THE SOUTH CABOLINA UNIVER-SITY UNDER THE RADICAL SHADOW.

We, who have had a noble University of our own killed outright by Radical manipulations have a right to discuss the downfall of a State University in a neighboring commonwealth caused by the same baleful agency. We feel deeply for our Southern friends in their shame at the humiliation of their first institu- boro. tion and the actual loss they sustain by the perversion of its management. With the resignation of the Chairman of the Faculty and two other professors in the Medical School the last of the old and brilliant galaxy of instructors take leave of the place.

Dr. La Borde, who resigned the trust reposed in him because as a Southern man of Southern principles he could not preside over an institution that admitted colored students, has been a member of the faculty of the South Carolina College at Columbia since 1842. During that time he has frequently acted as its President. In addition to his professorial and managerial duties Dr. La Borde has used his pen with ability and vigor in behalf of the institution of his ardent love. He wrote its history, also other works of interest. But with all his zeal for the University he could not remain with it after its humiliation. He left, and others of the old faculty who had previously resigned followed him out. We presume the party of mongrelism will now run the machine to suit themselves-make a ragged primary school of it, just as the same party did with our University at Chapel Hill, and finally, as Pool, Brewer & Co. did, break down at even that small business. The South Carolina University opened last week with seven students, as we mentioned in these columns at the time. It takes Southern Radicalism to "lay out" collegiate institutions.

THE ELECTION TO-DAY IN PENN-

The election in the great State of Pennsylvania ought to result in the signal defeat of the nefarious ring, but it will not. The candidate on the Republican ticket for Treasurer is one of the chief conspirators belonging to that notorious clique. Mr. Mackey was nominated for his ring influence, the ring controlling Pennsylvania Republicanism. The law in that State permits any citizen to examine the monthly reports of the Treasurer filed with the Auditor. But lately a request to see these reports made by three citizens belonging to one of the local Democratic committees was refused, and when the Supreme Court was asked for a mandamus, a Republican judge granted it as he was obliged to, but made it returnable three days after the election.

The sleek scoundrels! They knew the figures would be their condemnation before the people, and they dared not at the peril of their official pap let these figures be introduced in the canvass. And such is Republicanism, and such is Republican ring rule everywhere the bane and curse of the country, the civilization, the age: But the ring is master in Pennsylvania, and the triumph of the ring favorites to-day will doubtless be complete.

THE EMBARGOED COTTON CROP-A SOUTH CAROLINA BANKER LOOKING FOR CURRENCY TO

Colonel Childs, President of the Carolina National Bank at Columbia, S. C., has been in the city several days trying to raise currency for the purpose of moving the cotton crop. His mission here has been an utter failure. He has also tried in Philautter failure. He has also tried in Philadelphia and Boston with the same result. He says the bankers in Columbia and Charleston have pulled through a severe trial, but are solvent, and continue to pay their depositors in currency. Their currency is nearly all gone, and they sent him here to see what could be done about it.—

N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

We are glad to say that the Bank of New Hanover, of this city, has been more fortunate. The President of that institution spent two days of last week in New York and made arrangements to secure an ample supply of currency for the purchase of cotton and naval stores both for the parent bank and its several branches at Goldsboro, Tarboro and Wades-

TIMELY TOPICS.

A case of thief crying stop thief has just come within the purview of judicial investigation. One Hunter, of the publishing firm of Hunter & Co., of Hinsdale, N. H., was arrested last week on a charge of circulating obscene publications. This "firm," we believe, published a weekly paper with the ostensible purpose of exposing shams and swindles in all parts of the country. It seems that while it was thus laudably engaged in warning the public against the rascalities of others it was snugly and covertly sowing the seeds of corruption itself, meantime plentifully lining its own purse with ducats.

The Alliance is a new eight-page paper published in Baltimore in the interests of the Young Men's Christian Association and religious interests generally not of a sectarian character. It is edited with ability by Revs. H. L. Singleton and E. B. Sanford. It is intended to be the undenominational religious journal of the South.

A DIABOLICAL CRIME.

The Murder of a Colored Girl by Pardoned Convict. [Charleston News.]

WALTERBORO, Oct. 9. Last Monday, the 6th, an atrocious murder was committed near Smoke's Cross Roads, in upper Colleton. The victim was a mulatto girl about twenty years of age, named Annie Black. The suspected murderer is a pardoned colored penitentiary convict, named Daniel DeSausure, who was convicted for rape upon a child March 25th, 1869, and sentenced to ten years' hard labor in the State prison. But on the petition or fiat of potential county officials he was pardoned on the 31st of October, 1870, and made the first public exhibition of his acquired virtues by cutting the throat of Annie Black. It is only gathered from the declarations to her parents, that Desaure had committed an outrage upon her a few days ago, and she told him Trial Justice Conniff and have him arrested. He offered, she said, twenty-five dollars if she would not go but, on her refusal, told her he would

KILL HER IF SHE DID. On Monday she started but was found on the road with her head nearly severed from the body, a slice cut from her throat and several gashes over the back of her neck. Daniel Desausure was at once searched for and found absent. When found he gave confused and contradictory statements of his whereabouts. Il

The Yellow Fever-Heartrending Details of Suffering.

Memphis, Oct. 9. There are as yet no signs of a gen-eral abatement of the fever, although an inspection of "Happy Hollow, where it originated, shows that it has spent its strength in that locality, for want of material to work on. Those now residing there are convalescents. There was no frost last night; although the weather was quite cool; but the frosts of two preceding nights have thus far produced no marked effect upon the epidemic, and there appears no early prospect of a mitigation of the plague from that cause. n the limit between the river and Fifth street, and from Washington street north to Chelsea, there is scarcely a house that has escaped the fever, and it continues to spread all over the city. Should it rage in like proportion in the remainder of the city as it did in "Happy Hollow," there will not be enough people left here to bury the dead. Those in our midst who witnessed its work in New Orleans twenty years ago say that the situation here is far more horrible than anything they witnessed

There is yet a pitiful lack of competent nurses, and the Howard Association of New Orleans has been telegraphed to for a further supply.-Some of our physicians appear to have given up in despair and fright at the earful carnage, and have fled from the city. Still the majority remain and are laboring day and night in the cause of humanity. The clergy of all denominations remain faithful to their work, and are doing all in their power to alleviate the suffering. Stories of suffering and inhumanity that would touch the stoutest heart are

The little girl mentioned in these dispatches of Tuesday last, who obtained a coffin, made a shroud for her dead mother, and nursed other sick ones in the family is now dying of the fever. One man while lying sick was robbed of all his money by the brute who was nursing him. One wealthy man fled from his son who was lying prostrated with the fever.
Two nurses while supposed to be attending sick persons got beastly intoxicated, and were expelled from the house by the neighbors. At the La Salette Academy where Fathers Casey and Dailey died, five are now reported sick. Father O'Brien, a Dominican priest, was taken on Tuesday evening, and died to-day. It is extremely difficult to obtain a report of the number of deaths daily. The four undertakers in the city are busily and constantly engaged, and funerals have none of the order and decorum usually considered as due to the occasion. People die faster than they can be buried. Hundreds have died unattended. It is known that bodies have lain un-cared for until partially decomposed, and at one burial-place the stench arising from the coffins awaiting in terment is horrible. People not here can form no idea of the deplorable state of affairs from written descriptions of the frightful condition of the city. It must be seen to Beaufort County, S. C. His head was be fully realized. Those who place their money to suffering will certainly be reached and the funds judiciously handled, can do no better than to send it direct to any of the clergymen here. They are all trustworthy men, and can be depended on. Some who have left the city to escape disease are sich in the country, among them Mr. Whitmore of the Evening Ledger, who went to Brownsville, 60 miles distant, where he is now prostrated. H. H. Littleton, a prominent insurance agent, died at Covington, 40 miles from here. The steamer Clarksville, which arrived to-night, lost three of her officers. Nine hundred human beings have perished from fever since it first appeared here, and still the fever rages.

EVICTIONS IN IRELAND.

Extract from the Leeture of Mr. Bradlaugh in New York Last Monday

In my checkered life I have been a private soldier, and between 1849. and 1850 I was in the County Cork, stationed at Ballancholy. Those of you who are Irishmen will want no description of that beautiful valley of the Lee which winds between the hills from Cork, and in Summer seems like a very Paradise, green grass growing to the water's side, and burnished with gold in the morning, and ruddy to very crimson in the evening sunset. I went there on a November day. was one of a troop to protect the law officers, who had come with the agent from Dublin to make an eviction a few miles from Inniscarra, where the river Bride joins the Lee. lt was a miserable day—rain freezing into sleet as it fell-and the men beat down wretched dwelling after wretched dwelling-some 50 or 40 perhaps. They did not take much beating down; there was no flooring to take up; the walls were more mud than aught else, and there was but little trouble in the leveling of them to the ground. We had got our work about three parts done, when out of one of them a woman ran and flung herself on the ground, wet as it was, before the captain of the troop, and she asked that her house might be spared-not for long, but for a little while. She said her husband had been born in it, he was ill of the fever, but couldn't live long, and she asked that he might be permitted to die in it in peace. Our captain had no power; the law agent from Dublin wanted. to get back to Dublin-his time was of importance, and he would not wait, and that man was carried out while we were there-in front of us, while the sleet was coming down-carried out. on a wretched thing—you could not call it a bed—and he died there while we were there, and three nights afterward, while I was sentry on the front gate at Ballancholy barracks, we heard a cry, and when the guard turned out we found this poor woman there a raving maniac, with one dead babe in one arm, and another in the other, clinging to the cold nipple of her lifeless breast. And if you had been brothers to such a woman, sons of such a woman, fathers of such a woman, would not rebellion have seemed the holiest gospel you could hear preached? Two hundred and fifty thousand evictions took place in the twenty years preceding 1866. 250,000! Can you multiply the misery of that 250,-000? Brother separated from sister, husband from wife, the Union workhouse taking one, and the other going out trying to find life if he can. This system has gone on until it has made a misery so vast that it will require not one act of Parliament in favor of wisdom, not one statue in favor of justice, not one declaration in favor of humanity, but generations and generations of generous and kindly treatment, not to build up but in some degree to efface the bloody stain of iniquity we have made on the page of that history MISCELLANEOUS.

PRATT'S ASTRAL OIL Absolutely early. Perfectly odoriess. Always uniform. Illuminating qualities superior to ass. Burns in any land without danger of exploding or taking fire. Manufactured expressly to displace the use of volatile and dangerous oils. Its safety under every possible test, and its perfect burning qualities, are proved by its continued use in over 800,000 families. Millions of gallons have been sold and no accident—directly or indirectly—has ever occurred from burning, storing or handling it.

The immense yearly loss of life and property, resulting from the use of cheap and dangerous oils in the United States, is appalling.

The Insurance Companies and Fire Commissioners throughout the country recommend the ASTRAL as the best safeguard when lamps are used. Send for circular.
