DEATH OF HON. D. M. BARRINGER.

The sad intelligence reaches us of the death of the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs Monday evening of Hon. Daniel M. Barringer, of this State. Gen. Barringer's health had been infirm for several months. For several weeks past he had been trying to recuperate with the waters of the famous West Virginia resort. But growing rapidly worse his family were telegraphed for, and had been with him for several days before his decease.

Gen. Barringer was quite an old man. He had filled some positions of honor and responsibility, having been member of Congress, minister to Spain and last year Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic Conservative party. He was in Congress with Mr. Greeley in 1848, and last year gave him his heartiest official and individual support. Indeed, his efforts in the campaign broke down his health.

Gen. Barringer was a member of the old Democratic party, a man of decided but moderate views. We suppose his age was between sixty five and seventy years. In the death of D. M. Barringer North Carolina has lost one of her most trusted and worthy sons. A man of the purest integrity, a gentleman in the highest sense of the word, a fair and thoroughly honest politician, a citizen whom the State will greatly miss has gone from among us.

DEATH OF THE OLD SOUTHERN.

Jacob N. Carjona, the oldest editor of the South, aged 87, died in Savannah, his native place, last Saturday night. His first connection with the press was with the Southern Patriot, of Charleston. He was an able and vigorous writer, being as much distinguished for his apt and dramatic criticisms as for his profounder articles on politics and political economy.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS.

This vigorous newspaper appeared yesterday in new types, with a slight enlargement of size. The News deserves success, and we are glad to see that it is meeting with it. It is now entering upon the last half of the second year of its existence.

Loss of a Steamer.

Intelligence reached this city yesterday that the side-wheel steamer Ironides, Capt. Davis, of the Baltimore and Potomac Steam Company, had been wrecked on the Hog Island Shoals, a few miles north of Cobb's Island. The Ironides belongs on the Aquia Creek route, but has been plying during the Summer between Philadelphia and Cape May. She was on her return to the Potomac, and during the heavy gale and thick weather of Friday night struck on Hog Island Shoals about 10 o'clock. On Saturday morning she broke in two, and at last accounts was going to pieces. Captain Carter, Superintendent of the line, and the crew were taken care of by the Cobb Brothers, by whom the furniture and tackle of the wrecked vessel were saved. Capt. Davis arrived in the city last evening for the purpose of making arrangements with the Baker Bros. & Co., wreckers, to save what is left of the vessel. Fortunately, no lives were lost.

Morton on Morality.

Senator Morton's admirers delight to call him a bold politician. It certainly required a great deal of boldness for him to say in his speech in Ohio, the other day, that public morals have gradually improved since 1860, and that Congress is a purer body than it ever was before. We do not remember to have heard or read of a bolder assertion than this flight of Mortonian audacity or andacious Mortimian, made right in the teeth of numerous instances of official dishonesty and corruption which have occurred under the existing Administration.

DISHONEST RAILROAD MEN.

A Defalcation Unearthed in the Georgia Railroad. [Savannah Advertiser and Republican.] A great defalcation on the part of P. W. Printup, road master; R. W. Rhodes, general freight agent, and J. S. Shipley, supervisor, all officials of the Georgia railroad, has been unearthed by Carlton Hillier, the auditor of the road. These robberies have been under investigation since last May, and have been fully developed. The most prominent official of the road named in connection with these peculations was P. W. Printup, road master, who has been identified with the road for thirty years, filling responsible positions, and so far as we can learn, without the slightest previous suspicion of his integrity and perfect fair dealing. Upon him rumor charged (for we do not profess to speak strictly by the card) the use of the road in his official capacity to advance his private fortune, by the transportation of grain and other supplies necessary to run his plantations. As road master he had full control of the matter of supplying the lumber, timber, groceries and wood necessary for the use of the road. His accounts for the purchase of these supplies necessarily came under the notice of the auditor. The accounts for lumber, as furnished to the auditor's office, are reported to have been startlingly in excess of the amount which could be traced to consumption for road purposes. After funds had been placed in his hands, with which to pay for crosses purchased for the road, it is alleged that claims were made out against the road for payment for these identical purchases. Other irregularities in his accounts were reported, resulting in a loss to the road of several thousands of dollars—placed at from $96,000 to 180,000.

The next most prominent official charged with having his hands tainted with these peculations and misappropriation of money which should have gone into the treasury of the company was R. W. Rhodes, general freight agent of the road at this point for the past three years, and for the past thirteen or fourteen years connected with the road in various official capacities. To the better understanding of the charges against Mr. Rhodes, it is necessary to state that in his official capacity he had control of what is known as "lost freight" which accumulated at this point. Frequently when owners presented their claims to the road for freight lost in transportation, such claims were promptly paid, the missing freight becoming the property of the road whenever it turned up. Mr. Rhodes was charged with converting this freight from time to time to his own use, and with the appropriation of a portion of the proceeds of its sale. He was also charged (so says rumor) with having retained in his possession considerable amounts of money collected through him from the Quartermaster's Department of the United States government for transportation of troops. The loss to the road through these irregularities we have heard placed at $7,000 to $8,000.

The above named officials have been removed and others appointed in their place. No arrests have been made. It is also understood that the entire force in the Road Master's and Supervisor's Departments has been dismissed, and that new men will be appointed.

Spirits Turpentine.

A foreigner from Goldsboro was found dead in the woods at No. 4 Atlantic and Gulf Railroad, Ga., on last Friday, 29d. On the 29th ult., the congregation of Popular Tent (Presbyterian) Church made out a call for the services of Rev. Robert McAlpin. Miss Laura Hartsoe, of Lincoln county, died from a congestive chill at Matthews Camp meeting last Sunday night, says the Newton Freeman.

The mail train on the North Carolina Railroad, going east, on Monday morning, ran over and killed near Abitibi a deaf and dumb colored boy by the name of James Hayward.

Raleigh Sentinel: Nancy Harris, colored, aged 110 years, died at her home in Swift Creek township, on Friday last. For 83 years she had been a member of the Baptist Church.

Charlotte Democrat: Mr. Jos. Hough, living in the Clear Creek neighborhood, this county, was killed last Thursday evening by a saw in the running works of Mr. Eli Hinson's saw mill.

Hon. D. M. Barringer, Chairman of the Conservative Democratic State Committee, and one of the most prominent politicians and lawyers of the State, died at Greenbrier Springs, West Virginia, Monday evening.

On Friday the Wilson base ball club played the Waverly, of Goldsboro, at that place, and were beaten. Afterward the victors went to Rocky Mount and played the Olympics a game, but owing to their exhausted condition (so the Waverly says) were defeated. Goldsboro Messenger: The farmers throughout this section are complaining of serious damages to the growing cotton, owing to the frequent and heavy rains within the last few weeks. Rust has made its appearance in many of the cotton fields. The prospects are less encouraging than what they were a few weeks ago. One of the rear wheels of the train on the North Carolina Railroad, going east on Sunday night, was crushed to atoms. The engineer, Billy West, discovered the accident, blew down the breaks and stopped the train with so little jar as not even to disturb or jolt a passenger, so says the Sentinel.

THE CITY.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS. MUNSON & Co.—Clothing. AMAR OWENS—Raff Found. D. D. DODGE—Whitson Academy. C. S. ELLIS—M. B. & Loan Association. HEINSBERGER—The Gipsy's Warning.

Arrest and Escape of a Wife Beater. A colored man by the name of Gilbert Hadley, residing on Strauss's alley, North of the W. & W. Railroad, was arrested by Sergeant H. Kuhl, of the police force, yesterday morning, about 3 o'clock, on the charge of beating his wife. He proved a desperate customer, and after a severe struggle, during which the prisoner's clothing was nearly all torn from his body, he finally succeeded in getting free from the clutches of the officer, when he beat a precipitate retreat, tearing a paling from the fence, as he jumped over it, with which to defend himself in case he was overtaken by the officer. Sergeant Kuhl pursued him for some distance, but as it was not light enough to see him distinctly, he finally escaped. We learn that Hadley's wife was badly used, and but for the interference of the officer there is no telling what might have been the result.

Tax Payers' Convention. The complaining tax-payers who reside in the country will hold a convention at the Court House in this city at 7 o'clock P. M. Wednesday, the 10th of September. The general upbraiding of the people of New Hanover does not seem to diminish. The object of this meeting is to continue their work of resistance to what they hold to be an unfair, illegal and oppressive increase of taxation in the county. Competent speakers will address the Convention. An arrangement has been made with the authorities of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad, as well as with the Steamer Northeast, to bring and return for one fare those who may attend. We suppose the meeting will be large and spirited.

An Insane Woman on Her Travels. A few days since, while Mr. J. W. St. George, of this county, was driving home, he found a strange colored woman in the road, two miles from this city, apparently in the greatest distress. He took her up and carried her home, thinking she might be made of some service in his crop. He soon found, however, that he had got an "elephant" on his hands, as she proved to be insane, at least to all appearances. The question now is how to get rid of her, and we learn that she will probably be sent to the Poor House until other disposition can be made of her. She says she belongs in Duplin county, but her name is not remembered.

Mexican Survivors. It should be remembered that a meeting of the survivors of the Mexican war will be held at Judge Cantwell's office, in the Court House, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. In connection with this subject we would remark that Maj. James Reilly, of this city, was not only in the Mexican war, but served through the entire campaign against the "greasers." He was a Sergeant in Duncan's famous Battery and was wounded at Cherubusco.

All the survivors, both officers and privates, should attend the meeting this afternoon.

Attended Robbery. On Monday night between 8 and 9 o'clock a thief was discovered breaking into the stables of Messrs. Williams & Myrholson, corner of Second and Chesnut streets. He made an entrance by pushing a board off the southeast corner of the west side of the building. A call was made for the police, one of whom, being off duty at the time, quickly responded. He proceeded to the premises, but the thief discovered him in time to make his escape, which he did by jumping from a window into the street. Nothing was missed from the stables, as time was too short to commence operations.

Habeas Corpus. A petition was being circulated on the streets yesterday to secure the necessary funds to sue out a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Billy Merrick, one of the little colored boys implicated in the murder of Willie Carter. It will be remembered that an effort was made to establish an alibi in his case, with what success the "men of law" are the best judges.

Stage Line. The Charlotte Democrat says: "Mr. J. W. Wadsworth has bought out the line from Charlotte to the head of the Carolina Central Railway, and will hereafter run a daily schedule instead of a tri-weekly. As soon as a schedule is arranged with the Railroad authorities, the public will be informed of arrivals and departures. A daily stage from here to Monroe will be of great convenience to the citizens of both places."

The Thermometer. The thermometer in the counting room of the STAR office ranged as follows yesterday: 8 A. M. 83 degrees. 10 A. M. 87 " 11 A. M. 89 " 12 M. 90 " 1 P. M. 90 " 5 P. M. 90 " 6 P. M. 89 " 11 P. M. 85 "

Floorishing. We are glad to learn that the Lodge of Improved Order of Red Men, which was recently established in this city, is in a flourishing condition. The Order will soon secure their uniforms, which are in the regular Indian style.

The British Brig Sophia Gorbitz, Gorbitz, cleared from London for this port on the 20th ult.

ROBESON COUNTY.

Reward of Two Hundred Dollars for James Dial, Murderer of Floyd Oxendine. Arrest of Duff Cummings. Alleged to be Implicated in the Aftir-Rhody Lowrey Getting Up an Excitement, &c. The Commissioners of Robeson county met in the Court House in Lumberton on Monday, and among other official business passed an order to pay any one who would take James Dial, the murderer of Floyd Oxendine, dead or alive, the sum of $200. On the same day Duff Cummings, a first cousin of the late Andrew Strong, was arrested as accessory before the fact to the killing of Oxendine and is now in jail awaiting an examination before a Justice of the Peace. (The evidence of his complicity with this atrocious act is understood to be very slender and we learn no doubt is entertained of his final discharge. Cummings made himself conspicuous at the time of Andrew Strong's death in denouncing his slayers, of whom Floyd Oxendine was one. He went to Lumberton on Monday as the protector and general business agent of Rhody Lowrey, who accompanied him, demanding from the heirs of Floyd Oxendine the restoration of certain articles of personal property which Rhody declares belong to her, and are now retained by Oxendine's family. Rhody denounces the whole Oxendine connection and speaks out in "meek" of matters that are not very creditable to them as law-abiding citizens. Duff Cummings will have a hearing in a few days, when some developments may be expected. Meanwhile, we understand, Rhody is going for the Oxendines for the recovery of her handsome property etc. She has sued out a warrant of attachment before Justice Sinclair against the whole "kit," and will doubtless sue out a variety of other legal documents. Her "dander" is fully up, and rich developments may be expected in a few days.

The cry of "perilous" startled the denizens in the neighborhood of Front and Dock streets, Monday night about 12 o'clock but no cause for the alarm could be ascertained.

The Regatta. The following comprise the list of yachts entered for the regatta at Wrightsville Sound to-morrow: Yacht What Not, owned and sailed by P. W. Gause. Yacht Mollie Evans, owned and sailed by J. McD. French. Yacht Little Sister, owned by C. and N. Giles and sailed by Greenwood Giles. Yacht Annie Q., owned by G. W. Hewlett and sailed by Rep. Farrar. Yacht Quil Vise, owned and sailed by W. A. Wright, Jr. Yacht Unione, owned and sailed by J. J. Fowler. Yacht Retta, owned by F. A. L. Cassidy and sailed by H. C. Cassidy. Yacht Carolina, owned by E. E. Burruss and sailed by C. E. Burr.

The race will take place at 4 P. M. to-morrow (Thursday), the 4th Inst., and is expected to be a very interesting and exciting affair. As it will be the last regatta of the season, there will no doubt be a large attendance on the occasion. The Regatta Committee will perfect every arrangement to secure the comfort and enjoyment of all who may be present and will take especial pains to preserve order on the Banks.

Supersition. A colored man employed at the turpentine distillery of Mr. A. H. VanBokkelen, possessed of a certain amount of the superstition which characterizes many of his race, was made the victim yesterday of a "conjure doctor" hailing from South Carolina. He exhibited his necked back to a number of gentlemen, which was found to be severely lacerated and cut, and the poor ignorant fellow declared that it was done by the "conjure doctor" for the purpose of extracting lizards, frogs, snakes and other reptiles from his body, and he verily believed that such a thing had been accomplished. The impostor charged $4 for the alleged service and the victim borrowed the money from his employer to pay him. No such impostures should be allowed in a civilized community.

Bridge Across Brunswick River.

On Saturday, the 20th inst., the people of Brunswick county will vote on the proposition to build a bridge across the river at Brunswick Ferry, the question being "Bridge" or "No Bridge." Col. John D. Taylor, the owner of the Ferry, being willing to surrender the property for that purpose, the appraisement of the value of the same to be settled by a Board of Arbitrators to be composed of three gentlemen, one to be selected by Col. Taylor, one by the County Commissioners and the third by the two juries. As it is claimed that the proposed enterprise will not result in any additional cost to the county there can be but very little doubt that the bridge will soon become a fact. It will certainly be a source of great convenience.

Mayor's Court. The following cases were disposed of yesterday morning: John Merrick, charged with disorderly conduct. Case continued until this morning.

William Miller, charged in three different cases with keeping a bar-room open on Sunday, the 31st inst., was fined $50 and costs in each. Appealed to the Superior Court and was required to give a bond in the sum of $100 in each case.

Mary J. Hines, charged with disorderly conduct in front of the City Hall, was found guilty. Judgment suspended.

A case for violating a scavenger ordinance was heard and dismissed.

Increasing Trade. Under this head the Baltimore Gazette of a few days since says: "The trade between Baltimore and Wilmington, N. C., has grown to such proportions that even with the increased facilities there is a heavy pressure on the steamers of the line. The new steamer Raleigh sailed at three o'clock yesterday afternoon, and left on the wharf, which she could not take; the bulk of one thousand barrels. The D. J. Foley will sail this afternoon, and there will be abundant freight to fill her up. This is a gratifying fact."

Notes From the Seashore—Latest News From a Lost Correspondent. We have not yet begun to receive the letters promised us by our correspondent at the seaside. Instead of them he has forwarded to this office a string of incoherent and rambling sentences which we have had the greatest difficulty to decipher. Were it not that the poor fellow has, like the Irish man of whom we have read, gone down to the "salt seas" in search of fresh air and probably become so surly-elied and demoralized by the unusual luxury as to be as yet incapable of better service as a contributor we would impose upon him the penance of preparing his own notes for the press. One of our staff reports, however, that in his opinion what follows must have been written among the ruins of Fort Campbell, a large earthwork erected by the Confederates during the late war about a mile and a half south of Fort Caswell. We give it to our readers as we make it out. It begins thusly: "My Dear Sir, continued the Senior, your eyes are too dimmed. You know a ditch from level ground, I presume. Indistinct. Why, the very common people; the very best day that can herd a cow, call it the Karim of Kimprunes, and if that does not imply an ancient camp, I am ignorant of what does. The end."

I am sitting, dearest STAR, upon the highest summit of a series of mountains, which in the days of '63 and '64 was crowded with soldiers and known to fame by the name of Fort Campbell. The know whether the spot was well chosen as a fortification, but surely there can hardly be presented a more beautiful prospect upon the Atlantic coast than that upon which I seated eyes, long unused to any other prospect than that of city back windows, now delightfully rest. Upon the distant hills in my rear you collection of houses over which floats the gorgeous flag of the Republic is Smithville. Softened by the distance the outline of the hills is lost in a soft haze. Far in the distance looms the towering summit of Bald Head, on the farther side, while the gleaming tide is fringed on this with a green and velvety grass which occupies the entire space between it and myself. It looks as if it might be the best of itself, but has sprung above the soil and penetrated here and there by narrow creeks, which, catching the rays of the setting sun, resemble threads of silver. In front of me the waves beat upon the broad white beach in tones of music which he pursues his calling. Far in the distance gleams in the sunset the pyramidical Mount Battery, and what is left of Fort Fisher. In front of them I can barely distinguish a huge wall of rock erected by the Government to improve our harbor; shouldering its way into the water, crowded with hissing steamships, which host and to the ships which shelter near, imitating the power and supplying the benevolence of Nature. How strange that in all this scene of wonderful beauty and interest, crowded with historical associations, which are already classical, I find myself almost entirely alone. No human voice interrupts or mingles with the strong, invigorating breeze; no human sound comes to the ear other than from the distant ships. The broad beach stretches for fifteen miles on either hand, without a solitary footstep to mar its tessellated floor of sea-mosses and shells. The first question which occurs to me to ask you, from this elevated summit, is, "What you with you were here? Are you sure that letter from the ruins of Fort Campbell? Could anything be more preposterous than to expect one from a holiday tourist under such circumstances? The next is, why do people go North in search of scenery and amusement when such a scene as this is so near at hand? My next impulse is to creep under a convenient shade in the full enjoyment of this grand breeze and say to you, no finer opportunity for a good sound nap by way an episode was ever presented to mortal eyes. If, when I wake, I do not find the whole enchanting scene a mere fabrication, with the poet Crabbe. Pleased while to view. The watery waste, the prospect, wild and new. The now receding waters giving space. On either side the growing shores to trace. Our reporter has incognito dropped the manuscript and declares his determination to let the wandering correspondent decipher the balance himself.

The river is again reported to be falling. The water is again reported to be falling. The water is again reported to be falling.

Newborn Times: On Saturday last Augustus Israel, a youth of about 15 years shot himself fatally at Mr. Fosques three miles from Pollockville in Jones county. Our informant states that the youth had been out deer hunting with a party of friends, and that he had for some purpose while the hunt was going on and set his gun down on the piazza, shortly after, he started to return to the party when in drawing his gun over the end of the piazza it caught by one of the beams and exploded. The charge, fifteen balls shot entered the left eye and tore through his skull. He lived about three hours but never spoke.

Wain, a theological student from Columbia. Addresses were delivered by Messrs. J. R. Kirkpatrick, D. H. Hill, S. Watson Reid, J. P. Alexander and Rev. John Hunter. The last was an agricultural address, and Mr. H. H. Reid, in a most interesting and original manner, discussed the organization of Patrons of Husbandry nor disappointed it.
