in feeding the animals and cleaning the cages. As usual at that time all the wild beasts are greatly excited and exceedingly ravenous, and more than the usual care is generally taken to prevent accidents; but, through some negligence, the largest leopard escaped as the door was opened to throw in food, and like a flash the animal was crouching among the wagons. The tent was filled with a crowd of men, women and children, and a scene of wildest terror at once ensued. The latter ran screaming in every direction, and the valiant representatives of the stronger sex gave tongue as loudly, and were fully as agile in their efforts to escape. As the leopards struck the ground she made an effort to seize the leg of a man standing by, but fortunately, he was protected by a heavy log-jug, and the teeth barely passed through. It is supposed that the screams from all sides frightened her before further harm was done, causing a retreat.

A number of the employes of the circus obtained ropes as soon as possible, and after several efforts and the display of considerable skill succeeded in lassoing the animal and hauling her back to her quarters. When the panic had subsided and all fears were allayed by the capture, the surroundings were of the most ludicrous possible character. Several silver badged and blue coated gentlemen who were standing carelessly around when the alarm was given, had all mysteriously vanished, save officer Tom Wilson, who was seen descending from a point toward the top of the centre pole, up which he had shinned by the aid of the guy-ropes. A reporter of the Sentinel, who is evidently a believer in the Darwinian theory, and thought his first cousin might help him in case of emergency, was safely perched on the top of the cage of monkeys."

The New York Democrat declares that "Sumner has knocked the Administration out of time." It is to be regretted that in knocking it out of time he did not knock it into eternity.

Mr. Beck's Answer to Butler. Mr. Beck got leave to reply to Butler in defence of the Senator of Kentucky, who had been so foully denounced by him. That Senator and that member had had a controversy on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. Butler (interrupting): Oh, no; I had no controversy with him. Mr. Beck: The Senator denounced the member on the floor of the Senate, as a "d--d scoundrel," and I would characterize that as a controversy. [Laughter.] They had a quarrel on the floor of the Senate. It ought to have ended there; and would have ended there but for the fact that the member from Massachusetts saw fit to come on the floor of the House and use language grossly offensive to the Senator from Kentucky, and it was after that that the Senator had pronounced the speech which had been quoted by the member from Massachusetts. If he had a personal explanation to make, he should have made it at once, but he had waited till Tuesday, the day that Congress was to adjourn, and then asked leave to make it, having sent printed slips of it to Boston and to the New York Herald, knowing that the Senator would have left the city before he could have seen it in print. Therefore I objected because it had been held up so long, and not because I did not want to give the gentleman a chance of replication.

Mr. Butler (interrupting): The reason given by the gentleman was that he would not let me speak so long as the indictment against his State was pending.

When the member rises and announces that the Senator from Kentucky has been guilty of falsehood, I deny it. I hurl it back, and say that the character of that Senator is as good as that of any man upon earth. He never did wilfully tell a lie, and no man ever before accused him of it. When the member said that the Senator was shielded by his age, and that he did not seek the proper redress, I have only to say that while my Senator is neither a bully nor a blackguard, the member can get any redress from him that he seeks outside of this hall or anywhere else. [Laughter.] I do not believe that it lies in the mouth of the member from Massachusetts to talk about my Senator being shielded by his age or not seeking proper redress. I have witnessed scenes with that member which satisfied me that he would not seek the redress to which he alludes. [Laughter.] He does not forget that I have, in the presence of fifteen members of the House, seen the member from Illinois (Farnsworth) put his fist in the face of the member from Massachusetts, and denounce him in every way that one man could denounce another, until I had to say to the other members of the committee standing by that I did not think there was any white man that would take it without a fight, and that the decent negroes in my State would fight over it. [Upbraiding laughter.] Mr. Farnsworth (derisively): It was on account of his extreme age, perhaps.

Mr. Butler (pointing to Farnsworth): He is not a white man.

Mr. Eldridge: Now is the proper time to call in the chaplain. [Continued laughter.] Mr. Cox: The coroner should be also sent for.

Horrible Accident. A most distressing accident occurred at Peach Bottom, this county, on Thursday last, in a small smithshop at the slate quarries of Jeremiah Brown. It appears that David Williams, the smith, was repairing a drill for one of the workmen in the quarries when another workman brought into the shop a keg containing about ten pounds of blasting powder, which he set down beside a keg of water, upon which the other workman was sitting. Mr. Williams intended to plunge the heated drill into the keg of water for the purpose of tempering it, but mistook the powder keg for it, and into it he plunged the iron. A terrible explosion ensued, tearing out the end of the shop, destroying the sight of both Mr. Williams' eyes, and burning him so terribly all over the head and body that at last accounts his life was despaired of. The other two men in the shop, whose names are Edward Lloyd and John Owens, were also badly burned, though not fatally. -Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer, April 18th.

DR. TUTT'S CELEBRATED EXPECTORANT - NO MYSTERY, HOW IT ACTS. First it detaches from the bronchial wind tubes the mucus or matter which sometimes adheres to them with the tenacity of glue. Secondly, it mitigates the pain and removes the constriction of the bronchial tubes and muscles of the chest. Thirdly, it resists the progress of inflammation, and assists the lungs to throw off the irritating matter which accumulates. [April 16-17]
