The News adds: "There has been an apparent deficiency of engines on this road for some time, and we are glad to know that the prosperity of the road warrants further additions in the way of rolling stock." All very good; but, if the statements of travellers are to be relied on, several miles of new iron on the road would add to the safety of passengers as well as to the receipts of the Company.

An Abandoned Vessel. Under this head the New York Herald of "An illustration of the effects of the rough weather which has lately been experienced along the bleak coast of North Carolina, where the Gulf Stream contends with the wind-borne current from Chesapeake Bay, will be noted in the report of the wreck of the schooner Hannah Little, brought to Fortress Monroe on Tuesday by the revenue cutter steamer cruising off Cape Hatteras. All the schooner's equipment above deck had been carried away except the mainmast and jibboom. Her two anchors were gone, as were all her sails and rigging.'

This is all very well; but the Herald adds: "No part of her deck load was left, and, vorse than all, the fate of her crew is an unanswered question. We must hope that, seeing no chance to save their ship, they escaped by the boats and may yet be found alive, picked up by some passing craft, or that they were enabled to reach the low, sandy North State shore in safety."

Now the Herald is an enterprising sheet, Dr. Livingstone, the great African explorer, would swear to this, as would thousands of others; but for once the wide-awake "Thunderer" has been caught napping. In its is sue of the 30th of December it gives a very interesting and graphic account of the wreck of the schooner Hannah Little, which was copied into this paper, together with the rescue of the officers and crew by the steamship Regulator from this port and their safe arrival at New York; and all this after the poor fellows had been clinging to the rigging for twenty-six hours. And now comes the Herald, three weeks afterwards, with the doleful statement that "the fate of her crew is an unanswered question," &c.

Norfolk, Wilmington and Charleston Railroad.

Gen. Charles B. Stuart, President of the Norfolk, Wilmington and Charleston Railroad Company, arrived in this city yesterday morning. At night a meeting of the Committee appointed at the recent meeting at the Chamber of Commerce was held at the First National Bank, at which the plans, purposes and objects of the enterprise were discussed. It was then resolved that a public meeting of citizens be called for Tuesday next, at eleven o'clock, at the Commercial Exchange, at which Gen. Stuart will be present and explain the objects, intentions and resources of the proposed road.

It is of the utmost importance that there should be a large attendance at this meeting on the part of our people. All are more or less interested in this scheme for the advancement and promotion of our city in a commercial point of view agd should cheerfully lend it their countenance and support. Let there be concert of action, coupled with zeal and energy, and the cheerful whistle of the locomotive will soon be heard on our Janauschek.

A telegram from Richmond, received last night, says: "Janauschek has received another grand triumph in this city. Her audiences each night have assumed the character of ovations. She leaves to-morrow for her Southern tour.'

No better evidence is wanted to satisfy our people of the superb character of the entertainment to which they will be treated at the Opera House to-morrow night. That there will be a rousing house on that occasion is a fixed fact, provided no unforeseen event occurs to prevent it, and we predict that as great a triumph awaits the great "Queen of Tragedy" here as was vouchsafed her in Richmond.

We publish to-day an interesting sketch of the leading events in the life of Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots. Those who expect to attend the Opera House to-morrow evening should read the sketch carefully. Schiller's great play of "Mary Stuart," in which Janauschek will appear, is founded on the historical narrative, though it commences at a comparatively late period in the life of Mary.

Give it a Coat.

The City Hall is sadly in need of a coat; not to protect it from the weather merely, but mainly to render its appearance more prepossessing. At present it looks very shabby, its outside adornments not at all corresponding with the inside "fixins." If our "City Fathers" would but order for it a good coat of paint what a wonderful improvement it would make. Do it!

- The indications are in favor of a cold

That Proclamation.

As we predicted, the proclamation of President Grant, prohibiting, after the 4th of March next, persons holding any civil office by appointment under the Constitution and laws of the United States from holding any office under State or Territorial government, or under the charter or ordinances of any municipal corporation, which was published in yesterday's STAR, created quite a commotion among the office-holders in this city affected by this unlooked-for thrust from their model President. It came upon them like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, and great was the fluttering among the "wounded birds." But while the "ins" of the party were so greatly "obfusticated," the "outs" were "tickled to death" at the prospect which it gave them of sharing in the spoils which have been monopolized by their more fortunate brethren of the "party of great moral ideas."

Below we give a list of those affected by the proclamation alluded to: Col. E. R. Brink, Postmaster, County Treasurer and City Alderman. Denard Rumley, Collector of Customs and City Alderman.

Owen Burney, Inspector of Customs and City Alderman. George L. Mabson, Inspector of Customs and State Senator. James Heaton, Assistant Assessor of Internal Revenue and a member of the Legis-

Jas. A. Lowrey, Inspector of Customs and County Commissioner. E. M. Shoemaker, Inspector of Customs and County Commissioner. There may be others, but the above comprises the list as far as we are at present

The Schooner Harriet N. Rogers. The Norfolk Journal of vesterday learns from Capt. Stoddard, of the wrecking steamer B. & J. Baker, which arrived at that port on Thursday morning, that the Schooner heretofore reported ashore on Body's Island is the Harriet N. Rogers, from Philadelphia for Wilmington, with coal. The schooner went ashore during a le at 5 o'clock on Sunday morning last. She is breaking up rapidly, and will prove a total loss. Her captain and crew took to the boats as soon as she was beached and succeeded in reaching the shore, where they now are, endeavoring to save all they can from the wreck. - Last Sunday eyening, says the Sentinel, a Mr. Moore, residing in Yancey county, got into an affray with a Mr. Brackins, of the same county, about some reese, and the latter stabbed the former, rom which he died next day. Brackins has fled the county. Moore is said to have been a desperate character. The Saturday before a difficulty occurred between a Mr. Washburn and Mr. Boon of the same county, in which Washburn was shot and killed. This was considered justifiable by the magistrate.
