OAKDALE CEMETERY.

Visit to this Beautiful Repository of the Dead-The Improvements Made Within the Past Year-Other Improvements in Contemplation, &c. Those who have not visited our beautiful Oakdale Cemetery within the few months past would be astonished to see the improvements which have been made in its appearance.-Hearing of these improvements, we paid a visit to the "slient city of the dead" a few days sinc , and as we propose to give our readers the benefit of our observations we will include a sort of general review of the objects of most interest within he sacred inclosure. The first object that meets the eye of the visitor upon entering the gate, and immediately, in front of the same, is a beautiful square lot neatly inclosed in evergreens, belonging to St. John's Lodge and Concord Chapter, F. & A. M., of this city, and designed by them for the interment of such of their brotherhood as may die in or near the city and who own no lot in the Cemetery. Next in front of the entrance and situated on a gentle aclivity is the Confederate Cemetery, with its neat iron railing and grassy mound. from which we hope soon to see a monument towering, inscribed with the names of the noble dead who sleep so peacefully within the lovely and hallowed enclosure, and which will complete the beauty of the spot so dear to our people. On the left of the gate and near the entrance has been erected since the commencement of the past year a neat and handsome Lodge, a description of which we have heretofore given in these columns. This is designed as a resting places for visitors; but the Lodge could, we think, be greatly improved by being enclosed, and, indeed, without this is done, the building will be considered more ornamental than useful. On the line of the old avenue. leading from what was formerly the Southern entrance, we passed a beautiful and raised square, being four full lots in one, the property of Cape Fear Lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F. In the centre of the square stands a marble

Be Careful. Housekeepers cannot be too careful in securing the front part of their residences night or day. A lady stepped into her kitchen a few moments on Friday and while absent some unknown person entered the premises and stole s veral valuable articles, including a gold watch and chain.

Foreign Vassels.

There are at this time no less than five Norwegian and Swedish vessels in this bort, with an aggregate tonnage of about 1,200 tons and manned by about 60 men. The vessels are all very fine ones and comparatively new. It is hardly probable that there were ever so many representatives of the two nationalities in our harbor at any one time before. The men are a fine, hardy looking set of seamen.

Monster Bill-Boards.

Haight's Circus, to be here on the 29th inst., must be a mammoth affair, judging from the preparations being made for bill posting. A bill board 190 feet in length and 12 feet high is being erected on the Court House fence, reaching from that building to the Odd Fellow's Hall. Another, 100 feet in length and of the same height as the one mentioned, is to be erected on the South side of Princess, between Front and Water. In building these monster bill-boards, 4,000 feet of lumber will be used. They are being put up by Mr. R. L. Harris.

1845, and was buried in the old city graveyard, corner of Fourth and Dock streets. Mr. McLauchli nwas the first teacher of the Odd Fellows' School, (which opened in this city in October, 1843) and was a men ber of Cape Fear Lodge. He died in the discharge of his duties and the brotherhood have removed his remains to their own lot, where they can be properly cared for by them.

There are many private lots that show the care of loving hands and of sorrowing hearts, but of these we forbear to speak. The care and attention that is bestowed on these grounds is apparent at every step, and no one can doubt that all is being done that is possible with the limited means the Company have at command to please every lot owner and to beautify and adorn the grounds. But we now come to the great improvements which have been made in certain locations during the year just closed, to describe which this article was mainly intended. On the West front we find that a peat and substantial inclosure has taken the place of the rickety worm fence which formerly bordered the grounds on the side of the creek. This fence will be extended still farther around. One year ago this front was in appearance forbidding and unsightly, and really a disgrace to the grounds. Now we find that a canal has been opened from the gate nearly around the water front of the grounds. The unsightly logs and trash have been removed and the low places are being filled in, making a gradual slope from the avenue to the margin of the canal. This slope will be set out with a variety of grasses and shrubbery, which, when com pleted, will present to the view a beautiful green sward in place of the stubble quacgmire which formerly looked so uninviting to the visitor. On the North front it is designed to construct a new avenue of drive leading along the edge of the water and terminating at the Northeastern corner of the grounds, where if will connect with the old avenues. Between this and the old avenue on the North front are now in process of construction a tier of lots, which will take the place of the unsightly embankment, ten to fifteen feet high, which was covered with thick undergrowth and entirely obstructed the view on that side of the grounds. These lots, when in proper shape, will certainly be the most desirable on the grounds. The improvements alluded to, we understand, are among the first ever undertaken for the old lot owners, and will no doubt be daly appreciated by them all; besides which they will add fifty per cent. to the appearance of the Cemetery. These improvements are due in a great measure to the untiring geal and interest constantly manifested by Donald McRae, Esq., President of the Oakdale Cemetery Company, who has been aided in his efforts in preserving and beautifying the hallowed grounds by R. J. Jones, Esq.,

- We are indebted to Mr. R. L. Harris for late papers, including the New York Ledger and Chimney Corner. All sorts of reading matter to be had at his stand on Front street.

- A committee, consisting of Commissioners Black and Shoemaker, with the Treasurer, are now examining the accounts of the Sheriff. with a view to the annual settlement, as required by law.

- The iron to complete the Wilmington, Charlotte and Rutherford Railroad to Wadesboro and Shelby has been purchased and active operations will commence at once.

- The bill in favor of the Wilmington, Charlotte and Rutherford Railroad passed its third reading in the Senate yesterday and it goes to the House to-morrow. No opposition is apprehended.

- Next month, February, will have five Thursdays, commencing and ending on that day. This could not occur any other than leap year and will not occur again until the year 1928, or fifty-six years from this.

- After the 10th instant, passenger trains on the Wilmington, Columbia and Augusta Railroad will run via Columbia and Augusta. Freight trains are now running through to Augusta, making close connection.

Bank of New Hanover.

One hundred thousand dollars, the full amount of the capital stock of The Bank of New Hanover, has been subscribed and the in stitution will be open for business in about two weeks.

Pestponed. We learn that the visit of the five engineer officers, including Col. Craighill, Engineer in charge of this district, who were expected to arrive here on Tuesday next, the 9th instant, has been unavoidably postponed, but to what particular period is not now known.

Meeting of Lot Owners.

We sgain direct the attention of our eity readers to the call for a meeting of the lot owners of Oakdale Cemetery, to be held at the office of the Wilmington Gas Light Company, on Princess street, to-morrow evening, at 714 o'clock. A full attendance is carneatly desired, as matters of importance will come before the meeting.

An Appeal,

As District Vice President of the Friend of Temperance in this District I take this occasion to make an appeal to the ladies and gentlemen of the "Old Cape Fear" in behalf of the cause I represent.

Were it necessary I could point you to the broken links in nearly every family chain; to the ruined homes and desolated hearth-stones; to the poverty-stricken widows and starvings ignorant orphans, made so by the demon Intemperance. I could tell you of the sad-eyed, hopeless widows and orphans who doubly deso. late, sorrrow without hope. I could tell you of the bright eyed, sunny haired boy, who was his mother's pride, and father's joy; and who in the morn of life bade fair to win a name and fame, but who, alas, wrecked all his brightest hopes in the sea of sparkling wine. I could tell you many a tale of woe and sorrow, could show you many a proof of the evils of Intemperance, were it necessary, but I de-
