New Sabbath School.

We learn that a new Sabbath School was organized on Sunday last, in the Second Baptist Church of this city, by the election of Mr. W. H. Gregory as Superintendent, Mr. - Secley as Clerk and Mr. David Canady as Librarian. The names of about forty-six scholars were enrolled and fifteen persons signified their willingness to act as teachers. The or ganization of the school will be perfected on next Sunday.

The Festival.

The grand festival and musical entertainment, to be given by the German ladies of this city, in aid of St. Paul's (Lutheran) church, will open at City Hall this evening. Extensive preparations have been made to insure the success of the entertainment, and it is expected that it will be a grand affair, well worthy of the patronage of the public. Refreshments, music and distribution of prizes will take place on both eyenings. Tickets to be had at the bookstores and at the door.

Position in Sleep. Sleeping rooms should plways be so arranged, if possible, to allow the head of the sleeper to be towards the north. Frequently, in cases of sickness, a person will find it impossible to obtain rest if the head is in any other direction, and often a cure is retarded for a long time. A prominent physician had a patient who was suffering from accute rheumatism, with painful cramps running from the shoulders to the fingers; and while he head was to the south he could do nothing towards his relief. On turning the bed, however, so that the head was towards the north, the patient uttered expressions of pleasure, and in a few hours a great improvement had taken place, and he was in a few days almost entirely cured. Many other cases are given by scientific persons; and, people in building houses should always have this to year. | guildis

Destructive Pire. ONIXWORD & Last night, about half past 11 o'clock, the alarm of fire was sounded, and upon proceeding to ascertain its whereabouts we found the fine frame building of Mr. W. T. Huggins, on Fourth, between Dock and Orange streets, was in a mass of flame. This, together with the large dwelling adjoining it on the North, belonging to M. A. French, were destroyed. At one time it was feared, on account of the perfect shower of sparks and cinders which flew in every direction, together with the increasing wind, that the flames would spread to the opposite side of the street, when there is no telling where It would have been arrested in its course, but fortunately this was not the case. The new dwelling in course of creation, next South of Mr. Huggin's abuse, the property of Mr. Norwood Giles, marrowity escaped the devouring element, as did that of Mr. Geo. R. French, on the corner just North of the burning buildings; but, thanks to flicionerge of the firemen and the Hook and stanker Company, t cy were both finally served, and at I A. M., when we left the scene of the conflagration, it was thought that the danger of the further spread of the flames was lave and Obey leampletely We learn that Mr. French and Mr. Buggin were insured for $4,000, and that their estimated loss is about $6,000 each. The greater part of the furniture was removed from both buildings, but of course in a demaged condition.

Great credit is due to the various Fire Companies and to the Hook and Ladder Company for their efficient effects to arresting the progress of the flames, which at one time threat ened to equal, if not surpass, the late disastrous configration in our sister city of New-

Liberation of Prisoners by Lowrey and His Gang.

Information has reached us to the effect that on Wednesday last, about 2 o'clock in the morning, Henry Berry Lowrey and his gang made a raid upon the town of Lumberton, Robeson county, broke open the jall and liberated "Pop" Oxendine and Thomas Lowrev. two members of the notorious band of which the said Henry Berry Lowrey is chief, and who were lately incarcerated for crimes perpetrated upon the persons and property of sundry citizens of Robeson. Augers and other tools were used by the outlaws in effecting the release of their confederates. And all this was done, with a Company of United States soldiers quartered in the town! Since writing the above we have received Nothing was known of the affair until this morning, when it was discovered that the doors had been opened with keys and the prisoners had been bored loose from their shackles and bains. No guard had been stationed at the jail for some time. The result has taken no person by surprise. So you see our band of robbers is on the increase. Comment is unnecessary.

The Procession-Ceremonies at the Cemetery-The Address-The Decorations, de theorem and west distribution od to the ther THE DAY and add not but

Contrary to the general hope and expectation, yesterday, the day set apart in the calendar for the annual observance of the ceremony of decorating the graves of the Confederate dead who sleep within the confines of Oakdale Cemetery, dawned upon us with a threatening aspect. The air was chilly to an extreme almost unprecedented at this particular season of the year and there was every appearance of rain. Notwithstanding this fact, however, at the hour appointed the various bodies which designed participating in the celebration, together with the citizens generally, including a large number of ladies, assembled at the intersection of Market and Third streets, where the process on was to be formed. At precisely 314 o'clock, everything being in readiness,

THE PROCESSION moved up Third street in the following order. preceded by the Band : The Cadets of the Cape Fear Academy, under the command of General R. E. Colston, with white pants and white gloves, and each bearing a wreath of evergreens, presenting a very neat and handsome appearance,-Carriage, containing Orator and Chaplain-The Ladies of the Memorial Association, each bearing a wreath of evergreens-Association of Officers of the Third North Carolina Regiment-Confederate Officers and Soldlers-Citizens on foot-Carriage containing the Clergy-Young ladies of Misses Burr and James' School, bearing flowers-Pupils of St. James' Mission School-Young ladies of Misses Kennedy and Hart's School, bearing boquets and preceded by two young ladies dressed in white, bearing a beautiful shield, upon one side of which was the following inscription:

GLORIA CORONATUS,"

and upon the reverse the inscription, "The hearts that were true to their Coun TRY and GoD will report at the Grand

Next came citizens in carriages and on foot, The procession moved up Third street and thence to the Cemetery.

AT THE CEMETERY, ordition A large crowd had preceded the procession to Oakdale, and they waited with anxious expectation for some time for the line to make its appearance. At last the tolling of the bellin the tower of the new Lodge announced the procession as approaching, and soon the long line filed into the enclosure and marched to the Confederate Cemetery. Arriving at the gate, the Cadeta opened order, with arms presented, when the remainder of the procession filed in and, under direction of the Marshal and his assistants, assumed their various positions within the enclosure, being followed by the Cadets, who were assigned a position in the rear. Everything being in readiness for the commencement of the ceremonies, the organ under the skilful touch of Prof. Grabau was heard to give forth its deep-toned music when the choir sang, very beautifully and effectively, the following MEMORIAL CHANT. Again revolving years have shed Their halo o'er our glorious dead; Again with flowers we deck the grave Where sweetly sleep our Southern brave.

Land of the South, home of our birth, Tha thee what dearer spot on earth; Where'er in foreign lands we roam, We cling to thee, our Southern Home.

Brave soldiers of a fallen cause, Who tell supporting Honor's laws, The land you vainly strove to save, Can only grant a lonely grave.

When Lacedæmon's noble son Fell on the field his valor won, His tomb bore but this simple clause, "Stranger, we died for Sparta's laws."

So, when upon our Southern lands Swarmed Europe's bireling bands, We died for Carolina's laws; True soldiers of our Country's cause.

But list along the sighing gale How swiftly swells a nation's wail; Ages may pass before we see Another like our noble LEE.

Warrior, Statesman, Soldier, Sage, Pride of our land and star of the age, What heart so base that will not be Proud of our own, our glorious LEE.

Rest, warriors, rest; this secred sod, and By loving feet forever trod, In future years will ever be A Southern new Thermopylæ.

Rev. A. A. Watson, D. D., then addressed the Throne of Grace in a neat and appropriate prayer, after which the Choir sang a beautiful anthem. Col. Robert Strange, the Orator of the day, then ascended the platform, which had been precise for the occasion and appropriately decorated, and delivered the MEMORIAL ADDRESS.

It would be folly in us to attempt to give a synapsis, or even to undertake to furnish an outline of this truly admirable address. Publie expectation, of course, had been greatly excited by the bare announcement of the name of the Orator, and we feel assured that no one was disappointed who listened to his able effort. We should be glad to give it to our readers in extenso and we may possibly be able to do so in a future issue of our paper. It was listened to with the most intense interest by the large assemblage present, and many gave evidence of being deeply affected by his touching allusions to the gallant dead, and the heroic devotion and self sacrifice which characterized them in the great struggle in which they surrendered their lives. The address was a poble tribute to the memories of Generals Lee, Jackson and their compatriots in the late disastrous conflict, and as such we should be a to see it in print.

After C . wange concluded his romarks the choirs of nother beautiful anthem, after which the benediction was pronounced by Rt. Rev. Bishop Atkinson. Then commenced the ceremony of WOODAR TANK

The different offerings, comprised of wreaths of flowers and evergreens, were passed by the ladies to the Chief Marshal, who rend aloud the names inscribed upon each, and they were then placed upon the mound in the centre of the enclosure. The mound had been previously very handsomely decorated with flowers, and in the centre were two handsome shields, upon one of which was inscribed in gilded letterings the names of "Whiting," "Meares," "Jackson" and "Anderson," and upon the other that of "Robert E. Lee," together with the motto "Deo Vindice." The shields were surmounted upon the tips of four muskets, the breaches of which rested upon the mound, and were supported by a Confederate flag, furled and draped in mourning, the whole constituting a very pretty and appropriate design.

After the offerings had all, been presented and placed in their appropriate positions upon the mound, the beautiful banner heretofore alluded to was added to the array of decorations and contributed much to the general effect, as well as eliciting much admiration from the assembled crowd.

The choir next sung, the doxology, after which it was announced that the ceremony of decorating the graves of officers and soldiers buried in private lots would be proceeded with, and after this duty was performed the large assemblage dispersed and returned to the city on an aver of wines a fone was Thus ended the Memorial celebration of May 10th, 1871. Happily, the general apprehension that rain would interfere with the arrangements proved to be unfounded, and the only thing which served in the least to mar the melancholy pleasure of the occasion was the coolness of the atmosphere and the gloomy appearance of things incident to the cloudy weather which prevailed. Notwithstanding all this, however, the celebration was very creditable to all concerned and the deep interest manifested by those present must have been extremely gratifying to the prime movers in this labor of love-the ladies of the Memorial Association.
