Legislature the people must look to save the Western North Carolina Railroad in the Western North Carolina Railroad in which the State has four and individuals two millions of dollars. There is hut one way to do it. Borrow money to pay the debt and levy a tax to pay the money borrowed. We have not canvassed, but we think a half-dozen gentlemen in this city can be found who will borrow the money if the Legislature will levy a tax to meet the debt they will make in borrowing the money. If the Legislature will not levy a tax to pay $2,000 to saye $6,000,000, how can it be expected they will levy a tax to pay any portion of the State debt. > The lecture was a wonderful illustration of the extraordinary versatility of Gov. Vance which is almost sufficient to earn for him the tribute accorded to Hamilton-that he wielded in "law, statesmanship, letters, and practical affairs" a power which made him superior to all rivals in each of these varied fields of endeavor. It is some-Argus, who were burned quite severely in thing marvellous to see Vance, the eloquent and fearless "Tribune of the People," who Ed. In a letter to the editor of this paper; too late for to-day's Issue, Captain Robinson says: 'Therefore, you may write me down a Republican, but none the less a Confederate, proud of the past; and, although I do not expect to escape detraction, I predict that in good time, when reason rather than impulse takes control of the Southern mind, as I believe it has taken control of mine, I shall not stand alone as an Old Line Whig supporter, from a Southern standpoint, of General Grant's Administration, nor as a Southern advocate of his election for a third term.'" fairly claim to be unsurpassed upon the shimp—that peculiarly American arens of eloquence, he does not need to fear comparison with those who boast the highest rhetorical grace and skill, yay at oa. 78

In his exordium, Gov. Vance gracefully and appositely introduced the cluster legend of the joyous exclamations of the Greeks of Xenophon retreating from Asia when they beheld the glittering waters of the Euxine, in illustration of the pect strong sentiment of local attachment in the breast of the mountaineer. Assuming the sentiments of local attachment and of patriotism to be identical, the lec turer gave a beautiful and pathetic analysis of the romantic attachment of the inhabitants of mountainous districts for the scenes of their nativity. Passing by an easy and graceful gradient from this ase of his subject, Gov. Vance gave an tricts of North Carolina. When the pure medicinal restorative, now so widely known as Uddiffer of Nourie's Schiedam Schnaffer, was introduced into the world under the endorsement of four thousand leading members of themedical profession, some twenty years ago, its proprietor was well aware that it could not wholly escape the penalty attached to all new and assemb preparations. He, therefore, endeavored to invest it with the strongest possible safeguard against counterfeiters and imitators, to render all attempts to pinks it difficult and dangerous. It was submitted to distinguished chemists for analysis, and pronounced by them the purest spirits ever manufactured. Its purity and properties having been thus ascertained, samples of the article were forwarded, to ten thousand physicians, including all the leading practitioners in the United States, for the purpose of experiment. A circular, requesting a trial of the preparation and report of the result, accompanied each specimen.
