Prisoners Burned Up in Trying t Burn Out of Jail Three Lives Lond and Two Barely Saved.

From the Louisburg Courier w obtain the particulars of the terrible catastrophe which befell some of the prisoners in Franklin county jail while attempting to burn out of the place :

On Wednesday night about 1 o'clock, our citizens were aroused their slumbers by the ringing of the Court House bell, and soon was discovered that the jail was on fire. Immediately a large concourse gathered any kind. around the building and made the most strenuous exertions to extinguish the flames, which was soon found to be a fruitless undertaking, from the fact that the Jailor was absent with the keys, and it was impossible to gain entrance into the building. Axes were then brought into requisition, and the outer door was soon demolished, and attempts made to rescue the prisoners confined in the dangeon. The door of the dungeon was also locked. and the key not to be found; and soon the smoke became so dense and suffocating that it drove every one that will be to make the currency from the entrance, and two helpless mortals were left to their doom. Efforts were then made to save the remaining prisoners on the upper floor, in which were confined two colored men and one colored woman: and after a good deal of labor the bars of the window were broken and the two men rescued. The woman being confined in a separate room on the opposite side, and besides being sick, she could not move or render any assistance whatever, when they were in need of it. W The groans and cries of the poor beings appealing for assistance was pitiful, and will long be remembered.

Too much praise cannot be awarded to our citizens for their timely assistance and help, which, but for them, might have resulted in another conflagration such as visited our town in 1860, for at one it seemed that the adjoining buildings would inevitably be destroyed. We also take pleasure in specially mentioning the efficient aid rendered by Messes. Whaley and Parker, and the thanks of the town are due them, a muter a soir on h

The claim is now set up that the whole election was unconstitutional and void, for the reason that under the law of the last session the constitutional provision that the polls shall be kept open four days was disregarded, and the election held but one day. Nothing of this, remember, until the votes had been counted and the result aunounced. The original provision for a four days election was adopted for this reason. It was apprehended that the newly enfranchised freedmen might be interfered with and intimidated by the whites if the election. was held by precincts, and it was accordingly provided for their protection that the polls should be opened only at the county seats. To give all the voters in the scattered precincts time and opportunity to get to the polls, tinued four days. The clause of the Constitution relating to this subject -quoted above nnites, as will be seen, the two provisions concerning place and time. It was held, and before the election generally understood that the proviso "until otherwise provided by law" applied as well to the time of holding open the polls as to the place, and there was no question that the Legislature, having ordered the election to be held by presents—the necessity for confining it to the county seats no longer existing—had also the power to order that the polls be open for but one day, there being no reason now for a longer continuance of the election.

Friday afternoon, about two o'clock, says the Ral. News, Hichard Moss came into the barreom of James Baker, on Wilmington street, badly under the influence of liquor. After staggering about the room for a while ac fell upon the floor, and was soon in a deep sleep. Elloris were made to arouse him, which falled, and he expired in a few mirutes.

yesterday on the Schr. Spray, we have the particulars of the loss of the steamship was a disappointment and source of Sherman, Capt. Thos. Haulsey, on Friday last. He reports as follows:

The steamship Sherman was bound from New York to New Orleans She had a crew of thirty-four men, with four passengers, consisting of a lady, her two children and a gentleman. She sprung a leak on Tuesday at 2 A. M. At 8 P. M. the same day the leak was found to be increasing so rapidly that the steamer was headed for the land. Experienced very heavy weather during Tuesday and Wednesday night. On Thursday morning at 5 o'clock, the water having put the fires out so that no further progress could be made, the captain ordered the anchors to be thrown out, the steamer being at that time 12 miles south half west of Little River bar. A boat was immediately dispatched to Little River for assistance. Capt. Morgan, of the Schr. Spray, with the assistance of Mr. T. W. Gore and Mr. N. B. Morris, went out early Friday morning. They arrived at 34 A. M. and found the steamer in a sinking condition. Took off five of the crew, and a portion of the carge, together with Mr. Wm. Mean, first mate, who was placed in charge of the articles removed. By this time the Schr. Florence, Capt. Hill, arrived at the scene of the disaster and came to anchor at the stern of the Sherman.

The Spray then left for this port, where she arrived safely yesterday afternoon, it being understood that the Schr. Florence, being light, would take off the passengers and the balance of the crew, together with as much of the cargo as possible, the baggage, &c. There was a heavy sea prevailing at the no doubt experienced in making the transfer. At that time the pumps of the doomed steamer were all choked and she was settling at the rate of about eight inches an hour in ten fathoms water.

The Steamship Sherman was about 973 tons burthen, was owned by Frederick Baker, of New York, and is said by the first officer, Mr. Moan, who is an "old tar," to have been one of the finest crafts that he ever sailed in.

During the period intervening between the time the steamer sprung a leak, at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, up to the time the Schr. Spray left the wreck, Mr. Moan says that none of the officers or crew had been able to snatch a moment's sleep or rest, the latter being constantly employed at the pumps and the former in endeavoring to devise ways and means for the safety of the vessel, and of course all, including the passengers, were completely exhausted.

The Schr. Florence was expected to arrive here last night with the passengers and the remainder of the crew.

Mayor's Court. The only case before the Mayor's Court vesterday morning was that of Dennis Jones. charged with stealing five packages of tobacco from Alex. Oldham, who was bound over in the sum of $100 for his appearance at the next term of the Superior Court.

One individual was arraigned on the charge of smoking a pipe in the market, but the Mayor suspended judgment to hear the decision of the Board of Aldermen in regard to that part of the Ordinance in reference to the Market House.

A Convenience.

The denizens of that portion of the city esiding North of the W. & W. R. R., will be glad to learn that a wood yard is to be established at an early day at the foot of Brunswick street. The street is being Mr. Thornton hopes to be sufficiently reggraded for that purpose and the superfluous earth will be used to fill up Nutt street. This will be a great convenience, as the wood now has to be hauled across Boney Bridge on Fourth street, with a considerable extra charge for drayage.

OPERA HOUSE

The "Georgia Minstrels" Last Night. The "Georgia Minstrels," composed of fourteen colored performers, gave the first of their entertalmments in this city last night to quite a large audience. The entile troupe fully sustained the glowing tributes they have won from the press of other cities, and proved themselves a combination of rare excellence. They are simply perfect in the delineation of the negro character, and present a collection of oddities and comicalities which tend to provoke the most side-splitting laughter and uprorious applause. They manifest a vim and naturalness that imparts to their very laughable performance the most pleasing reality. Their desire to please is only exceeded by their brilliant success in the rendition of their minstrel specialities. The manipulation of the bones and tamborine by Grace, Porter, Devonear and Kersands, we have never seen equalled. Kersands, particularly, in his several appearances, betrays a seeming unaffectedness and real negro sifcerity that provokes the most uncontrollable merriment. He is a real negro and acts just so. The songs "Mother do not Shut the Door," " And the Old House aint what it Used to Be," by Lewis Pierson and Sam Jones, respectively, were rendered in a style simply excellent. The rendition of the ballad "Out in the Cold," by Abe Cox, was loudly applauded. Taken together, the vocal qualities of the troupe are extremely fine, which has the effect of throwing the instrumental portion somewhat in the shade. Many Minstrel ferces were presented and highly appreciated. A comical novelty in the Minstrel line is the "barn yard" specialities by Abe Cox, who was greeted with considerable applause. Dick Little plays the banjo with a master hand and exhibits rare powers in its use. The numerous clog and plantation dances were rendered in superb style. Upon the whole, we are
