The paramount proposition in legislation in North Carolina at this time, we take it, is this: Shall an earnest attempt be made to adjust the debt of the State? Beside this all other propositions are of small moment and interest. The people can live under the present Constitution a few years longer without material loss or serious consequences of any kind. But if the State's credit is impaired, if immigration is stopped, the whole population will suffer, the growth of the Commonwealth will be retarded and its industrial interests will receive a blow from which it may be hard to Let some arrangement for a compromise of the debt, an arrangement which will not impoverish the people and which will be just to the creditors, be devised as soon as possible. The people favor a fair and honorable adjustment of the debt of the State. We do not think they desire a Convention at this time under all the sur. roundings.

The descriptive and statistical department, in the language of T. B. Kingsbury, Esq., the gifted associate editor of the magazine, is one in which the commercial, agricultural, mining and other interests will be represented-all that concerns North Carolina (heaven's blessings attend her) in her past, present and future."

The educational department contains a sketch of the Orphan Asylum, prefaced by a very correct drawing of the institution, the school law of North Carolina, an address by Prof. Doub, and the continuation of "The Discipline of the School."

The editorials are evidently written by Mr. Kingsbury. We are sincerely glad to see this gentleman occupying a field for which his pure literary taste and ability peculiarly fit him.

The poem "Over the Grave of Col. Sol. Williams" is very creditable to the Warren county poet who first sent it to the Battleboro Advanc: (in 1872, we think.) The second poem, "Two Years Ago," pays a beautiful tribute to other heroes of the "Lost Cause," whose names

"As long as life and thought endure, No Southern bosom can forget."

A literary magazine is needed in North Carolina. A strictly literary department would be an addition to Our Lining and Our Dead, and we know of no one more competent to conduct it, than the present associate editor. An occasional serial story might also give it more of a magazine character and appearance.

We are glad to learn that this peculiarly North Carolina publication has every guarantee of success. Long may it honor our glorious dead and amuse and instruct our

It holds its sessions for the most part in secret, except mithe case of matters of a public character, when the doors are thrown open. > The never ending dispute about Ritualism it is believed is certain to come before the convention in more more than one shape and on more than one occasion, together with the Cummins movement and other issues which have attracted general attention since the last Triennial Convention. Seven of the forty-one dioceses, viz., Central New York, Bishop Huntingdon; Western New York, Bishop Coxe; Pennsylvania, Bishop Stevens; Virginia, Bishop Johns; Massachusetts, Bishop Paddock; Delaware, Bishop Lee; and Rhode Island, Bishop Clark, have adopted strong resolutions against the "extreme practices" commonly known as ritualistic, and appointed as delegates to the General Convention men known to be more or less identified with low church principles. In addition to these matters a number of important subjects will be considered. One of the most important of these is the proposed increase of the Episcopate. The subject of intercommunion with the Russo-Greek Church has also been referred to a commission, who have visited Constantinople and laid the subject before the patriarch of that city. Another commission on friendly intercourse with the Church of Sweden have visited Stockholm and also prepared a report to the convention.

SECOND DAY.

The nomination of Rev. Dr. Williams as assistant secretary was confirmed, and the usual standing committees were apppointed. The applications of Bishop Seymour, of Illinois, and Bishop Wells, of Wisconsin, for election to the House of Bishops was referred to that body. Resolutions expressing gratification at the presence of the Bishops of Litchfield, Montreal and Quebec in the convention were adopted, as were also resolutions inviting the members of the Orthodox Greek Church to seats in the body. The chair appointed Dr. Breck, Dr. Vinton, Chief Justice Waite and Mr. Race a committee to tender thanks to the Bishop of Litchfield for his sermon yesterday. A memorial from Texas asking that the diocese be divided, was referred to the committee on canons. A memorial from the diocese of New Jersey requesting a division of that diocese, was referred to the committee on admission of new ceeded upon the ground, and been in-tended to prove that Mr. Kellogg dioceses. It was resolved that the sessions of the body be held from 10 A. M. until 4 P. M., with a half hour recess at 1 o'clock. A communication was received from the House of Bishops announcing that the bishops of part of the general conspiracy to "get even" with me, without regard to Indiana, Minnesota and Central New York had been appointed a committee to make suitable response to the telegram received yesterday from the Church Congress sitting at Brighton, England, that this committee had decided on the following answer to be ceived a dispatch from Pensacola, ALL DE SECURITIONS ASSESSED. sent:

APPLETON'S

American Cyclopædia

New Revised Edition.

Entirely rewritten by the a dest writers on every subject. Printed from n type, and illustrated with Several thousand Engravings and Maps.

The work originally published under the title of THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA was completed in 1863, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit to an exact and thorough revision, and to usue a new edition entitled THE AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA.

Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the convenience and refinement of social life. Great wars and consequent resultions have occurred, invelving national changes of peculiar moment. The civil was of our own country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily been ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

Large accessions to our geographical knewledge have accepted. Large accessions to our geographical knewledge have been made by the indefatigable explorers of have been made by the indefatigable explorers of Africa.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into public view a multifude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars.—Great battles have been fought and important sleges maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their permanent and authentic history.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every freeh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress of political events.

The work has been begun, after long and carefunctioning in the progress of the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination.

None of the original stereotype plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type, forming in fact a new Cyclopædia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge.

The illustrations which are introduced for the final time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater locid.

The illustrations which are introduced for the fira-time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater lucid ity and force to the explanations in the text. The embrace all branches of science and of natural histo-ry, and depict the most famous and remarkable fea-tures of scenery, architecture, and art, as well as the processes of mechanics and manufacturers. At though intended for instruction rather than embel lishment, no pains have been spared to insure their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed they will find a welcome reception as an admirable feature of the Cyclopædia and worthy of its high character. and worthy of its high character.
