The Globe Press.

We have just put in operation in our Job Department a half-medium "Globe" Printing Press, manufactured by the Jones Manufacturing Company, Palmyra, New York.

We bought this Press, at an expense of nearly seven hundred dollars, including freight, &c., after a careful study of the advantage claimed by the manufacturers, strengthened by the recommendation of such eminent practical printers as Theo. L. De Venne, Esq.; but we delayed any extended reference to its merits until we could see them

Having now thoroughly tested the "Globe," we feel justified in pronouncing it superior to any Job Prioting Press we have ever seen. That it possesses decided advantages (especially the half-medium size) over both the Gorden and Liberty presses we think incontrovertible. With unusual weight and strength it combines an ease in running that we have never seen equalled, being almost as nearly noiseless in operation as a sewing machine.

The bed is easy of access; the platen has period of rest, giving ample time for even an inexperienced pressman to correctly place the sheet; the inking cylinder has a very large surface, withftwo vibrating distributing rollers, and by a very ingenious though simple device the three form rollers may be detained on the cylinder ad libitum, thereby giving unlimited

We have tested the "Globe" thoroughly. It is all the manufacturers claim for it, and we do not hesitate to give it our puqualified endorsement. It is a gem of beauty and usefulness . II . WOISLAM

That Alligator.

Some weeks since we chronieled the fact in these columns that a large alligator had been caught near this city and that an enterprising gentleman on Water street had placed him in exhibited at five cents a sight. We subsequently mentioned that a certain venturesome person, who wanted to show what he knew about alligators, placed his hand in his mouth and got it badly bitten. As an evidence how such apparently trifling incidents are tortured by the sensation pictorials of New York and made to assume the proportions of a horrible catastrophe, we find in the Police News of that city, of June 22d, an engraving representing a man with his arm up to the shoulder in the voracious, aws of a monster alligator, with the

C., Ampulates its Owner's Arm.—A man of the South lately caught an alligator, and cultivaself so thoroughly established in the reptile's confidence that he could do anything with him. He then set forth to make a show of his scaly friend, exhibiting such agreeable tricks as stretching open his ponderous jaws and running his arm down his throat. The monster stood it for awhile with considerable equanimity, but finally, at Wilmington, N. C., when the tempting morsel was put between his teeth, he yielded to the temptation, snapped it off at the shoulder, and devoured it
