THE SINKING OF THE NORTH

The sinking of the Australian emi grant ship North Fleet, with the loss of three hundred and twenty-five persons, by a collision with an unknown vessel, is one of the saddest events we have chronicled in many months.

The doomed ship was lying quietly at anchor when she was struck. A panic ensued, and the Captain, so it is stated, fired among the terror-stricken passengers to ensure order, so that means of escape could be devised and executed. After all his efforts the poor fellow and the larger part of the human freight under his charge were engulphed in the waters, V to see

Death in such shape is more than terrible-it is horrible. A thrill of horror is sent throughout the civilized world by the announcement. It seems that more lives could have been saved but for the panic

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Credit Mobilier, Cotton Tax. Etc. The statements of Messrs. James Brooks and Jas. W. Patterson are the principal items of interest in the Credit Mobilier investigation of Tuesday. Mr. Brooks' explanation, while far from satisfactory, leaves a more favorable impression on the mind of the reader than any he has made before. Briefly, he said that he had no idea that there was anything wrong in the Credit Mobilier invest-ment which he advised his son-in-law to make: that he had no personal interest in that transaction, but lent the money to his relative, Mr. Neilson, as he would have done had he seen any other highly flattering chance for a profitable investment. As for Mr. Patterson, who is a Senator from New Hampshire, he has the same general opinion of the morality of the transaction in which he was engaged as Mr. Boyer and Mr. Kelley seem still to have.

Oakes Ames, in his testimony before Judge Poland's committee, testifield that he agreed to give to Mr. Colfax twenty shares of Credit-Mo-bilier stock, but did not remember when the agreement was made. Witness got the stock and received the dividend upon it of eighty per cent. in bonds, accounted to Mr. Colfax for the bonds which were sold by witness, and Mr. Colfax gave witness a check for five hundred and thirtyfour dollars and seventy-two cents, dated March 3th, 1868, upon the Ser geant-at-arms. In the June follow-ing gave Mr. Colfax a check for $1,200, dividends on Credit Mobilier Mr- Colfax asserted to the committee under oath that he did not remember of having received a single dollar from Ames.

With regard to Senator Wilson, is recollection was, and his books showed, that he had settled with Mr.

Mr. Ames said that Mr. Allison, of lows, bought one thousand dollars' worth of Credit Mobilier stock, and witness got it for him with the eighty per cent. dividend on Union Pacific bonds, sold the bonds, and Mr. Allison settled by a check for two hundred and seventy-one dollars balance, which settled for the bonds and in-

As to Speaker Blaine, he had no further statement to make. He never paid witness anything nor did witness pay him anything. His name was not upon the books of witness at all. There was a talk between us, and that

Ames also testified as to his transactions with Dawes, with whom he had quite an account, having bought bonds for him to the extent of three or four thousand dollars. The witness said Dawes got frightened at the Duff Green suit, and a settlement was made with him in December,

The cases of Representatives Kelly and Garland, witness said, were similar. They both received a dividend on stock that they paid for, but which Ames kept possession of. Concerning Bingham, Ames said he received $2,000 from him to invest in Credit-Mobilier stock, so invested it, and Bingham received the benefits and dividends from it. Ames testified that he had a conversation with Mr. Boutwell, but he declined to take any stock.

The testimony excites great comment, and the congressional menagerie is considerably stirred up.

There is much discussion of opinion n the House Ways and Means Committee in respect to the bill to repeal the cotton tax and a portion of the committee are hostile to any refund-ing measures. The difficulty seems to be to get the subject before the House. Mr. Beck has drawn a bill which he will endeavor to have reported proposing to pay the producers two-thirds of the tax collected on the crops produced in 1866 and '67, that proportion having been exported, proof to be taken before commissioners appointed for each State by the U. S. Circuit Courts, and subject to review by a revisory board at Washington. Mr. Beck is of opinion that this is the only bill which can be got through the committee, if any can. It is hoped that five of the committee can be induced to agree to it, but this is not certain.

Mr. Cox's speech on Shellabarger's Bureau of Commerce bill was the boldest speech for the freedom of the seas and the liberties of trade made this session. It is believed that the bill is killed. One of the points made by Mr. Cox with the most emphasis was that when Congress had voted the Treasury empty for the internal improvement system, which the House had favored by initiative measures, there would be nothing left for the additional piracy proposed by this bill. The name of carpet-baggers is now synonymous with freasury plunderers.

The House Banking and Currency Committee Tuesday authorized Mr. Merriam to report his bill for the repeal of the usury section of the national currency act. The hill also allows national banks to receive or pay interest at the rate allowed by the State in which the bank is located, and provides that it shall be lawful to contract to pay and receive interest at any rate if the contract is in writing; otherwise not.

Miscellaneous.

The awful tempest that swoope down on the prairie State of Minne sota lasted without intermission for over fifty hours. As many as 200 lives were lost, and the snowdrifts mounted higher than the houses. Babies were frozen stark at their mother's breasts, and the scene presented after the burricane ceased was altogether more appalling than any ever yet witnessed on the tornado-swept plains of the West.

Janauschek's gross receipts in Rich mond for the four nights and matines were $4,100.

A Young Man Assaulted on the Street. Mr. W. B. Turlington informs us that he has been the victim of two separate assaults within the past week. The first occurred on Monday night last. He was passing through a sort of alley way near the Railroad, on Second street, when some one who had been concealed suddenly sprang upon him and cut at him with a knife, which made a rent in his cost, vest and undergarments, but did not wound his person. Mr. Turlington discharged his pistol at the fellow as he retreated, but it was too dark to take sure aim. On Wednesday night about a quarter after 8 o'clock, as he was passing the same place, the identical person, as he has reason to believe, again sprang out of his covert upon him, brandishing a knife, with which he struck at him and inflicted a slight wound upon his hand as he raised his arm to ward off the blow, besides cutting his clothing, as in the first instance. Mr. T. again drew his pistol and fired two shots at the villain as he retreated, but he thinks without effect. He could not distinguish the color of the individual owing to the darkness, and cannot imagine the object of the assaults, as he is not aware that any person has any enmity against him.

The Old Cape Fear Pilot-A Response from One of his Heirs. Some weeks since Adjutant General Townsend, of the U.S. Army, wrote to the Secretary of State at Raleigh asking information relative to the surviving heirs of one Benjamin Craig, who appears to have been appointed a pilot on the Cape Fear River about the year 1797. The Raleigh Era gave publicity to the fact and the Charleston Courier copied the paragraph, which has elicited a response from Mrs. Ann Robinson, of Charleston, who writes to the Secretary of State as follows:

I write in reply to an advertisement which came out in the Charleston Courier. I am one of his grand-daughters. He was my mother's father. He was a pilot on the Cape Fear and also a soldier and served through the whole revolution war. My mother died the 10th of February, 1872 She left six daaghters. As far as we know we are his nearest relatives. There is another one of his grandchildren living in North Carolina. There are old North Carolinians here in Charleston who are ready to prove that I am his grandchild.

There are doubtless some of the heirs of the "Old Pilot" among the Craigs of this city. If so, they should make themselves

Foreible Trespass.

Justice Cassidey issued a warrant yesterday afternoon for the arrest of John Bell, a promineut and well-known colored man of Rocky Point, on the charge of forcible trespass. The circumstances leading to the issue of the warrant are as follows: Mitchell Moore, a colored man living near Rocky Point, hauled eight barrels of tar to Ashton for shipment to this place. The barrels had his name upon them, but during his absence Julius Moore, a brother of Mitchell, appeared and laid claim to four of the barrels, erasing the name of his brother and marking them with his own instead. A short time afterwards Bell, who is a deputy tax collector, came along and levied upon two of the barrels marked in Julius Moore's name for taxes due by that individual. Mitchell Moore was present and urged his claim to the property without effect, whereupon he applied for a warrant for the arrest of the officer who made the seizure, alleging that he has positive proof that all the tar belongs to him.

Charges Not Sustained. Rob't Loftin and Wm. Crawford, both colored, were arraigned before Justice Cassidey, yesterday, the former being charged by Mr. T. B. Carney, of this county, with injuring his stock and the latter with having an unlawful fence. It seems that Mr. Carney's cow got into Crawford's field and complainant charged that, while the two men mentioned were driving her out, Loftin shot and badly wounded the animal. After a long investigation the cases were dis missed at the cost of the prosecutor.

Tled the Knot.

Require Cassidey was called upon at his office yesterday afternoon to perform the marriage ceremony between a colored couple, the groomsman hailing from Cape. Fear and the bride from Lincoln Township, the former being 50 and the latter 19 years of age. The 'squire was equal to the occa-sion and soon said the words that sent them on their way rejoicing.

The Approaching Concert. The long-looked for Concert will certainiy come off on Thursday next, the 30th inst., and we learn that the programme selected is an extremely fine one, comprising the highest order of classic, lyric and operatic music. As this enterprise has for its object the laudable purpose of aiding our Jewish fellow-citizens in the erection of a suitable Synagogue in this city, it is to be hoped that our people generally will patronize the entertainment, especially as we feel assured that it will be a rare m usi cal treat which will be fully enjoyed and appreciated by all who have an ear for 'sweet sounds" either of a vocalistic or instrumental character.

By the way, we learn that an experienced Professor of music has consented to assist in the performance.

The box-sheet will be open at Heinsberger's Book Store next Monday, the 27th inst. Price of admission, $1 00. No extra charge for reserved seats.

Beyond a hole punched in her stern the hull has apparantly received no injury.
