W. M. H. BERNARD, Editor and Proprietor.

THE CIRCULATION OF THE MORNING STAR IS LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER DAILY NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED IN NORTH CAROLINA.

THE POSTAL CARD MOVEMENT.

It will be remembered that the postmaster general, in his last report, strongly urged the adoption of the English postal card system in our country. These postal cards, he declared, require no folding or envelope, are specially adapted for circulars or short communications, and are furnished to the public at the value of the postage stamp impressed upon them, which is in Great Britain half a penny, being one-half the established inland letter rate of postage. Accordingly, he advised the introduction of these cards into our postal system. "Believing," he said, "that the employment of these cards would be beneficial to the public, and result in a large increase of correspondence, I respectfully recommend that authority be given by law for their introduction into our postal service at the rate of one cent each, including the cost of the card, as the first step toward a general reduction of our domestic letter postage."

So great was this last objection that most people have abstained altogether from using the postal card system, despite its cheapness. It is true that even the curiosity of the carriers would naturally be satiated after a while, and their discretion ought to prevent them from misusing the secrets so entrusted to them. Still, it is annoying to think of sending dispatches in this open way, and many efforts, therefore, have been made to obviate the difficulty in question. At last one device appears to have met with favor. In this new plan, so we are told, a small single sheet of paper is so shaped and folded that it may be fastened at once, like an ordinary envelope. The inside is left blank for writing, and the outside contains space for the direction, together with the stamp, which will be cancelled by puncturing. This, therefore, would be substantially a postal card, and yet one which does not expose the contents to observation. The new card, being thinner than the old, will also weigh less. Should this change in the postal card system prove practicable, the one great objection to it would be removed. There need no longer exist any fear of exposing one's messages to public perusal, and these cards might accordingly prove, as Mr. Creswell has said, the first step toward one cent postage.

OUR EXPORT TRADE.

According to the report of the Bureau of Statistics, the principal exports of the United States during the calendar year ending December 31, 1870, were valued as follows: Breadstuffs, $67,076,049, of which Great Britain took $24,736,049, or a little more than half; cotton, $219,373,805, of which Great Britain took $158,000,000 worth, Germany $15,000,000, and France $22,000,000. These figures, however, do not accurately represent the relative consumption of American cotton, as nearly all the countries of Europe having cotton factories purchase some of the raw material in England. The competition for the supply of Europe with cotton it is stated, is becoming formidable, as in 1868 India sent four times, and Brazil and Egypt each five times more cotton to England than they did in 1864. The tobacco exported from the United States in 1870 was valued at $16,629,004, of which England purchased $4,785,823, Germany $3,583,543, and France $1,712,545. The refined petroleum exported from the United States in 1870 was valued at $33,271,887, of which Germany took the value of $7,376,333. The next best customer for petroleum was Belgium, and then Great Britain. The export of provisions, including bacon, pork, cheese, butter and lard, was very large in 1870, and of these articles, quantities valued at $26,070,089 were sent abroad, Great Britain taking more than one-half. This foreign demand was caused by the Franco-German war, which cut off the supply from the usual sources.

The Marine Disasters happening during last July to vessels belonging to the United States or bound to and from the ports of this country, are reported to be twenty-three in number. Of the vessels suffering these disasters, eleven were "wrecked," four foundered, three sunk by collision, two were abandoned, two were burned, and one missing. The vessels are classed as follows: Steamers, one; ships, two; bark, four; brig, five and schooners, eleven. The estimated value, exclusive of the cargoes, is $420,000.

The Mount Cenis Tunnel, it is announced, will be opened September 5th, with extraordinary ceremonies. Preparations are making for a flower show, a cattle show, and an industrial exhibition, at which the chief manufactures of the principal cities of Italy will be displayed.

THE COMING ELECTIONS.

Kentucky will lead off to-morrow in the coming elections. On the first Tuesday in September Vermont and California will elect a Governor and Legislature. Maine will hold a general election on the second Monday of the same month. Next come the October elections in the States of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Iowa—all voting on the second Tuesday of that month. These elections will have a decided effect upon the national campaign in '72.

The Radicals are as ready as the most ultra Democrats to cry out State rights whenever it is necessary to cover up their violations of law, or to sanction any piece of rascality they propose to perpetrate. State rights, as long as contended for by the Democracy, are relics of the past—dead issues—but let it suit the purposes of the Radicals to rely upon them and no party can more eloquently declaim of the reserved powers of the individual members of the Federal Union. The Congressional committee took refuge behind the State rights doctrine upon the question of woman suffrage, notwithstanding the shameful violations of the doctrine, by their party, upon the question of negro suffrage.

Governor Bullock, of Georgia, a creation of the reconstruction acts, now appears as a stickler for the same State rights which were so ignored and trampled upon by the military domination to which he owes his election. He, depicts the right of Congress to inquire into the financial administration of a State which is represented in Congress. This is "straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel." He is content to sanction all sorts of Federal intervention with the most intimate concerns of the State, and to indorse all the infamies of the Ku Klux act, but grows exceedingly doubtful about the right of the General Government to investigate the robberies and corruption of the carpet-bag governments which curse the Southern States.

Palmetto Leaves.

Charleston is jubilant over the election of her entire Conservative ticket headed by the gallant Wagener.

A fire in Charleston on Friday morning destroyed Mr. W. S. Bissell's hardware store and another building adjoining it.

We learn that Mr. Foster White, living near Chappell's Depot, was shot on Saturday evening, while sitting in his door, by parties unknown. Death was instantaneous.

Gov. Scott has offered $500 reward for the parties who murdered E. J. Singletary, postmaster at Myersville, Williamsburg County, on the night of the 24th of July ultimo.

The Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has invited Mr. Albert Guerry, of South Carolina, a young artist of more than ordinary merit, to "Liberty Hall," for the purpose of sitting for a full-length portrait.

We learn from the Carolina Spartan that Mr. John C. Colwell, an aged and highly esteemed citizen of that county, died at his residence on the 18th ult. The deceased was in the 75th year of his age.

A correspondent of the Courier, writing from Chester, says: The votes for County Commissioners have just been counted. Messrs. Peden and Hardin, Democrats, have been elected by over three hundred majority. I think the poor deluded colored people are beginning to find out their true friends, as a great number voted for the above. No rain—corn past redemption—cotton terribly wilted and casting very much.

Lee's Surrender—The Truth About that Important Ceremony.

It has been popularly reported that the first interview between the two commanders took place under an apple tree, which has consequently been crowned with historic associations. This is false. The fact is, that, in the morning of the 9th of April, General Lee, with a single member of his staff, was resting under an apple tree, when Colonel Babcock, of General Grant's staff, rode up under a flag of truce, saying that if General Lee remained where he was, General Grant would come to him by the road the latter was then pursuing. This was the only interview under or near the apple tree, and it may be mentioned here that the following day Colonel Marshall, who attended General Lee on the occasion, was surprised to find Federal soldiers hacking at the tree, and was amused at their idea of obtaining from it mementoes of the surrender. Obtaining news of Grant's approach, General Lee at once ordered Colonel Marshall to find a fit and convenient house for the interview. Colonel Marshall applied to the first citizen he met, Mr. Wilmer McLean, and was directed to a house empty and dismantled. He refused to use it; and Mr. McLean then offered to conduct him and the general to his own residence, a comfortable frame house, with a long portico and convenient "sitting-room," furnished after the bare style of the times.

The house was about half a mile from Gen. Lee's camp. The Confederate commander was attended only by one of his aids, Col. Marshall, a youthful, boyish looking scion of the old and illustrious Marshall family of Virginia, who had been the constant companion of Gen. Lee in all his campaigns, and, as his private secretary, had done good literary service, in the preparation of reports of battles, &c., which are now historical. With Grant, there were several of his staff officers, and a number of Federal Generals, including Ord and Sherman, entered the room and joined in the slight general conversation that took place there.

The interview opened without the least ceremony. The story has been frequently repeated that General Lee tendered his sword, and that General Grant returned it with a complimentary remark. There was no such absurdity. General Lee wore his sword, which was not his usual habit; and, on the exchange of salutations, Gen. Grant remarked, "I must apologize, General, for not wearing my sword; it had gone off in my baggage when I received your note." General Lee bowed, and at once and without further conversation, asked that General Grant would state, in writing if he preferred it, the terms on which he would receive the surrender of the army of Northern Virginia. Gen. Grant complied by sitting at a table in the room and writing, with a common lead pencil, the note so well remembered.—Old and New.

Interesting Trial.

It has been announced before in our columns, that John F. Pickrell, Esq., broker in the city of New York, had been arrested on a charge of conspiracy and on demand of Gov. Caldwell, surrendered to our State authorities by the Governor of New York; and that, on failure to give the bail required, he had been committed to the jail of New Hanover County. His friends having succeeded in bringing the case (or rather cases, the one a civil suit, and the other an indictment for conspiracy) before Judge Rodman of our Supreme Court bench, on a writ of habeas corpus the case was opened yesterday; and on a motion made by one of Mr. Pickrell's counsel, W. A. Wright, Esq., of Wilmington, to discharge the prisoner (or to lessen the required bail), able arguments were submitted by the distinguished counsel employed. The trial will be continued to-day, and as we have no desire to prejudice the case, we shall defer all comment till its close. Having taken notes we shall report the case in full, presenting as it does many features which must prove of interest, not only to our local readers but to the people of the entire State. Some light may be thrown, in the progress of this case, upon the question of our State indebtedness, and the manner in which her bonds have been manipulated.—Newbern Journal of Commerce.

An old man, with long, gray hair, and clad in the costume of a century ago, for nearly half a century excited great curiosity in New Orleans until the other day, when in the fullness of time he was gathered to his fathers, and the mystery of his life was exposed. More than 40 years ago he was first noticed in the streets of the Crescent City, and was marked not less by the curious fashion and richness of his garments, than the singular deformity which, while rendering him a hunch-back, did not seem to interfere with proportions in other respects noble and dignified. He made himself a lonely home in the outskirts, and reared about it all sorts of dainty plants and clinging vines, but with no soul to share his sentimental solitude. The other day the anchorite was missed from his usual recreations, and when the neighbors penetrated his lonely cottage they found his body stark on a simple pallet of straw, the surroundings being furniture of severe plainness. Near the body, however, was a rick basket of another-of-pearl and gold, brilliant with a costly setting of jewels, and in diamond dust were wreathed the "lilies of France" in a golden coronet. In the box itself lay the lost diadem of the Bourbons, stolen on the 16th of August, 1830, when Charles X abdicated the throne. Besides this there was found in the casket a manuscript in French, with this curious statement: "I am Charette, the Venard General. Maria of Savoy was to have been my wife. She was taken from me and given to the Comte d'Artois. I could have forgiven this, but he deserted me when I most needed his help and assistance. I have avenged myself and preobred his overthrow, and I am happy since he died an exile."

Brownlow and Ex-President Johnson.

An interviewer, who recently went to see Senator Brownlow, at his home in Tennessee, says that Brownlow has not spoken to Andrew Johnson or seen him in six years. Brownlow professes to believe that the ex-President would be a candidate for Congress next year in the district where he lives, which is now represented by Roderick R. Butler.

HALL'S Artificial Sperm.

THE UNDESIGNED, a practical manufacturer, has for the past 12 years experimented with and compounded LUBRICATING OIL. He has succeeded in producing an Oil which has withstood every test, and warrants it not to heat or gum, and as durable as the best of Sperm. The best judges cannot tell it from the latter oil, either by sight or smell, as it is almost transparent. He warrants every gallon; and it may be returned, at his expense, if not satisfactory. Actual experiments have demonstrated the fact that one oiling with Hall's Sperm is as good as two with any other oil.

This Oil is especially adapted to the use of Locomotives, as it is a very clean oil. If railroad officers will notify him, he will forward 5 gallons free of all charge, if they will give it a fair test, as he is satisfied that his oil has no superior.
