SEC. 1. The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact, That section 1, chapter 62, of Battle's Revisal, be amended by striking out not yet arrived. We see no good reason for unnecessary haste about so grave a "Senate," so that said section will read "with the advice of the Senate." Sec. 2. Every president or other chief officer of every railroad, canal, or other public work of internal improvement in which the State owns an interest shall, on or before the first day of October in each year, make or cause to be made to the Board of Internal Improvements, a written report of his company for that year,

Sec. 3. The Board of Internal Improvement shall cause their secretary to report to the General Assembly at the commencement of every session the condition of all public works reported to them; also the names of all persons failing or refusing to report as required by section 2 of this act; which report the Governor shall, in connection with report required by section 4, chapter 62, Battle's Revisal, transmit to the General Assembly with his message. Sec. 4. Any person failing to report as required by section 2, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction before any Judge of Superior Court of this State, be fined not less than one nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than one nor more than five years at hard one nor more than five years at hard labor in the State's prison; and it shall be the duty of the Attorney Generate bring suit against all persons failing to report in the Superior Country of application.

"Little Ho-Peep" and the Dying Child. A writer in Cassell's Magazine says: I remember when I was nursing in a hospital once, there was a poor little boy, about six years old, dying of rhenmatic fever. I was night nurse in that ward, and regularly when the attack of pain came on, he used to scream out for me:

"Nursey, sing. It harts me. Sing

the hart away." So then I'd prop him up on arm sing one song after another. "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" to "Blackeyed Susan," till the paroxysm of pain was over, an' be'd quiet down again. I always knew when that was by his idinin' his voice in too, such a weak, cipe of a voice, poor lamb, but I was better glad to hear it than any music, for it telled me the pain was gone for awhile, an' I could lie him down to sleep again.

Poor wee mite! I was singing "Lit-George Miller, the deceased, came to his tle Bo-Peep" the night he died. I death by the accidental discharge of a gun had him in my arms. He been sinkg all day. I knew he couldn't last in the hands or upon the lap of Abram Wilther, an' thought he tried to join liamson. In accordance with these facts, usual, his voice went into a gasp Abram Williamson was discharged from roke. I'd been sometimes used custody.

Edwin Adams Saturday Night.

It is hardly necessary again to call attention to the promised performance at the Opera House Saturday evening. Edwin Adams is one of the foremost actors on the American stage, and Enoch Arden is his specialty. Intelligent critics have pronounced his representation of this character equal if not superiour to that of the cultured and versatile Booth. It is a play that interests all lovers of fine art, and in the hands of such a master of tragedy as Mr. Adams is a splendid enjoyment that is remembered forever. Tennyson's beautiful but simple narrative is endowed by Adams with au energy and magnificence that suggest the noblest genius. He creates an Enoch Arden out of his own rich imagination, and clothes him in the vesture woven from the threads of profound study and histrionic culture. The pathetic figure recedes from us more glorious and grander than when we saw him go in the poem.

A Woolen Factory. Now that Wilmington has secured a cot ton factory located in her midst, the next step in the manufacturing line, would be the establishment here of a factory for the manufacture of woolen goods. We hear of a party (conversant with the business) who is willing to risk a few thousands in the investment. He believes it will pay. As to the supply of the raw material, portion of that must come from a distance until sheep husbandry shall receive more attention from our people and our legisla tors. The latter have a law under consideration taxing dogs, and may possibly do something to foster the increased production of mutton and wool.

We understand that buildings suitable SHERIDAN, MACK & DAY .- Opera House. for the purpose in view are already constructed, and well located. Who will come forward and start the ball?

- Mr. McDiarmid, of the Robe Telegraph Completed. - Import Entries for sale at the office

The electric wire which workmen have for some time been employed in stretching between this city and Charlotte, we are glad to say, is at last completed. The first message was sent at 7:15 last evening, and Wilmington and Charlotte are now clasped by another link that will increase their mutual interests and facilitate their future

Thus little by little the band of union strengthens. The railroad is completed and the telegraph wire is completed and were it possible to run a steamboat between our city and the "future London" we should favor it at once. The Eastern and Western portions of the State once so distant. are now brought almost as close together as next door neighbors, with only a division wall to seperate them. So far so good say we. "Westward the star of empire takes

Three or four hurried taps of the bell last night, at about 8 o'clock, proclaimed the existence of a fire. On account of the difficulty of locating the supposed conflagration, the bell did not tap the fire district, and the consequence was that everybody rushed to the Market House. One of the engines also was taken to that spot. The bell in a few minutes ceased to ring and the crowd slowly dispersed, and it was considered a false alarm. We learned, however, that the alarm was caused by a colored woman whose clothes had taken fire, in her house on Fourth street, near Boney Bridge, and who rushed into the street crying for help. The necessary assistance was rendered. We were unable to learn the extent of her injuries or further particulars.

Dealing in Dry Goods. Rainey Young, a collud oman, was arrested late last evening on a search warrant by officer Strode and arraigned before Justice Van Amringe. On examination of the premises of the fair Rainey a dress was found which had been described as a piece son took down the gun and was hold of stolen property and Rainey was at once arraigned to answer the charges brought against her. After a short examination she was bound over in her own recognizance in the sum of $50 for her appearance at the next term of the Superior Court.

Train Delayed. The Northern train due here at 6:05 P. M., was detained several hours yesterday by an accident which occurred at some point between Rocky Mountand Goldsboro. There was no material damage to the train and no injury to passengers.

Magistrate's Court. S. Van Amringe, J P. State vs. Annie Hill, assault and battery. Judgment: Both parties guilty of an affray and fined 5 cents

Many of our Catholic fellow-citizens were yesterday called upon by a man dressed in the attire of a Catholic priest or advanced Catholic theological student, who represented himself as a poor student or candidate for the ministry, collecting funds in order to be enabled to prosecute his studies. He succeeded in nearly every instance in receiving small donations, and his disguise was so perfect that not the slightest doubt of his motives was entertained by those he called upon, who gave liberally in order to aid him in carrying out his expressed intention. He seemed to know-the names of the families he called upon, for he stopped only at residences. This, however, was explained from the fact of his having a small white boy along with him who it seems he had prevailed upon to undertake his guidance. In nearly every instance he stated that he had been authorized by Fathers Gross and White of St. Thomas Catholic church in this city to make these collections. This fact coming to the knowledge of Fathers Gross and White, they pronounced him an imposter at once and ordered his arrest. He was taken into custody late yesterday afternoon just as he was unfolding his sympathetic tale at the door of another intended victim. His further progress was thereby cut short after he had collected about $25 00 it is stated, and he was lodged in the guard house to await a trial before the Mayor this morning. While passing through the guard house last night in our perambulations, we caught sight of the alleged imposter and being unable to stem the current of our repotorial curiosny, we walked up to him in order to hear what he had to say. He willingly made the following statement: "My name is James Hamilton, I arrived in this city this (Wednesday) morning. I am a native of the county Leitrim, Ireland, and have been away from there but a short time. For some years past I have been a student at Cavan Theological College, Ireland. It was my intention to enter a seminary in America to finish my studies and being short of funds. I was collecting for that purpose. I did not state that I was authorized by Fathers White and Gross to collect. I did not think it necessary, as I had the necessary papers to show should I be called upon for them." Hamilton is about 30 years old and of good appearance.

KATIE PUTNAM.

The Katie Putnam Comedy Company a usual had quite a large audience last night to witness their third and last appearance 100 Bbls Glue, in this city during the present season. The 200 Paper Rivets, Pearl of Savoy was another choice selection in which Miss Putnam shone to fine advantage in the role of Marie. The bal ance of the company were well up to their several characters and the audience entered into the spirit and plot of the story with a zest that made them alternately grave and gay as they witnessed the well assumed emotions of the charming pearl or laughed merrily at some of the comical situations which were produced during the performance. The play was well put upon the stage and we need hardly say was thoroughly appreciated.

Premium Crops. The State Agricultural Society have

awarded the premiums for corn and sweet potatoes to Col. Wm. Alderman, of Cumberland county. On oath he testified as we learn from the State Agricultural Journal. that he raised last year on four acres of land 244 bushels of corn, at a cost of $77 20. Col. Alderman raised during the same year on one acre 480 bushels of sweet potatoes, at a cost of $95.
