

MORNING STAR.

Sunday, December 17, 1871.

W. M. H. BERNARD,
Editor and Proprietor.

THE CIRCULATION OF THE MORNING STAR IS LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER DAILY NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED IN NORTH CAROLINA.

THE NATIONAL IDEA AGAIN.

The Newbern Times quotes our article on "The National Idea," as it says, "in order to answer fully." Did some space permit, we would return the compliment of our contemporary in order to answer him fully. We will quote from the Times reply enough to answer our purpose and do that paper full justice.

The Times interrogates: "We would ask the STAR in how much, and to what degree did the New England Colonies, to which it refers, rock, surge, fight for and maintain the child of freedom and liberty born on English soil, and transplanted by the Pilgrim Fathers to the sterile coast on which, they, the real Fathers of this Republic landed? And the Times claims that at this rocky, nursing, etc., is sufficient answer to any charge of a spirit of bigotry or partiality which they naturally ought to import with them."

Now as to the grandiose interrogation and the "claim" with which the Newbern editor imagines he has clinched his argument and parried any thrust we might make at the weak points in his armor, we have just this much to say: If the men who came over in the May Flower were the only real Fathers of this Republic, then what were the Calverts of Maryland, the Smiths of Virginia, the Drummonds of North Carolina and the Ogthepsons of Georgia who assisted in the foundation of pioneer settlements which afterward became warring colonies and independent States? What does the Times editor, whose patronymic is suggestive of Yankee wisdom and smartness, make of the Alexanders and Averys and Pifers who assisted at the birth of political liberty on this continent—the immortal signers of the immortal North Carolina Declaration of Independence, which preceded by more than thirteen months the great Declaration of Jefferson? What does he make of Jefferson who wrote the Declaration of 76, who said in his last days that the only epitaph he desired to be placed ever him was: "Here lies Thomas Jefferson, the Author of the Act for Religious and Civil Liberty?" Were not these men Fathers of the Republic? And Washington and Henry Lee and Morgan and Pickens who fought, and Madison and Pendleton and Patrick Henry who legislated the new Republic into existence: were they Fathers, or only sons, or still less allies in the eyes of this writer who sees no beauty or loveliness or grace in any thing but the Pilgrims of Plymouth Rock?

The Times whitewashes Senator Morton and President Grant as "large hearted, progressive and well-balanced Americans and so recognized and endorsed by the whole people except perhaps a few prejudice-blinded, jaundiced, and we are (he) is pained to say, un-American writers." This is enough. No comment on this remarkable passage is needed. Here is the stamp of the subservient spirit that "Bends the supple hinges of the knee that thrift may follow fawning."

The "empiric" tendency to which the Times alludes is hastening us on to ruin, social and political. This is indeed an age of empiricism, an age of quackery and charlatanism. The Times gives us a clue. His empiricism will lead sooner or later to the Empire.

So much for the National Idea as it exists in and out of the brain of the Newbern Times.

COMMODORE MAURY'S SUGGESTIONS.

The pith and marrow of the Commodore's recommendations, which have received the endorsement of our Legislature, and we believe that of the Legislatures of several States, is the necessity of concert among the Southern States to bring about immigration. Without concert the action of any single State in the present destitution prevailing in this section would be feeble, and would doubtless be barren of results. Any immigration scheme to command success, must enlist a large amount of capital. Every plan that has been inaugurated at the South has failed, for the reason that none of them has been backed by the requisite funds.

The scheme of Commodore Maury contemplates appropriations by the Legislatures of the Southern States sufficient to turn the tide of immigration now flowing so steadily to the North West to the Southern States.

One of the principal means to be employed in bringing about this desirable result, the Commodore thinks, is a physical survey of our section and a full topographical, geological, mineralogical and climatical description of the country. This will develop the boundless wealth of our States to European eyes, which have been tutored to find the El Dorado of their search in the wilds of the Western and Northwestern States and Territories. Such a physical history as that contemplated will bring to light the most astounding facts pertaining to the life of scientific discovery. As science and the practical arts go hand in hand, these discoveries must have a reflex action on the practical business of life, and enhance the comfort, profit and pleasure of living at the South. We look for the most beneficial results to accrue from carrying Prof. Maury's scheme into execution.

We think that a combination of Maury's plan with the one suggested by us some days since will be productive of a happy state of things in our down-trodden and impoverished section. A half million of dollars well invested and under the control of a live, energetic immigration company would, in a few years, fill the land with a class of steady, hard working laboring men and excellent citizens. We insist that the scheme of an immigration union, embracing in its operations all of the cotton and border States, be formed as soon as possible; that the most sensible and active of our business men and farmers be put at the head of it; that they be furnished with enough to start a first class newspaper in the city of New York, and to defray all the expenses of competent agents abroad and at home, including also sufficient funds to transport any number of the right sort of immigrants who choose to come.

Probable Fatal Shooting Affray on Main Street.

The Main street entrance to the custom-house was the scene of a probable fatal shooting affair yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The parties concerned were Messrs. John Snellings and Andrew Monteiro, who were until recently engaged in a partnership business, with the termination of which ended the good feeling which had existed between them for a long period. Both of these gentlemen were widely known here and throughout the State, and were equally popular in the circle in which they moved.

A group of gentlemen composed of Messrs. Henry T. Hungerford, Andrew Monteiro and George C. Wild, and two others, were standing together on the steps of the postoffice, or in the door leading up stairs to the custom-house, when Mr. Snellings walked down the street, smoking. Taking the cigar in his left hand, he approached the five gentlemen, and saying, "I have you now!" or words to that effect, struck at Mr. Monteiro with the blow, however, having no more effect than to knock off the hat of the assailed party and take him completely by surprise; following quickly with another lick, Mr. Monteiro lost his balance and was knocked down. Falling on his side, with his face to the stone flagging, his head struck the iron rail, which completely stunned him. Here he lay apparently for a minute, when he sprang up, lighting almost on his head, and extending his arm from his side fired a Darringer, which no doubt had been taken from his pocket after the first blow was received. The parties to the affray were standing close together—so close that Mr. Snellings's clothes took fire from the explosion of the powder. The ball from the Darringer entered his left breast and pierced one of his lungs. As soon as shot Mr. Snellings exclaimed, "I am a dead man!" and, drawing his own revolver, endeavored to fire. But the effect of the shot he had received began to show itself almost in a moment. A friend standing close at his side extended his arm to give him support, and another who was approaching at the time saw the change of color in the cheek of the wounded man, and came quickly to give his own aid. Reeling to and fro, he staggered, and at last, succeeding in cocking his pistol, he fired two shots at Mr. Monteiro, who now retreated across the street towards the office of the North American Life Insurance Company, where he remained until taken in custody by policemen Shea and Depriest, of the second district, who carried him to the second police station.

Mr. Snellings, meanwhile, had lapsed into a state of unconsciousness, but was surrounded by many of his friends, who in a few moments took him to his lodgings, on Main street, near Ninth. Drs. Beale, Manson, Walker, and McGuire were summoned to his side, and did all that was possible for his relief. At a late hour last evening his condition was critical. —Rich. Dispatch.

The Execution of Cremieux at Marshfield, France.

Gaston Cremieux, who was shot at Marshfield, was a barrister, practicing in that town. In September last he was one of the leaders of the mob which took possession of the Hotel de Ville, and proclaimed the Commune of Marshfield. He was tried by court martial, and with three other leaders of the Commune—Elliott, Pelissier and Roux—was condemned to death; but in his case alone the sentence been executed. Upon being informed that the guillotine had arrived, he replied, "I will show you how a man dies." After having arranged his papers he was taken to the Fort St. Nicolas. When he arrived there he asked to be allowed a few minutes to finish a piece of poetry, and then requested the rabbi who attended him to beg of a friend to complete a theatrical play which he had partly written. Upon reaching the place of execution he firmly placed himself against the stake, and, taking off his coat, unfastened his shirt, faced the firing party, exclaiming, "Fire! Vive la Republique!" He had not completed the last word when he fell a corpse.

Have Independent Voting.

Boston and Worcester, Mass., are to be added to the list of American cities which have repudiated party lines in the consideration of their local affairs, having both just chosen their principal municipal officers independent of party. Boston has a good mayor, and because he is a good one he has been selected by the suffrages of a considerable number of his Republican opponents. The roll of "Independent" cities is rapidly increasing, and if the city of Philadelphia had considered the municipal situation as thoroughly before the recent election she has been compelled to consider it since, she, too, would now have been upon the roll of "independents" along with Chicago, New York, Pittsburg, San Francisco, Boston and Worcester. But all this is having its due and natural effect in Philadelphia. The Citizens' Association is rapidly becoming as strong in numbers as it has shown itself to be in courage and indomitable energy. —Philadelphia Leader.

An Unsuccessful Attempt to "Shuffle Out."

Early yesterday morning a young man, aged about 25 years, named George Phillips, formerly employed as a barkeeper at the St. Mare Hotel, repaired to his residence, at the corner of Tenth and C streets, evidently the worse for liquor. Soon after arriving at his room, he announced his intention to take his life, at the same time, in the presence of his sister, drawing from his pocket a two ounce vial of laudanum, and drinking over half of the contents. Immediately after taking the potion, his sister forced her finger down his throat, which caused the would-be suicide to vomit the soothing dose and placed him out of danger.

It appears that Phillips has been paying his addresses to a young lady, who of late has received him coldly, and aided with bad whiskey, and the effects of his rejected suit, thus endeavoring to end his career. Late last night the young man had fully recovered, and does not desire to renew the attempt. —Wash. Patriot, 10th.
