THE NEW PARTY IN OHIO.

Large Ratification Meeting in Allen County-Speeches by Judge Colline and Others.

One of the first meetings of the campaign in Ohio, to ratify the nominations made by the People's Convention at Columbus on the 30th of July, was held at Lima, Allen county, on the 13th inst. The attendance was very large, and the interest shown unexpectedly strong. The speakers were Mr. T. E. Cunningham, the author of the Allen county resolutions, Judge Isaac Collins, the People's candidate for Governor, and the Hon. Frederick Hassaurek. Mr. Cunningham referred merely to the growth among the earnest and intelligent men of all parties of the feeling that the time had come when the people must strike for freedom from party tyranny, and at the close of the meeting he spoke for a short time about the Democratic candidate for Governor, the Hon. Wm.

Judge Collins began a long speech by discussing the reasons why it had always been difficult for the Democrats who had joined the Republican party, just before and during the war, to reunite with the Democratic party. The questions growing out of slavery and the war are settled, but obstacles still remain to prevent a re-The Whigs who joined the Democratic party, he said, retained "all their original notions as to a strong paternal government—a government which shall undertake everything that the officeholders for the time being shall deem for the general good and common welfare. The Whig element had demoralised the Democratic party, and its former associates could not rejoin it. The People's Convention had spoken plainly against a paternal government, and the fourth and fifth resolutions of its platform contained the cardinal principles of true Demo-cracy. The remaining portions of his speech were devoted to the action of the Cincinnati and Baltimore Conventions, in 1872, on the tariff question. The profer of the Liberal Republicans last year were honorable so long as they were made "on the basis of supporting Free Trade, a sound currency, and a candidate who, like Adams, Trumbull or Groesbeck, was known to be grounded on Democratic principles," but proceed upon the idea of a communi ty of principles, and ignored the tariff, and went in for anything to beat Grant, it became a mere scramble for spoils, and was no longer worthy the attention of patriots." Judge Collins then explained the difference between the proposition made last year and year, and said: "The way is honorable; it is open to us; no other seems

Mr. Hassaurek showed that the Republican party had gamed its strength by taking up the Jeffersonian doctrine that all men are born equal and free, but had forgotten its Jeffersonianism as soon as it felt itself secure in power. After dwelling upon this and kindred ideas Mr. Hassaurek turned his attention to the questions of free trade and corruption in the public service.

It is important to fix as accurately as possible the responsibility of the railread manager for an accident like that which occurred near Lemont.— In this case the immediate blame attaches to the conductor and engineer of the coal train, who violated existing rules, and, by what appears to have been deliberate and perverse action, insured the hazard of a collision with a recklessness that is altogether unparalleled. No excuse has yet been offered on the part of the conductor who took his coal train from Lemont contrary to custom, with the full knowledge that he must meet the regular passenger train going south, unless there were some unusual de-

It is no excuse for him, as like cause Tuesday. this is true, it is no excuse for him, as railroad trains are not run by engineers' watches. But the story has the appearance of having been invented to shield him from blame. He accounts for the watch being so much behind time because the hands had caught. When the hands of a watch catch, one of two things occur. Either the watch stops, in which case the engineer would have known it, or the watch gains time by means of the minute-hand carrying the hour-hand minute-hand carrying the hour-hand like cause Tuesday.

go backward. The engineer's story is hardly entitled to credence in view of the terrible responsibility from which it is intended to relieve him. He must have known the danger which the conduc-tor was incurring, and it was his duty to refuse to run the train. Whatever may be shown to have been the shortcomings of the railroad company, it does not now look as though the conductor and engineer of the coal train can escape conviction of criminal recklessness, which should be severely ounished for the common good of humanity. This cannot excuse or extenuate the errors in the management of the Chicago & Alton Road, which are primarily responsible, and the only possible justification for which is to be found in the circumstance that they are common to the management of nearly all the railroads in this

The Trouble on the Late Colored Ma-

We learn that there were some inaccuracies in the article published yesterday in reference to the affray on the Steamer Wascursion. We were under the impression that the affair took place at or near the Blackfish Grounds, where neither the Magistrates of Brunswick or New Hanover counties had jurisdiction, hence we spoke of it as having occurred "on the high seas." It seems, however, that the difficulty occurred on the river, between this city and Smithville, where jurisdiction can be exercised by Magistrates in either county, It appears, too. that the affair was a more serious one than we had been led to suppose, pistols having been drawn by one of the party and a serious disturbance being at one time threatened At this stage of the difficulty, W. H. Moore, J. P., and another Magistrate were called on to suppress the difficulty, which they succeeded in doing. We gave our first statement as it was given to us as near as we could remember, and make this additional one in justice to all concerned.

The Carter Murder Case Arrival of the Prisoner Buke Walker, &c.
Special Deputy R. L. Sellars, who was sent by Sheriff Black for Duke Walker, the colored boy who was implicated, by a statement of David Martin, in the murder of Willie Carter, arrived here yesterday aftertnoon with his prisoner, who was ledged in jail. He will probably have an opportunity to-day of stating what he knows concerning the marder, providing it be shown that he has any knowledge whatever of the affair. The community await with some anxiety any new developments in the case. It is uncertain what turn to-day's proceedings may take. It is more than likely, however, that nothing will be elicited to prove any complicity on the part of the boy Duke, as we learn that the prisoner David Martin, upon whose statement he was arrested, asserted yesterday, to one of the officials of the county, that Duke was not present when the murder took place. there will be at least one witness to testify that Duke Walker was at work on the Carolina Central Railway, within forty or fifty miles of Charlotte, on the day the murder took place.
