

THE GREENEY ELECTION.

Since the death of Horace Greeley the question has arisen, for whom shall his votes in the Electoral College be cast?

The situation is singular. A Presidential candidate dies before the election is fully over according to the law.

For whom shall Mr. Greeley's votes be cast? He carried six States, Maryland, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Texas.

Again, if these 66 or 74 votes be cast for Grant, where was the use of the Liberal movement against Grant and the corruptions of his Administration?

No. These votes cannot be cast for Grant and Wilson. They were cast by the people against them and they must be cast in the Electoral College against the Radical candidates.

If they are not to be cast under any circumstances in opposition to the will of the people, how then, since the man for whom the people voted they should be cast, are they to be counted? Clearly not as blanks, as the World proposes.

They voted for Horace Greeley as their first choice and B. Gratz Brown as their second. For, choosing Brown as their Vice President they virtually chose him as their President by second choice, for in the event of the death of the President, the Vice-President by our Constitution becomes President.

Any other course would not reflect the will of the people. How much better every way would it be if only the direct vote of the people were necessary in choosing Presidents and Vice Presidents.

Yesterday the Forty-third Congress convened its third or last session. This is usually called the "short term."

The question is, "What sort of legislation shall we have?" If Congress will drop politics—and since the dominant party have everything their own sweet way why may not the National Legislature drop it "just for this time?"—it will be much better for the nation and tend to the establishment of permanent good feeling in the sections and the real unification of the country.

The opportunity is admirable. The country needs rest from political agitation. It needs legislation on its material interests. We hope the sitting Congress will forbear the wretched tinkering with our section which has disgraced it and its two immediate predecessors. "Let us have peace."

TRADE OF WILMINGTON. We publish to-day a communication from Magnolia, to which we invite the attention of our merchants. We think our correspondent and those for whom he speaks are in error as to the existence of any "ring" here to force producers or country merchants to sell their cotton and other produce only through certain channels.

This is an important question, however, and we will be glad to hear from some of our merchants. Our columns are open to all interested.

A valuable horse belonging to the Rochester fire department lay dying of the "epizootic." A fire alarm sounded, and the noble animal, true to his impulses, raised himself upon his feet and fell back dead.

Incredible as it may seem, some of the wisest planters of Jamaica live on the coffee grounds.

TIMELY TOPICS.

At a banquet at Buckingham Palace Hotel, London, last Thursday, in honor of Thanksgiving, Mr. Gladstone, M. P., Gen. Cernola, Lord W. Hay, Baron Emile Erlanger, Mr. Baxter, M. P., Sir Charles Wheatstone, Mr. Pender, M. P., Sir James Anderson, Admiral Richards, Mr. Masson, M. P., Mr. McArthur, M. P., Mr. Varley, Mr. Siemens and other gentlemen were present.

Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Fields made speeches, and many national toasts were drunk. Speaking of the happy relations now existing, and which all good men hope will continue to exist between the two countries almost "bone of one bone and flesh of one flesh," the English Premier happily said: "I have said that we have had the most powerful impulses to union and concord; I have said we have many occasions of difference and of controversy, but the occasions of difference and of controversy were in their nature temporary and capable of being settled by intelligent, good sense, and friendly temper."

The time of that settlement has now happily arrived when we can speak of it not as a thing to be desired, but as a consummation which has happily been accomplished. Those temporary differences have passed away, the motive to union remain. They are not like other controversies, marked with a fugitive and transitory character. Every one of them is profoundly rooted in the circumstances of the two countries, and in the character of the people by which they are inhabited, so that, although there has been in other times a strong and unconquerable sentiment tending toward fraternal union, and yet that sentiment has heretofore been liable to be conquered by opposite and contending currents, now it can move with a full and equal flow, with nothing to interrupt it, and nothing to fix the term of the duration of the feeling which we rejoice to know to exist.

An amendment to the Constitution of South Carolina providing for a limitation of the debt in the future to its present amount, except by a two-thirds vote of the people was almost unanimously ratified by the popular vote at the late election. It remains for the Legislature to ratify it to make it a part of the law. The South Carolinian desires to have this done as quickly as possible. It says: Let us have no bonds, Blue Ridge Scrip or anything of that kind. It is said that every dog will have his day. The rogues have had their day in South Carolina, and it is high time now that they were stopped. The great evil of our day, that which most threatens to prove our Republican form of government a failure, is the corrupt tampering of legislatures with the public finances. Legislation has been perverted to jobbing. The powers intended to be used in the advancement of the public interest are turned to the furtherance of personal ends. This great and growing evil we are called upon to combat, and there is no way to check it so successfully and so permanently as the curtailment of the powers of the General Assembly in the imposition of debts and liabilities upon the State. It is proper and expedient at times for a government to incur debt in order to effect certain desirable ends which private capital is not able to accomplish. But South Carolina is not now in a condition to engage in works of public improvement. Her people have been impoverished, many of them bankrupt by the late war. What is principally wanted in our government is economy, cheapness. Let our public burdens be as light as possible, so that our people may have a fair opportunity to repair their broken fortunes, and foreign capital may be invited here to assist in the development of our great and varied natural resources.

PROMINENT PERSONALS. — Stanley talked Africa to Froude's Ireland the other evening at the Lotus.

— The press of the country speak with warmth of the greatness and shining virtues of Mr. Greeley.

— The first volume of the history of the war of 1859 has just been published in Vienna by the Austro-Hungarian General Staff.

— Nilson writes to a Parisian friend that her first night at St. Petersburg was an "ovation triumph to grow wild over."

— John Hay talks of starting a new evening paper in St. Louis. The Chicago Post thinks that unless he has two or three greenback factories to draw upon, there is likely to be some badly pressed Hay in that locality.

— The Lydia Thompson burlesquers appeared in "Kenilworth" Friday evening at the Olympic, New York. The attendance was large and the performance a jolly one. Lydia, as the Earl of Leicester, was a fair and rollicking a lord as could be desired, says the Star.

— Theatrical attractions in Boston last week were: Miss Cushman, as Lady Macbeth, etc., at the Boston Theatre; Mr. and Mrs. Boucicault, in "Arrah-na-Pogue," at the Globe Theatre; "Article 47," at the Boston Museum; "Le Roi Carotte," at the St. James Theatre; and Varieties at the Howard Athenaeum. Theatres seem to flourish there, notwithstanding the recent calamitous conflagration—perhaps all the more in consequence of it.

— Princes Bismarck recently said, in a letter to a Prussian functionary, that "Prussia sees without displeasure a Republic established in France, believing that any attempt to restore a monarchy would be the signal for civil war. At the same time, if the Radicals came into power, Prussia would change her attitude, refuse to accept the instalments of the indemnity before becoming due, and prolong the occupation of French territory." President Thiers has been unofficially informed.

— The Heard County (Ga.) News states that Joseph E. Brown is going to the West Indies to "re-Cuba-rate" his health.

PALMETTO LEAVES.

Governor Moses will be inaugurated, it is said, to-day. In a runaway accident a colored man named Harry Vandiver was killed last Tuesday. So we learn from the Anderson Intelligencer.

The Orangeburg News tells us that Governor Scott last week appointed Judge T. C. Andrews County Treasurer for that county vice T. K. Sapporatas.

The Anderson Intelligencer regrets to learn that the gin house belonging to Mr. John C. Gantt, in the Forks, was destroyed by fire last week. The loss is estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000. The impression seems to be that this is the work of an incendiary.

Says the South Carolinian: It is reported that J. H. Rainey and H. J. Maxwell, both prominent colored politicians, have entered the field for the United States Senatorship. The candidates so far reported are Scott, Patterson, Elliott, Graham, Moses, Sr., Chamberlain, Sawyer, Rainey and Maxwell. Elliott appears to be ahead.

We understand that Ole Bull has, through his agent, Mr. J. R. Trumbull, expressed his willingness to give a grand concert in aid of the Confederate Monument Fund of Columbia. One of the Gulf States will be selected, as it will not be in the power of the celebrated artist to give more than one concert in Columbia, and that will be on Tuesday evening of next week.

The Barnwell Sentinel says of the recent Blackville Fair: Notwithstanding the inclement weather, however, there was a good turn out, greater interest was manifested than heretofore, and the various articles on exhibition were more numerous, and surpassed those exhibited last year. The first days' racing was between Bill Stearns, Bob Shelton and Girl of My Heart—distance, 2 mile heats and repeat. Girl of My Heart, owned by Col. Cash, carried off the prize, $750.

The Tribune Will Survive. [From the Philadelphia Press.] There will be any number of dismal prophecies to-day to preach the downfall of the Tribune. They forget that the Tribune is a newspaper—the creation perhaps of one man, but a necessity now to thousands. A great journal, perhaps the greatest in the world, in some features it will live to be Mr. Greeley's best monument. In that beautiful passage of his autobiography before quoted in these columns, he showed his heart's ambition to be this: "I am a vapor; popularity an accident; riches take wings; the only earthly certainty is oblivion. No man can foresee what a day may bring forth, and those who cheer to-day will often curse to-morrow; and yet I cherish the hope that the journal I projected and established will live and flourish long after I shall have mouldered into forgotten dust, being guided by a larger wisdom, a more unerring sagacity to discern the right, though not by a more unflinching readiness to embrace and defend it at whatever personal cost, and that the stone which covers my ashes may bear to future eyes the still intelligible inscription, 'FOUNDER OF THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.'"

Mr. Greeley's Life Insured. Many years ago the Tribune Association, foreseeing the shock which Mr. Greeley's death would give the Tribune, insured his life to the amount of $100,000, for the benefit of the stockholders in common. This life insurance policy has been kept good, and will accrue to the Tribune whenever its illustrious founder breathes his last. At the time of effecting the insurance, the Tribune's stock was changing hands at from $3,500 to $4,000 a share, showing the total valuation of the institution to have been from $350,000 to $400,000. One hundred thousand dollars was then viewed as a very moderate estimate of the pecuniary loss which the Tribune would sustain in the death of Horace Greeley; but the chances of that dire calamity to the Tribune seemed so remote that no motion was made to increase the life insurance, not even after the hundred shares which represent the entire Tribune Association had risen to $10,000 each. Some of the Tribune's stock was recently sold at a smaller figure; but the stockholders still estimate the entire property at a round million.—N. Y. Sun, of Friday.

FAR SOUTH. — The Atlanta Sun is now published only as a morning paper. — Congressman Beck, of Georgia, has taken unto himself a bride. — The editor of the Valdosta (Ga.) Times is down with the "epizooty." — The canning of green turtles is becoming quite an industry in Texas. — Hawkinsville, Ga., claims the traditional hen that lays an egg every day and two on Sunday. — That portion of Northeast Georgia south of the Currahee Ridge, is fast becoming a cotton-producing ridge, and the staple is flowing into the Athens market in unexampled quantities.

Palmetto paper is exciting the attention of capitalists just now. Mr. Henry Banks, of Atlanta, is organizing a stock company to introduce the manufacture of this paper into Georgia. The proposed location of this mill is on a water power in Lowndes county, in the midst of palmetto growth, of immense capacity, sufficient to make 30,000 pounds of paper per day, and a sufficient quantity of this plant grows within an area of ten miles to supply a 20,000 pound mill a year.

Such is the News. — The Sheriff of Warren, so the Gazette says, has a negro boy who can stand a heavy wagon running over him without injury. — The Raleigh News whispers this confidentially: Gen. L. G. Estes, who is indicted in the U. S. Circuit Court now in session in this city for embezzlement of public monies, yes, many thousands, appeared before the Court this week, and in a very private way, gave bond for his appearance at the next term of the Court for $10,000. But as we got this information in a private way, we will ask our readers not to say anything about it—it's a secret.

Appalling Scene. Last Sunday a calamity took place in this city that filled with horror the stoutest heart. The Democratic flag-staff, near the City Hotel, being discovered to be leaning from its base, it was conjectured that it was on the point of falling, and the City Trustees set about having it taken down. To this end they employed Nicholo Blacovich, of this city, to unship the topmast. He ascended by a rope to a distance of ninety feet—the length of the mainmast—when the pole fell with a tremendous crash, tearing away a corner of the hotel porch and shade trees in front. Nicholo was killed instantly. The disaster took place in the presence of a host of citizens—men, women and children—many of whom turned away their faces from the awful scene. Deceased was a single man, and has a father living. The flag-staff was rotten at the base, and eaten away by grubs.—Tribune (Cal.) Independent.

1840 1872 The Most Popular Medicine Extant. OVER THIRTY YEARS SINCE THE INTRODUCTION OF PERRY DAVIS' Pain Killer.

After thirty years trial, the "Pain-Killer" may be justly styled the great medicine of the world, for there is no region of the globe into which it has not found its way and none where it has not been largely used and highly prized. Moreover, there is no climate to which it has not proved itself to be adapted for the cure of a considerable variety of diseases; it is admirably suited for every race. It has lost none of its good names by repeated trials, but it continues to occupy a prominent position in every family medicine chest; and is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma, and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. No article ever attained to such unbounded popularity. The various ills for which the Pain-Killer is an unfailing cure, are too well known to require recapitulation in this advertisement. As an external and internal medicine the Pain-Killer stands unrivalled. Thirty years is certainly a long enough time to prove the efficacy of any medicine, and that the Pain-Killer is deserving of all its proprietors claim for it is amply proved by the unparalleled popularity it has attained. It is a sure and effective remedy. It is sold in almost every country in the world, and is becoming more and more popular every year. Its healing properties have been fully tested, all over the world, and it need only to be known to be prized.
