THE PHILLIPS-BIENVENU DURL.

A Millinery Bill That Led Straight to Death-Full Particulars of the Late Duel in Mississippi.

[New Orleans Times, April 6.]

On the first day of July, 1873, Judge William H. Cooley met his death, in a duel, at the hands of R. Barnwell Rhett, Jr. It was the first fatal duel in this section for several years, and, although it was followed by several rencontres on the "field of honor," it was not matched until yesterday, when, at the same place, the village of Bay St. Louis, in Mississippi, Mr. Alfred B. Phillips, an attorney-at-law in New Orleans, shot and instantly killed Mr. Aristide Bienvenu, also of this city, in a meeting of a similar nature.

About two weeks ago there was in progress of trial before Judge Cullom, of the Fifth District Court, the case of Madame Olympe-the Canal street modiste-vs. Mr. Aristide Bienvenu, wherein plaintiff claimed a sum of money for millinery and dressmaking account contracted by Mrs. Bienvenu. Mr. A. B. Phillips was plaintiff's counsel. At the trial were present Mr. and Mrs. Bienvenu, and upon its close the latter proceeded to the clerk's office, whither Mr. Phillips directly following, he was straightway met by the lady, who from upbraiding him for the course he had pursued in the case, involving an alleged attachment for her horses and carriage, drifted into a violent abuse, which embodied the application to Mr. Phillips of all the unpleasant epithets in the calendar, and to which Mr. Phillips made the response that his assailant being a woman he could offer no resentment, but that he would notify her husband that he must restrain such exhibitions. Leaving then the office for the court-room, to place the matter before Mr. Bienvenn, he met that gentleman at the threshold of the door, coming toward him, and to him said: "Mr. Bienvenu, your wife has grossly insulted me, and I desire you to prevent any further repetion of such conduct." To this Mr. Bienvenn replied, "If my wife insulted you she has done just right, and I myself will take occasion to insult you still more.' No sooner did he utter these words than Mr. Phillips, provoked beyond endurance, knocked Mr. Bienvenu down, at which juncture Mrs. B. vociferating her indignation, made a rush for Mr. Phillips with intent to attack him, but being at once prevented by bystanders, committed no damage. Meanwhile Mr. B., rising to a sitting posture, made a movement as if to draw a weapon, but those standing by restrained his movement in that direction, Mr. Phillips standing his ground quietly, but making no effort beyond his first blow. He then left the apartment, as did the other parties shortly thereafter. The result of the episode transpired yesterday in a duel to the death. Mr. Bienvenu sought the assistance of two friends, a challenge was passed and accepted, Saturday, April 4, named as the date, shotguns and ball as the weapons, forty paces the distance, and Bay St. Louis as the place. The parties with their friends assembled at 8 o'clock A. M., yesterday, at the depot of the New Orleans, Mobile & Texas Railroad, at the foot of Canal street, in time to take the train which was destined to burry them to the arena of blood. Messrs. Du Bertrand and Chas. D'Armas acted as seconds, and Dr. Isaac Scott as surgeon, to accompany Mr. Phillips; Messrs. Leop dd Lange and Chas, Reiffiel as seconds, and Dr. Huard as surgeon, accompanied Mr. Bienvenu. A number of other gentlemen went as spectators, apparently actuated by a desire to off et a compromise or settlement in lege, went to her room, struck a event an opportunity should occur. match on the floor, set her light upon Among others were Col. the time the rest of the company had broken into groups, and were lounging around as casual spectators.

The principals appeared to be unexceptionably cool, calm and collected. Neither evidenced the slightest symptom of nervousness, or gave any indi-cation of personal apprehension, although there was no levity of manner, in keeping with the terrible tragedy so near at hand. The weapons, double-barreled shotguns, were duly loaded with ball by the seconds and the principals were placed in position.

Mr. Du Bertrand then briefly stated the terms of the cartel, which stipulated that the combatants should stand with their weapons held in such a manner that the muzzles should be pointing to the ground; that the words should be: "Gentlemen are you ready?" that silence would be interpreted into consent, when the words 'fire, one, two, three" would be given that they could raise their weapons and fire after the word "fire' and before the word "three." Mr. Du Bertrand then gave the manner in which the word was given, which was done in as rapid a manner as the circumstances of the case would permit, evidently with the hope of the gentleman, if possible, to prevent bloodshed. But alas this effort proved futile, as the sequel proved. Real work now began. The question was asked: Gentlemen, are you ready? Silence gave consent, and the fatal words fire! one! were given. At the word one Mr. Phillips delivered his fire, and almost simultaneously, but perceptibly afterward, Mr. Bienvenn's gun was discharged, and he fell dead, shot through the brain. The word two was not given, as both parties had discharged their weapons, and one lay a bleeding, lifeless corpse; the other standing at his Drs. Scott and Huard hurried to the fallen victim of the bloody code, but all their skill was of no avail, as could readily be seen. The ball entered the right cheek of the dead man, crushing the jawbone, ranging upward through the brain, and then ranging downward into the spinal column. Death must have been instantaneous. The unfortunate man bled with unusual profusion. His brother, who was present, appeared to be greatly affected, and burst into tears. The seconds of Mr. Phillips asked and obtained permission to retire their friend from the field, and, after the usual civilities and expressions of regret at the fatal termination of the affair, accompanied him to a neighboring residence, where he remained antil the return train for the city should arrive. A. D. BROWN At 1:40 P. M. the train reached the depot; in the meantime the body of Mr. Bienvenu had been placed in an improvised coffin, which was duly placed upon the cars, and the entire party returned to the city by the same train, arriving at 4 P. M. It was indeed brief work; the party arrived at the duelling ground at 10 o'clock, A. M.; at 11 A. M. the fight had transpired, and one lay an inanimate corpse. At 4 P. M. the body was delivered in the city, and the event numbered with the things of the past.

A Naughty Philadelphia Girl. A young girl of Philadelphia, who is now on her travels, went to Westminster, and condescended to admire the great abbey. With admiration came the desire of possession. The whole abbey was too large to be re-moved, so she quietly took a penknife from her pocket and cut off a piece of the chair of Edward the Confessor! She was arrested, and, as she was very pretty, they let her off with $500; the price would have been higher if she had been plainer. Not contented with this, she journeyed to Dresden, in search of new worlds to conquer. While visiting church there, she attempted to possess herself of some flowers from shrine. In pulling them off she overturned the image of the virgin, to the infinite horror of the custodians of the church. For this pleasing freak her father paid $2,500. Her beauty probably made the fine small on this occasion also; but fancy the panic in that family if she had red hair and freckles! And, if she had been a forbidding female of uncertain age, I dare not dwell on the financial crisis that must certainly regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE AL DINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other pubbound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any shape or number of volumes, for ten times its cost, and then there are the chromos besides!

ten times its cost, and then there are the chromos besides!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The imustrations of THE ALDINE have wen a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel-plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

To fully realize the wonderful work which THE ALDINE is doing for the cause of art culture in America, it is only necessary to consider the cost to the people of any other decent representations of the productions of great painters.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a triffing

By Brewiums for 1874:

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River Wyoming view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial, over the signature of Mr. Moran himself:

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20, 1873.

Messrs. Janes Sutton & Co. Mesers. James Sutton & Co.

Gentlemen:—I am delighted with the proofs n color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical process of the cessful representations original paintings.

Very respectfully,

THOS. MORAN. These Chromos are in every sense American .--They are by an original American process, with ma-terial of American manufacture, from designs of American scenery by an American painter, and pre-sented to subscribers to the first successful American Art Journal. If no better because of all this, they will certainly possess an interest no foreign produc-tion can inspire, and neither are they any the worse if by reason of peculiar facilities of production they cost the publishers only a trifle, while equal in every respect to other chromos that are sold singly for double the subscription price of THE ALDINE.—
Persons of taste will prize these pictures for themselves—not for the price they did or did not cost, and will appreciate the enterprise that renders their distribution results.

will appreciate the enterprise will.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x26 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

For 50 cents extra, the chromos will be sent, meunted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will hereafter be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of James Sutton & Co.
