Special Correspondence of the Morning S'ar. GREENSBORO, N. C., May 1. Your correspondent writes late at night from a cosey room in the magnificent Benbow Hotel. A great crowd fill the hotel and the streets, while from my window scores of bril liant lights flash across the public squares of the city in front. Speaking is going on at the Grand Wigwam where the Convention was held to-day. The speakers as announced this afternoon are entertaining the crowd down there. But your correspondent must make out his notes taken to-day, and not speak of what is going on elsewhere than where he is

At 11 o'cleck the talented orstor, Hon. Samuel F. Carey, of Ohio, addressed a wide, surging audience from the balcony of the Benbow House. He made a most timely and appropriate speech, clearly showing the gross corruptions and monstrous, outrageous tyranny of the party in power in the country. Gen, Carey paid North Carolina a noble tribute for the personal purity and greatness of her public men. Some of his flights of eloquence were brillant and even thrilling and powerful.

At 12 M., the different delegations being seated in the new and commodious "Wigwam" prepared for the occasion, Gen. Daniel M. Barringer, of the Executive Committee, in a few appropriate remarks called the Convention to order, and nominated for Temporary President, Col. Thomas C. Fuller, of Fayetteville, who in a few brief, pointed but eloquent words announced the purpose and feeling of the Convention. It is not necessary for us to tell those who know this truly gifted gentleman that he filled the position of Temporary President with great redit to himself and honor to the body itself. On motion of Gen. D. M. Barringer a committee on permanent organization was appointed, consisting of two from each Congressional District. Gen. T. L. Clingman being called out made a fine speech. When the roll of counties was called, it was ascertained that eighty-five out of ninety-two countles were represented. There have seldom been sent delegations to State Conventions so able, dignified and truly representative as these. The members of the Press and the large number of prominent gentlemen present were invited to seats on the stand. Of the "Press gang" we saw the folthe exhibition last night was an outrage to all lowing, though not all were seated at the Reporter's table: W. H. Pleasants, Richmond Dispatch; J. B. Walters, Richmond Whig; S. T. Williams, Jordan Stone, E. C. Woodson, Raleigh News; James Osgood, Newbern Journal of Commerce; Hon, Josiah Turner, John Spelman, John C. Syme, Sentinel; Maj. J. A. Engelhard, Wilmington Journal; W. J. Yates, Charboro' Southerner ; J. R. Thigpen, Reconstructed John E. Gwens in Charleston. Farmer; R. M. Furman, Louisburg Courier; Dr. H. E. Manning, Weldon News; Julius W. Wright, Statesville Intelligencer; Hugh F. Mur- ated in Charleston: ray, Washington Exp.ess: T. C. Evans, Hillsboro' Recorder; J. A. Bonitz, Goldsboro' Messcuger : Cicero W. Harris, Battleboro' Advance; Dr. Geo. E. Matthews, correspondent Norfolk Journal. There were probably others. The committee on resolutions I have given you by telegraph, and will not report.

The evening session commenced at 3 o'clock. The committee on permanent organization reported Hon. John Kerr as President. This distinguished gentleman made a most forcible and eloquent address, truly able in conception and execution. He lashed the shameless misdeeds and crimes of the Radicals with whole strings of scorpions. The whole infamous history of the tremendeous usurpations and damnable crimes of Holden in 1870, when himself, Mr. Turner and others were imprisoned in defiance of law and justice, was told in a remarkably thilling manner. The Judiciary came in for a heavy share of censure. well; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Tourgee was excoriated, but Pearson was placed ahead even of Jeffries as a Judicial tyrant. Cincinnati he felt was the key to the situation, though we must wait and see.

> The speech of Gov. Vance was the speech of the day. We do not know how to characterise it properly. It was a grand speech-witty, lively, splendid and intensely telling. The causes of decline in the history of those corrupt nations that have fallen in all the annels of the world were traced step by step to rain. The Governor spoke warmly of the great Liberal leaders-Trumbull, Schurz, Greeley, &c. Defiance to tyrants, the true spirit. There is a rift in the cloud. The American people are giving a hearty response to the voice of the Liberal leaders. Said the Governor to the people who might think of going over to the enemy, "Don't go, the spoils are all gone now. The money has been stolen." He told the anecdote of Jake and the catfish and concluded the Radical party had "swunk." He closed with a beautiful appeal. The nomination for Governor was entered into after some preliminary discussion. 1 sent you the full vote by telepraph. The vote was an overwhelming evidence of the popularity of Judge Merrimon. That he should receive 70 out of 108 is the very highest proof of the warm affection everywhere entertained for him. The confidence in his election is intense heie, even among those who did not prefer him. The balance of the ticket will be selected to morrow. We will not make up a "slate," though we hear discussed all around us the charges for each aspirant for each position. Darham, Hughes, Atlen, Gilmer, Engelhard and a few others are talked of for Lieutenant G vernor. It is hard to say who will be the lucky man. Either could give fine satisfac-

There is to be a meeting of the editors early in the morning.

The Convention is every way a grand success. This little city is crowded, every hotel and man; private residences being filled up. There are some two thousand persons in attendance, I think, though I have heard different estimates, some larger and some smaller. The spirit is rapturous in eathusiasm. The s me barmony and fine feeling will no doubt characterise the further proceedings. We are going to bury Radicalism this year. That is what I hear all around me. The band is prettily playing " Put me in my little bed," and as it is now nearly one o'clock, is very promising. I believe I will take the hint. MORVILLE.

OPERA HOUSE.

Over Land and Sea.

We regret to see such little disposition on the part of our citizen to patronize an exhibition so meritorious in every respect as the one now here. The audience last night was not at all encouraging in point of numbers, especially when it is considered that the exhibition deserved a crowded house. The scenes, which comprised most of the places and things of note in Germany and Italy, were magnificent, while the descriptions given were instructive and entertaining. It would be impossible, in the short compass of a newspaper article, to give an adequate idea of the merits of this really fine exhibition. We can only reiterate that it must be seen to be appreciated, as all who were present last evening can testify. It is not often that our citizens have an opportunity of witnessing life-like seenes. from the Old World reproduced with such faithfulness and accuracy, and we hope to see a large attendance at the Opera House to-night. By the way, the picture of Gen, Lee, which was exhibited for the second time last evening, by request, was superb, and in itself well orth the price of admission.

No stronger evidence could have been fur-nished of the privation felt by our community, nished of the privation felt by our community, in the temporary suspension of entertainments at the Academy of Music, than the immense throng which filled the temple of the drama last evening. Every available place, either for sitting or standing, was occupied, and a cheering spectacle of beauty in bright adornments met the eye of the gazer as he looked over balconies, orchestra circle, and the intervening spaces. The fame of Mr. Owens had preceded him, and, as Dr. Ollspod, he fully vindicated his claims to the high niche assigned him. The gay, sprightly, ever facetious and ready The gay, sprightly, ever facetious and ready doctor has been fully conceived by him, and was as fully and as effectively portrayed. Nature has given him a face so facile and mobile in its versatility of expression that the vast auditory was never free during his presence from a risible convulsion. We have never seen an assemblage so thoroughly and so continu-ally pleased. His "Solon Shingle" gave opportunity for a different caste of delineation and his spectators seemed equally carried away by his quaint personation. The company well supports him, and is deserving of most honorable mention.
