PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION LAW. The Secretary of State has consulted prominent légal gentlemen of both parties in regard to the law in Presidential elections. In the opinion of these gentlemen the 3d Section of Chapter 45 Laws of 1868 is still in force, to wit:

"This election shall be conducted and the returns made as nearly as may be directed in relation to the election of State officers and representatives in Congress, except as herein otherwise expressed."

In this view the law of 1872, chapter 185, is applicable to the election as far as may be. Dates which in this law are designated for the State election should be approximated in the ensuing one; Registration should begin at once in accordance with sections 6, 7 and 8 of the Act of 1872.

In every county in Indiana to-day there have been Liberal demonstrations. At Kendellville, in Noble county, Gov Austin Blair attracted quite as great a following, and spoke in the afternoon and evening to undiminished numbers. Col Grosvenor at Vincennes drew a large audience, while at Richmond Gov Koerner, of Illinois, drew the masses of his countrymen from all the neighboring districts, and addressed them in the afternoon and evening in their language. Senators Trumbull and Doolittle, the first at South Bend and the latter at Newcastle, Henry county, spoke to the greatest crowds that

As to the importation of negroes, the trade is really going on with rapidity and moderate secrecy. I investigated the matter in the extreme southern part of the State, and have the testimony of residents that an unaccountable tide of negro emigration has set in from Kentucky.

Perhaps the most significant attempt to swear in the votes of clubs of young lads whose ages range from 17 to 20, is not well known and cannot be ascertained. This business is regularly systematized, and in all the Grant demonstrations throughout the State I have noticed large numbers of these immature citizens thrust forward in defiance of law and decency.

the whiles are disloyal and must be sub-

years of peace, this their testimony of their own success-this is their own

We learn that a small colored boy, about 8 years of age, by the name of Harris Hawkins, fell out of a second story window in this city on Sunday night last, while under the influence of a fit of somnambulism, and has since died of the injuries received. On the night in question he was seen at the open window by parties who resided in the adjoining house, his form and features being rendered distinct to their vision by the flashes of lightning, which it will be remembered were

him in the act of falling from the window.

Dastardly Outrage. Yesterday morning, between 7 and 8 o'clock, three colored boys were passing the residence of Mr. P. Gillican, on the corner of Eighth and Dock streets, when one of them pulled a paling off the fence and commenced dragging it across the others, the noise from which aroused the dog on the premises and the animal set up a furious barking. Mrs. Gillican, her husband having but a few moments before left for his place of business, and she and the remainder of the family being at the breakfast table, went to the dining room window and put her head out to see what was the matter. She saw the boys and knew the cause of the disturbance, but resolved to say nothing to them for fear they might retort with impudence. The boy who had the paling in his hand, however, did not need such an incentive to display his brutal instincts, for as soon as he discovered Mrs. G. at the window and in the act of retiring, he immediately hurled the paling at her, the missile passing through the open window and striking her in the back. Astonished at this dastardly assault, made upon her without the slightest provocation on her part, she picked up the paling and threw it into the street, asking the boys what they meant by acting in that outrageous manner and remarking that if a policeman were near she would have them arrested. In the meantime the boy had again seized the paling and while she was still speaking he for the second time hurled it at her, but observing his motions she withdrew her head and the missile struck the window and fell into the yard. Being now thoroughly alarmed she retreated into
