- Bishop Lyman preached for the first time in Charlotte last Sunday. The Observer thus refers to the efforts: His sermons were characterized by deep thought. - Charlotte Observer: We are informed that the pardon of Samuel G. Brown, Esq., of York District, S. C., was probably due to the intercession of ex-Gov. Holdon, Hon. T. J. Robertson, of South Carolina, Gen. Jasper Packa.d, of Indiana, and W. H. Bailey, Esq, of Salisbury—all prominent Republicans. A correspondence which we have been permitted to see justifies us in making this statement.

Kinston Gazette: We learn that a young man named Ed. Broadway, of this county, seduced a young woman of Craven county named Johnson under promise of marriage and afterward attempted an abortion upon her by sending her certain drugs which she refused to take. Upon these facts being made known a warrant was issued for Broadway's arrest, and he was taken to Newhern, examined and placed in jail. We have subsequently seen him upon our streets, and learn that he was bailed out, to appear at the next term of Craven Superior Court.

- Milton Chronicle: Charles H. Mosely, (the great Virginia fox hunter,) and party, jumped a fox near his residence last Saturday morning which proved too fleet of foot for man or dog. They run the fox to Boston and back to this vicinity twice, crossing Countyline creek about two or three miles above and existing for the vicinity ing Countyline creek about two or three miles above, and striking for the vicinity of Danville. Although the water in the creek was twelve or fifteen feet deep, Mosely plunged his horse in and swam ever, when his son and Mr. Lipscombe followed his example. (We would not have done it for all the foxes on earth.) When last heard from the dogs were giving his foxship a lively time of it not far from Danville. The dogs had run him over eighty miles by two o'clock in the afternoon, and were still in the chase. P. S.—The chase was kept up until ten P. M., when all the dogs but one appeared willing to rest.

- Wilson Plaindealer: On Monday night last, after the arrival of the 10 o'clock passenger train, several gentlemen who came on the cars accompanied Mr. B. D. Stith to the Stith House, near the depot, and were followed by a negro man called Small Blount, employed at Mrs. Blount's Hotel, who, standing in front of the Stith House, near the steps, endeavored to per-suade the gentlemen, who had come there, pparently, for the purpose of staying, to eave and go to the other hotel, to which he (the negro) was attached. Against such conduct Mr. Stith remonstrated in mild erms, it appears, and was answered by curses and an invitation to fight, and when he then advanced towards the negro, was struck by the latter with a barrel stave which seems to have been in his hand ready for such a purpose. Mr. Stith was pros-trated by one or two blows, and bled profusely, and was carried into the house by riends who came up shortly afterwards. The case was tried before P. M. Briggs, J P., on Tuesday. In default of a bond of five hundred dollars required, Small Blount was sent to jail.

Mr. Burt's blacksmith shop, near the foot of Walnut street, was broken into a night or two since, the thief having inserted some instrument between the door and facing and prized until the staple was withdrawn. They then took one of a number of chisels that had been carried to the shop during the day by Mr. F. M. James and prized open a desk, but it seems there was nothing in it to tempt his cupidity, as nothing was disturbed. He then selected out of the variety of tools in the shop two chisels and a file, which looks as if one of his objects in entering the shop was to possess himself of suitable tools for future operations in his profession of a burglar. There are evidently a number of dangerous characters in our midst and every possible effort should be made to ferret them out.

SUPERIOR COURT.

The Carter Trial-An Important Case in Regard to the Arrest of Sea-

Yesterday morning the trial of Elizabeth Carter, charged with being particeps criminis to the murder of Willie Carter, her stepson, in August last, was commenced in the Superior Court, His Honor, Judge Cloud, presiding. The prisoner, who was dressed in deep black, with a vail of the same color over her face, was seated with her counsel. Messrs. Adam Empie and John L. Holmes, her husband also occupying a seat by her side. Solicitor Edward Cantwell represent-

After the arraignment of the prisoner in due form of law, the jury were drawn, sworn and empanneled as follows: John Newkirk. P. D. Brown, J. F. Wilkerson, Elijah Hancock, Lot Newkirk, W. H. Griffith, W. A. Jones, H. L. Horne, A. E. Taylor, David West, E. G. Barnitz, Ephraim Hawes.

The Court then took a recess until after dinner, the jury in the meantime being placed in charge of an officer.

On the reassembling of Court, Dr. W. W. Lane was called by the State to testify as to the condition of the body, after which Alvord Van Amringe and Marion Hollister were examined as to facts connected with the finding of the body.

The question pending at the adjournment was upon the admissability of the declarations of the deceased. Mrs. Wiggs, Mrs. Roberts, and other witnesses for the State testified to severe bruises and welts upon the back and sides and thighs of the deceased child, at various times, from ten months to a week before the homicide. The State offered to show that these bruises whippings were done by the and accused. In fact, that the accused was habitually cruel to deceased, the purpose being to show her connection with the murder, and the condition of her feeling to prove by the declarations of the deceased that Mrs. Carter had - a motive in desiring his murder. The case of the State vs. Har riss (68d N. C.) was cited on behalf of the State by Solicitor Cantwell, and commented

Mr. Empie, for the defense, replied, insist ing that its admission would be a violation of fundamental principles. That these declarations were made in the absence of the accused, when she had no opportunity for cross-examination or contradiction.

His Honor reserved his opinion. The Court then took a recess until this

On the reassembling of Court, before the trial of the above case was commenced, in the case of the State vs. Julius Faarborg. indicted for arresting three seamen in South Carolina under a magistrate's warrant, his submission was, on motion, stricken out, and the cause set for a hearing anew, Mr. Rumley, who is U.S. Collector for this port, having, it appears, authorized the arrest under the act of the 7th of June, 1872. The Solicitor moved for a judgment notwithstanding the act, on the ground that the arrest was not made by "the master, mate. consignee or shipping commissioner," as equired by the 53d section of that law, but y Julius Faarborg, the defendant, who was not an officer or even a citizen, and no warrant. He said that was moustrous to contend that Congress had power to authorize the Collector to make an arrest in another State without warrant under his hand and seal, and that in fact Congress had not done or attempted any such thing. He admitted, however, as we understand, that under the act in question, the Commissioner under that law had power to issue his warrant to any part of the United States, and was not required to apply to the local magistrates for assistance, as formerly. This is important news to our scafaring friends. It may be well to add that we collected from the argument that a Commissioners' arrest was void, however, unless the prisoner was carried before a Magistrate's Court in 24 hours, or a shorter time, and that if the arrest should turn out to be improper the master, mate, U. S. Collector, &c., have each subjected themselves to a penalty of one hundred dollars, besides the ordinary penalties for assault and battery. This also, we suppose, will be news to this class of our readers.

His Honor reserved his decision.

The following cases were disposed of vesterday morning: Sharper Murphy, charged with the larceny of a bucket, the property of Henry Turner, was required to give security in the sum of $50 for his appearance before the next term of the Superior Court.
