Norfolk, Wilmington and Charleston Local Dots. Railroad-The Meeting Yesterday.

The meeting at the Commercial Exchange irregularly. yesterday morning, called for the purpose of taking into consideration the construction of the proposed coast line road from Norfolk via Wilmington to Charleston was largely attended and the liveliest interest was manifested by our business men in the ultimate success of the scheme. To give some idea of the various business interests represented in this gathering, which may prove in the future to have been fraught with so much importance to the well-being of our "city by the sea," we publish the following names as comprising the most prominent of those present: Donald Mc-

to order, and upon his motion Mr. Donald McRae was called to the chair and Messrs. J. C. Mann and W. H. Bernard were requested to act as Secretaries. The Chairman, in a few pertinent remarks, explained the object of the meeting. Upon the conclusion of his remarks Gen. Stuart was called upon to explain the plans, resources, etc., of the corporation which he represented. He referred in the outset to what he considered the ruinous distinction between local and through freight; and urged the importance of adopt-

Reminiscences and Impressions-The Lecture of Bishop Atkinson Last Night at the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association were comfortably filled last evening by an intelligent audience which had assembled to hear the lecture that Right Rev. Bishop Atkinson had consented to deliver before the Association on "Reminiscences of Some of the Eminent Men Seen and Heard, and Remarkable Buildings Visited in England." The learned lecturer gave a rapid, but clear and vivid portraiture of Derby (who was Premier at the time of his visit), Russell, Gladstone, Disraeli, Bishops Winchester and Peterborough, and John Bright-the leading orators and statesmen of Great Britain in the present age .-Lord Derby he regarded as almost to the fact that stock had already been sub- a model statesman and an orator of Thos. J. Burnett was granted license to retail spirituous liquors.

The committee (including the County Treasurer) appointed to examine the accounts of county officers, reported that they had examined the following: W. J. Bivens, late Register of Deeds; Jos. C. Hill, Register of Deeds; A. R. Black, Sheriff, and J. C. Mann, Clerk of the Superior Court, and find that W. J. Bivens collected on marriage licenses during his term of office, for the county, $352.50; that he has paid to the former Treasurer $195 90, leaving a balance due of $156 60, less 4 per cent. commission on the total amount collected, amounting to $14 10, which, deducted from the last balance, leaves $142 50 now due the county by the late Register, which the Committee suggested could remain unpaid by the late Register until the next meeting of the Board.

In the case of J. C. Hill, the Committee find that he has issued up to the 31st of December, 1872, 146 marriage licenses, for which fifty cents each is due the county, making $73, less 4 per cent. commission, aggregating $2 92, leaving a balance of $70 08, which amount has been paid into the County Treasury.

The Sheriff has collected on Schedule "B," for the county, three thousand two hundred and forty-four dollars and fortysix cents, for the quarter ending September 30th, 1872. This sum, after deducting the Commission of 5 per cent., amounting to one hundred and sixty-two dollars and twenty-two cents, leaves a net balance due the county of three thousand and eightytwo dollars and twenty-four cents, which amount he has paid over to the County Treasurer. Appeals from the Third Judicial District submitted the proposition that within one week after the sum of $50,000 had been subscribed in this county the engineers should be on the ground, and when the amount had been swelled to $100,000 he pledged that in one week thereafter the work of building the road Northward from this city would be commenced. He stated, in reference to the matter of bonds, that it had been decided to issue them in small amounts, and make them payable in lands belonging to the company, which they may acquire by donation or purchase. He remarked that the

He discoursed at length on the difference in cost between the broad and narrow guage, showing the many advantages possessed by the latter, especially as to its cheapness. In conclusion, he stated that he was will ing to give this county the control of its road until the line was completed, giving the stockholders here the benefit of its earnings along the Sound route probably for a year or two.

After the conclusion of his remarks Maj. Engelhard offered the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the committee to solicit subscriptions be continued, and requested to proceed immediately with that duty. The remarks of Gen. Stuart, of which

Gladstone was the man of universal culture, profound, fond of investigation even to excess, quick, generous, sincere but apt to be led into embracing new theories constantly by the ardor of his nature and the peculiar, catholic cast of his intellect. The great Israelite on the other hand was nimble, subtle, brilliant, with a certain sort of sincerity and a basis of Christian belief below all his arts and intrigues. The sketch of these most remarkable of living English statesmen was exceedingly interesting, and there were one or two strikingly original touches in the drawing. The Bishop described a Parliament scene and the prominent actors .-British oratory was superior to that of all modern countries because British freedom was greater. Chatham was the great modern orator. The lecturer pronounced a glowing eulogium on the free institutions of Britain. dows of stores and dwelling houses, which

In the second branch of his subject, that concerning remarkable public buildings, Bishop Atkinson confined his attention exclusively to the noble religious edifices which were products of the grandest skill, conceptions of the loftiest imagination, superior to even the wondrous temples and monuments of Greece and Egypt, because their erection was inspired by Christian devotion and they have been hallowed by the presence of the Church's purest and ablest and noblest through long centuries. Descriptions of St. Pauls, Westminster Abbey, York Minster (where he preached to over 3,000 persons), were given.

But we have not space or time at this hour to particularize the features of this interesting and instructive lecture. It was a subject to enlist the sympathy of the learned speaker; and, it is needless to add, having enlisted his sympathy it aroused that of his cultivated and conservative minded auditors. Like all of the Bishop's discourses, the lecture was delivered in chastest English; and the manner was all that the occasion demanded in ease, grace and dignity. The Young Men's Christian Association and the Wilmington Library Association did well in procuring the delivery of this interesting talk on English statesmen and English churches. The city has cause to thank them for their efforts in providing substantial intellectual entertainments for these long winter evenings.
