BOYLES' CAMP, June 5. Late yesterday afternoon a detail of men.

Late yesterday afternoon a detail of men, belonging to artillery, arrived in camp from Timber Mountain, near the peninsular, with twenty juniper logs, clean and straight, and evidently not intended for use in the erection of tents for prisoners. Many persons marveled for what purpose the timber had been obtained. This morning the secret is out. General Davis intends to erect a scaffold and execute about twelve of the worst murderers in the tribe twelve of the worst murderers in the tribe, at sunset to-morrow. He feels that there is no need of delay, as no doubt of the guilt of the victims can exist, and justice demands speedy and certain action. Even at this time he is now writing a statement of their offences, which will be read to the condemned Modocs.

A still later dispatch says General Davis, after having completed all the arrangements for the execution of the Modocs, received orders from Washington to hold the prisoners until further advised, and he is thus stopped in the contemplated work. The feeling in camp is one of profound disgust at this action.

OUR NIGHT REPORTS. WASHINGTON.

The Modoc Prisoners Opinion of the Washington, June 7.

The following is the opinion of the Attorney General on the question submitted by the War Department relative to the capture of the Modocs:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, June 7.

To the President:

Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt from you of several papers relative to the Mode Indiana now in the custody of the United States army, with a request for my opinion as to authority to try certain of the prisoners by a military tribunal. Main facts on which questions arise are these: In 1864 the United States made a treaty with these Indians by the terms of which they were to go and remain upon a reservation in the State of Oregon. Late last fall, the Indians being away from their reservation, a military detachment was sent to procure their return. Finding them unwilling to go peaceably, the officer indicated his determination to use compulsion, in consequence of which a conflict ensued between the United States troops and the Indians. Soon after several peaceable citizens and their families in the vicinity were musdered by Indians in this band. They then intrenched themselves in lava beds in the neighborhood. Fighting ensued and one or more severe battles, in which persons on both sides were wounded and killed and the United States troops were repulsed. Pending hostilities, negotiations were opened for peace, and on the 18th of mine for themselves whether or not any-thing more ought to be done for the protec-tion of the country or the punishment of crimes growing out of the war. Section 59 of said instructions is as follows:

"A prisoner of war is answerable for his crimes committed before he was captured and for which he has not been punished by persons on both sides were wounded and killed and the United States troops were pupised. Pending hostilities, negotiations were opened for peace, and on the 18th of April last, Gen. Carby, Rev. Mr Thomas and Mr. Meacham, at a point between to opposing force in pursuance of a mutual agreement to that end, met Capt. Jack cleader of the indiana, with some of his chief warries to discuss terms of a treaty and while he engaged Gen. Carby and Mr. Thomas, were treathercoardy assassinated and Mr. Meacham averely wounded by the Indians present on that occasion. Battles followed, and Capt. Jack and all or most of his tribe have been captured and are now in the hands of the military studorities. Gen. Sherman, in a cocasion. Battles followed, and Capt. these instructions is as follows: Military jurisdiction is of two kinds; first, that which is conferred and defined by statute; and, that which is derived from Common law of war. Military offenders under the statute of law must be tried in the manner therein directed, but military offences which do not come within the statute must be tried and punished under the common law of war. The character of the county which the common law of war. The character of the courts which exercise these jurisdictions depends upon the local laws of each particular country. The law of nations, which is the result of the experience and wisdom of ages, has decided that jayhawkers, banditti, &c., are offenders against the laws of nature and of war, and as such amenable to the military. Our Constitution has made these laws a part of the law of the land (see also Vattel 359, Wheaton's Int. law 406, Woolsey's Int. law 220, Halleck's Int. law 400). All the authorities which I have been able to examine upon the subject harmonize with these instructions. According to the laws of war there is nothing more sacred than a flag of truce dispatched in good faith, and there can be no greater act of perfidy and treachery than the assassination of its bearers after they have been acknowledged and received by those to whom they are sent. No statute of the United States makes this act a crime, and therefore it is not punishable under the rules and articles of war, and if punishable at all must be through a power devised from the usages of war. Kindred to the act in question in bad faith is the breaking of this parole by a paroled prisoner. While the United States were at war with Mexico sev-PHILADELPHIA, May 7.
