A CAUSTIC ADDRESS. What General D. H. Hill had to Say to appear before Grand Jury July 7th to the Literary Societies of Furman Salversity - An Unreconstructed Orator-The Learned Professions at piscount-Flourishing Crops, &c. GREENVILLE, S. C., June 18.

General D. H. Hill, of Charlotte, N. C., last night addressed the literary societies here connected with the Furman University. He had a a large and brilliant audience, among them many distinguished names, as Rev. Dr. Reynolds, of South Carolina University, who has come to attend the commencement of the University here, Rev. E. Capers, Rev. Dr. Wil- docket and getting ready for work. liams and many others. The address was able, and in many respects, excellent. The subject was the super-iority of ancient or antebellum civilization in South Carolina to the new or post-bellum order in this State. The address was well delivered and full as you would expect, of sarcasm, satire, ridicule and invective. It overflowed with anecdote and history. South Carolina was Poland, and the North the three emperors who divided and at last destroyed Poland. If, as he said, progress was deteriora-tion, he is still on the old elevation. He is the first reconstructed man I have heard speak. He glaries in the South; he despises the North. His sentiments were apparently in sym-pathy with the audience, as they applauded him constantly. Toward the last, his views of educating the Southern people to industry and economy, to trades and not professions, squinted much to Yankee views, and would make us all business men and women, not philosophers and thinkers. It their appearance before Justice Cassidey was an able address, and at times elobut its general spirit was ironical and bitter, and calculated to open all South Carolina's old wounds, and make her feel full doubly her

Influence of a Death. [New York Herald.]

Wall street yesterday presented another of the strange magnetic phases so characteristic of that spasmodic locality. A gentleman diedone who has long been identified with railroad and other enterprises, and whose name in connection with various interests has become a sort of "household word" on Change. Iestantly the pocket nerve began to throb and men to wonder what amount of money was to be made out of Death! Cliques hurriedly gathered to specu-late on the event. Combinations were organized to create depressing influences, and before high noon a whole brigade of wild men were shouting their arithmetical measure of a Wall street obituary notice over a dead brother. To one outside of their circle, studying the lessons of the hour, it was a lafter being summoned to do so. Judgmen curious picture of human nature, not merely because the shadows were penciled in the gloom of the grave, but because it exhibited the wonderful brain power that may be put forth by some men and be made to radiate to the very extremes of our commer-cial influence. Doubtless much if not dow of Messrs. T. W. Brown & Co., yes all of this effect is artificial. Never-theless, under the manipulation of the shrewd men whose vocation it is to speculate on the best or the saddest events of life, the result is always perceptible, just as it was apparent yesterday in the raid by a party of bears whose vicious aim was to make damus to be Granted. [By Telegraph to the News and Courier.] COLUMBIA, S. C., June 22.

A rumor is afloat that the decision of the Supreme Court in the Morton, Bliss & Co. bond case has been prepared. It has not been possible to trace the report to any definite source, but it comes through creditable channels. It is stated that the opinion will order a mandamus, the chief justice dissenting. E. P. Willard is said to have fixed the thing up before the suit was brought. The report further states that Comptroller-General Hoge will at once give notice of a levy of four mills on the dollar to pay the interest on the five classes of bonds

- One of the pleasantest things we know of is to have a colored lady on your prem ises who is accomplished both as a cook and a boot-black. We tried ours the other day on our Sunday shoes, and she sent 'em in glittering with stove polish. This latter article is warranted to resist all future applications of blacking; and is the best thing for Sunday shoes we have ever tried.

Behearsal at the Academy of Incar-

Quite a pleasant time was spent last even ing by a privileged few at the Academy of Incarnation. The occasion was the dress rehearsal of a drama in three acts entitled Mary Queen of Scots. It was translated by a member of the institution from the French and the several characters are well represented by pupils of the Academy. The play consists of a cast of ten principal characters and several minor ones, and has been in preparation for some time by the good Sisters and their pupils. The costumes are elegant and appropriate, and the spirit and ability with which the young ladies fill their several parts reflects much credit on them and those under whose efficient management they have been for the past year. The drama will be presented for the patron age of the public to-morrow night, in the new and spacious Hall of the Academy just erected.

We feel sure that the public will patron ize the good Sisters liberally, and in so do ing may safely promise themselves an elgant dramatic treat.
