SAMUEL LONGFELLOW. The golden sea its mirror spreads Beneath the golden skies, And but a narrow strip between Of land and shadow lies. The cloud-like rocks, the rock-like clouds,
Dissolved in glory float,
And, midway of the radiant flood Hangs silently the boat.

The sea is but another sky, The sky a sea as well, And which is earth, and which the heavens The eye can scarcely tell.

So when for us life's evening hour.
Soft passing shall descend,
May glory born of earth and heaven, The earth and heavens blend; Flooded with peace the spirit float,
With silent rapture glow,
Till where earth ends and heaven begins The soul shall scarcely know.

A Fashion Decree from Paris. [From the London Globe.]

"Coming events cast their shadows before," and if fashion has any influence upon Fahrenheit, we are likely to have a winter of very great severity. The Paris dress designers have already made their arrangements for it and the last novelties are revealed to an expectant public. For the last few years the milliner's idea has been to dress her customers as much like men as possible, to give them stand-up collars and leather belts, to arm them with umbrellas hanging from the waist as if they were swords, to supply them with gentlemen's watch pockets and gentlemen's watch chains. Even in fashion the world must advance, and the move for the coming winter is decidedly a move forward. Fashionable ladies, who have been dressed like men, must now dress like wild animals. All the new tis-sues are to resemble furs, and as a few years ago young ladies were said to wear Dolly Vardens, so now they will put on their "camels." That is the generic name by which the Parisian modistes have called this year's fabrics, though of course there is a variety allowed, and a young lady may appear as a reindeer, as a bear, as a northern elk—in fact, as any rough-skinned animal she may select. But it is necessary that the skins should consist of as few pieces as possible. The "camel" and a collar which will be known in the fashionable world as a dog's collar, will complete the costume. But this new invention of the French dressmakers has not so much originality after all. The idea is merely a development of the Ulster great coat, which was borrowed a couple of years ago from the Irish peasantry. This desire for the roughest materials and the rudest make has produced already strange results. In Switzerland Englishmen are dressed so like guides that it is difficult to distinguish them. Even at Brighton the taste for walking sticks has declared that a perfectly plain bit of ash cut out of the wood and innocent of scraping and varnishing is the most fashionable cane. A silver ornament is allowed near the handle as a sort of trade mark to show that it belongs to a gentleman. Even if the winter of 1874 should be as inclement as that of 1870, there may yet be days when the 'camel' would be too warm, and so less heavy garments have to be prepared. Still the relations with the animal world will be kept up.

> The Country School Mom. [Josh Billings.]

Ladies, when they cannot go out like beasts, will go out like birds. All trimming are to be made of feathers.

The plumage is to cover the dresses,

but a whole bird will be in the hat.

A very fashionable lady may therefore assume a parrot's head and pea-cock's tail."

She is invariably just about twentyremains rite there for a term ov years. She wears her hair either kut short or hanging around in ringlets, and iz as precise in all things az one of Fairbank's improved platform scales. She never laffs out loud, and seldum even smiles, but when she does, she does it accordin to the rules laid down by Murray for speaking out and pronouncing the inglish language korrectly.

She is the very essence of double extracted propriety, and would rather be four years behind the fashions, in her dress and bonnet, than to spel a woad wrong, or parse a sentence in-

She keeps a scrap book and an album, and would prefer rather to have the autograph ov sum milk and water poet, than the name of sum good man to a sixty days note. The country school-mom soldom dies an old maid; she gets married generally to some man who has but little educashun, and he thinks (as he ought to) that there ain't another such a larnt woman as his wife on the face of the earth. With all her precise phoolishness, her pompous knowledge, her silky sentimentalism, and her allmost allwass mistaking manner for matter, I respect the country school mom; she taught me mi letters, she was pashunt when I was stupid, she soothed me when I was frackshus, and she often give me a titbit from her luncheon at noon-time.

May kind Heaven strew some kind ov happyness in her pathway, for she iz paid poorly, worked hardly, and the stepmother to everybody's children, she never receives from the PRACTICAL WORKER IN ALL KINDS OF world ennything better than the most formal respect.

-"I wouldn't be a cook for the whole world!" said a fashionable young lady to her betrothed husband. "Of course not." he replied; "if you were to cook for the whole world you combines made up in any style. would never be able to get through your work; but you'll be able to man-age it nicely for our little family."

Matrimony and Purgatory. A priest who was examining a con-firmation class in the South of Ireland asked, "What is the sacrament of matrimony?" A bright little girl at the head of the class answered: "A state of torment into which sowls enter to prepare for a better worruld." "That's the answer for purgatory," said the priest. "Put her down fut of the blass," said the subdeacon. "Lave her alone," retorted the priest "for anything you or I know to the contrary she may be perfeetly sight."

exposes himself to the missmatic influences which give rise to chills and fever and other malarious epidemics and endemics, without previously fortifying his system against their insidious attacks by the use of a protective medicinal agent. The hardiest constitution is by no means proof against such maladies, much less one naturally weak or bilions, or the antagonistic power of which is lessened by an or the antagonistic power of which is lessened by an irregular habit of body. The inhabitants of the bot, form lands of the South, of the new clearings of the West, of suburhan districts where sunken lots exist, of every locality of the American continent, in fact, where malaria is epidemic or sporadic, declare that the only true antidote to the missmatic virus that they have ever used is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There seems to be something peculiarly resistant in this standard preventive and remedy to all hurtful atmospheric influences.

MISCELLANEOUS. Prospectus for 1874 SEVENTH YEAR THE ALDINE,

An illustrated monthly journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest periodical in the world.

A representative and champion of American taste. NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES! HE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THEAL. DINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume example of the possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any shape or number of volumes, for ten times its cost, and then there are the chromos besides!

The flustrations of THE ALDINE have wen a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are ex amples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel-plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater if acility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate fisch of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

To fully realize the wonderful work which THE ALDINE is doing for the cause of art culture in America, it is only necessary to consider the cost to the people of any other decent representations of the productions of great painters.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling toot, enjoy in his own home the pleasure and refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted pistes for 1874 will be by Thos, Moran and J. D. Woodward.

The Christmas iseue for 1874 will centain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors. ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

soft fire value and the contract of the PREMIUMS FOR 1874:

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thomsand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact fac similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial, over the signature of Mr. Moran himself:

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20, 1873.

Messrs. James Sutton & Co.

Gentlemen:—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos, They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical process of the original paintings.

Very respectfully,

(Signed)

These Chromos are in every sense American.—

These Chromos are in every sense American.— They are by an original American process, with material of American manufacture, from designs of American scenery by an American painter, and presented to subscribers to the first successful American Art Journal. If no better because of all this, they will certainly possess an interest no foreign production can inspire, and neither are they any the worse if by reason of peculiar facilities of production they cost the publishers only a trille, while equal in every respect to other chromos that are sold singly for double the subscription price of THE ALDINE.—Persons of taste will prize these pictures for themselves—not for the price they did or did not cost, and will appreciate the enterprise that renders their distribution possible.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and besutiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS:

FIVE DOLLARS per annum, in advance, with on FIVE DOLLARS per annum, in advance, with on chromos free.
For 50 cents extra, the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.
THE ALDINE will hereafter be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or cluidated by the control of the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of James Sutton & Co.
