THE FORGERY CASE.

Examination of B. S. Massoy Charge for Forgery-He is Committed to Jall in Default of One Thousand Dollars Ball.

The case of the State versus David S. Massey, who was detected in the recent forgery, came up yesterday before Justice Gardner, Mesars, John London and Dubrutz Cutlar appeared as prosecuting attorneys. (Prisoner pleaded not guilty.)

A. A. Brown was sworn, and being shown the cheek alleged to have been forged, said: I did not sign that check and never saw it before yesterday. I did not sign any seen the defendant before. Once on the 24th of June and once on the 8th day of July. He went with me on the 11th day of July to the Bank of New Hanover, whenhe filled out a check and I signed it. He saw me sign it and gave his name as William Stratton. I did not know his name. TO PRISONER.

to be held in the Court House in Wilming-ton on the eighth Monday after fourth in August, 1873. Upon the taking of the said bond the Sheriff of New Hanover county will discharge the said prisoner, and return all papers in this matter to the office of the Superior Court Clerk of the County I am certain you saw me sign the check, H. H. Munson, sworn, said: The prisoner came to my store on last Tuesday night and gave his name as D. J. Muldrow. He wanted a suit of clothes for the check and I gave him a suit worth thirty dollars, and one of my clerks gave him the balance of the check, twenty dollarst in money He told me the check was good

Mr. Munson then identified the sult of clothes which had been in the prisoner's possession.] I am certain that the prisoner is the person.

J. B. Stratton sworn: The defendant left a suit of clothes with me on Tuesday night at Mr. Gilbert's bar-room. He never came back after them, and I turned them over to Sargeant VanSoelen. I identify these clothes as the same. Am certain the pris-oner is the person who left the clothes.

J. N. VanSolen sworn and said: A warrant was placed in my hands for the apprehension of D. J. Mouldrow. I found the prisoner in a house at the corner of Fourth and Castle streets. He gave his name as Mussey. But being identified there as the person I wanted, I arrested him. He denied the charge, but came along with me.

L. B. Granger, swern, said: I know Mr.

Brown's signature. He has money in the Bank of New Hanover. I don't think the signature on the check is Mr. Brown's signature, though it resembles it in some re-S. B. Thomas sworn: I identify Massey the prisoner, as the man who came to Mr. Katz's store, some time in July, for some goods. He said his name was Brown, I heard them speaking of a check for $50.00, but did not see it. The prisoner said he would rather get the check changed before getting the goods.

Dr. S. S. Satchwell was called on then to make his report. He showed in the most impressive manner that the books of our

Mr. Brice Williams then, in a manner complimentary to one of his age, took up the State taxes. He showed that the State taxes amounted to $21,000 more than they required. He opened the eyes of the people to their present condition, and appealed to them to go forward and see if there was no

My heart is so full of the pleasant recol lections of bygone days, so full of the happy and glorious remembrances of the past, that I could not, if I would, refrain from giving you an account of the proceedings which characterize this as a day fraugh with more real happiness and enjoyment to the citizens of our good old town than any other since the 23d of August, 1860.

Fayetteville. Col. Mullins commenced his address by saying that when he received the invitation to deliver an address on the occasion of the 80th Anniversary of the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry Company, he regarded it as a command, which, coming from such a source, he could not refuse to obey. He made many pleasant and happy allusions to his old home—his boyhood's happy days, and his early recollections of the old company. He spoke kindly and feelingly of the people of Payetteville, and of his old college mates, whose faces he missed. He alluded to his many pleasant rambles, along the banks by the murmuring waters of Cross creek, where he had whispered words of love, and plead for kisses from fair maidens. He said he was proud of the reunion of the old com-ceived and gave entire satisfaction to the large crowd of ladies and gentlemen who had assembled to hear him. After his conclusion the Battalion was reformed and led by Col. Starr to the Fair Grounds, where dinner was to be served, and while waiting for it to be announced, most persons were sharpening their appetites from an abund-ant store of wines and liquors which had been provided for the occasion. In a short time the doors of Farmers' Hall were thrown open, and a dinner, pronounced by many to be the handsomest ever set in Fayette-ville, was heartly partaken of, after which champagne corks began to fly in every di-rection. For a great many years it has been customary with the company at each anni-

The best single shot was made by Maj. John D. The books were presented to the company by Maj. P. M. Hale, are silvered with the frosts of age and a man whom every member of the com-pany loves, and of whom they are espe-cially proud. It will be remembered that shortly after its return from the Peninsula whose once proud and erect forms are now tottering beneath the weight of years might have been seen stepping off campaign, the company was called together with all the stateliness and elasticity of earcampaign, the company was called together for an election of officers, and Mr. Peter M. Hale was elected Major, since which time there has been no other election until April last. At the conclusion of Capt. Ray's speech, the Hon. A. M. Waddell, who was ly manhood. This Company has seen service in two wars. A spirit of patriotic duty has always animated the hearts of its officers and men. In the war of 1812 it tendered its services to President Adams, was accepted and ordered to the front, and again present, was called upon, and in his usual happy strain, as he only, in his easy and in the bloody drama which closed not long since, when brother was arrayed against graceful manner can do, entertained the battalion for fifteen or twenty minutes. He said that its organization ought to be brother, it bore a gallant and conspicuous part; and to-day, far away from the scenes of those flerce conflicts, its surviving memkept up forever. He spoke of his father, Hugh Waddell, Esq., of your city, as erhans one of the old bers of it, and said that he had begged him, when he left home, to present his kindest regards to every member of it. Three rounds of blank cartridges were fired here, which called to the mind of many the genial faces of its dead companions. In the vicinity of the celebrated Cool Spring and upon the opposite bank of the Creek, may be seen a solitary grave, where the remains of Isaac Hammons, an old colored fifer of the Company, who had served them faithfully, for many years, was buried by them with military honors, since which time, at each anniversary, out of a high regard for him, it has been the habit to fire one round of blank cartridges over his grave, which was done to-day.
