JEFFERSON DAVIS.

The Secret Why He was Not Prose cuted Explained by Judge Clifford, of Massachusetts.

The Charleston Daily News, March 29, is responsible for the following revelations made by Judge Clifford last week, at a dinner party given in that city by Colonel Richard Lathers to a number of distinguished Northern gentlemen, who, at Col. Latham's table, met some of the leading gentlemen of South Carolina. The News remarks, after referring to the conversation upon the Webster-Parkham murder, in which Judge Clifford prosecuted as Attorney General of Massachusetts:

Another event of great historical interest in which Judge Clifford participated was the solemn consultation of a small number of the most able lawyers of the North at Washington, a few months after the war, upon the momentous question as to whether the Federal government should com-for his participation and leadership in the war of secession. In this council. which was surrounded at the time with the utmost secrecy, and which has never been described, were United States Attorney General Speed, Judge Clifford, the Hon. William M. Evarts, and perhaps half a dozen others, who had been selected from the whole Northern profession for their legal ability and acumen, and the result of their deliberation was the sudden abandonment of the case by the Federal Government in view of the insurmountable difficulties in the way of getting a final conviction, which were revealed by their patient study of the law bearing upon the case. Mr. Hoadley, then and now a near neighbor and intimate friend of Judge Clifford, relates that before the latter set out for Washington to join this conference he paid him (Mr. Hoadley) the compliment of calling upon him to consult upon a cr

THE MOMENTOUS QUESTION which he was about to assist in solving, and it was agreed between them that unless it were clear that the conviction of Mr. Davis would follow his trial, and that the law and the facts on the side of the prosecution would be irresistable in the Supreme Court as well as in whatever court of original jurisdiction the case might be initiated, it would be the part of wis-dom and true statesmanship as well as policy not to begin the prosecution. The conference took place, and was long, learned and profound. The federal constitution, the law of nations, the decisions of the Supreme Court in the trial of Aaron Burr, and OTHER CAUSES CELEBRES, having more or less bearing on the upon some points and agreed upon others. Some were at first strenuous for prosecution, others who had weighed the subject more carefully insisted from the first upon the futility of such a course, and finally the wiser counsels of the latter prevailed. and the proposed prosecution of Mr. Davis was, as will be remembered, suddenly abandoned, although it may doubtless be news to many of our readers to learn that this sudder change of policy was the first direct result of this solemn conclave. After the council had adjourned, and Judge Clifford had returned to his home, ford made guage: " Remarkable as the fact may er, we find that the laws of the United States are not so constructed as to afford any certainty of punish ing high treason or rebellion, and Mr. Davis if arraigned under them cannot be brought to conviction. Perhaps it is that the men who framed our fundamental law and system of government, and who were then fighting for liberty with halters about their necks, did not pay much attention to the question of punishing in the future the acts which they were committing themselves."

Cotton Factories.

We regret to see that the interest which had begun to spring up in our community in reference to the establishment of one or more cotton factories here has apparently died out. We regret it, because we are well aware that such an enterprise would be great source of benefit to our city, to the people generally and especially to those who might invest from motives of a pecuniary character. If investments in cotton factories prove profitable in localities remote from the source of its production, how can we expect them to be otherwise than remunerative here, where we have an abundance of the staple almost at our very doors. Let the subject be revived and let our men of capital ponder upon it until their eyes are opened to the great advantages which will assuredly follow the establishment of cotton factories here.

Speaking of this matter, we see by the avetteville Presouterian that the Beave Creek Factory, near Fayetteville, has 61 doms, 2,700 spindles, 24 cards, and when fully in operation will turn out 80,000 yards of sheeting per month, and use 850 bales of cotton per annum. With its two factories the Beaver Creek Company will be able to turn out 160,000 yards of sheeting per month, and will use 1,700 bales of cotton per annum. The Rockfish factory will be in operation in a few days.

Who will be the first to put the "cotton ball" in motion in Wilmington?

Charleston Demoralized.

Charleston is an exceedingly lively market for naval stores. On the 31st of March the city was in a fever of excitement over the arrival of 13 barrels of spirits turpentine. Of the effect of this inundation on prices we are not clearly informed, as the enterprising commercial reporters of the News and Courier only make their usual announcement: "No sales reported"; but we can imagine how prices must have declined in that city, so guiltless of anything like enterprise in naval stores, when it became positively known that the receipts of one day amounted to thirteen barrelsenough to supply the drug stores for an in-

We regret the thoughtlessness of the distiller who shipped so much "spirits" to Charleston at one time. Such a demoralization of the market as is produced in Charleston by the receipt of thirteen barrels of spirits turpentine is something fearful to contemplate: and we beg the distillers to administer the stimulant in "broken doses"

The Spring Riffs.

The Locals of the State press are now busy in announcing the return of merchants from the Northern cities with their Spring goods, and in informing their readers that they have examined these goods carefully. It is delightful to know that Mr. Smith is "looking the picture of health," and that Mr. Jones is "as handsome and genial as ever." But the most encouraging feature of these purely disinterested announcements is the indisputable fact that every fellow's goods are the "cheapest and best," "have been selected with great care," and were "bought from first hands." It must be refreshing to all the mercantile Smiths and Joneses to know that each member of the two tribes is just as good as his neighbor, and no better.

Three deserters from the British Brig Essex were arrested yesterday and lodged in jail for safe keeping. There were four of the deserters in all, one of them having been previously arrested in this city. The others were captured at Whiteville, Cocase then under consideration, and lumbus county. These desertions are be-the whole list of State trials in the coming very frequent and annoying to history of the civilized world were those interested, and if there is any evistudied, weighed, analyzed and dis- dence to show that they are in the habit of ng tampered with by outside parties for their own personal aggrandizement such parties should be made to answer.

A Peanut Bleacher.

We see it announced in the Norfolk pa papers that a gentleman of that city has discovered and patented a process for the cleaning and bleaching of peanuts, by which, at slight cost, discolored and mildewed peanuts are made clean and bright, thereby insuring to the owner an increase of from 50 to 75 per cent, in the selling price of the article. The process is said to be so simple, requiring the use of no machinery, that any planter can use it. It has been adopted by several dealers in Norfolk, and if the merit claimed for it shall be established we may look for quite a revolution in the peanut trade.

The receipts of Rosin at New York for the three months ending April 1, 1873, are 17,888 barrels less than for the corresponding period of 1872. The exports of Rosin from New York for the same period, in 1873, are 19,527 barrels less than in 1872. This decline in the New York receipts and exports, shows how rapidly our direct trade with Europe has increased within the past year; especially when we consider the increased production of rosin within the same
