A BIOGRAPHY IN BRIEF.

Andrew Johnson, seventeenth President of the United States, was born at Raleigh, N. C., December 29, 1808, and from the age of ten until the autumn of 1824 was the apprentice of a tailor in Raleigh. In 1826 he settled in Greenville, Tennessee, and worked at his trade. He was elected Alderman in 1828, 1829 and 1830, Mayor in 1831, 1832 and 1833, member of the Legislature in 1835 and 1839, and Presidential Elector in 1840. He was elected to the State Senate in 1841, and sat in Congress from 1843 to 1854. From 1853 to 1857 he was Governor of Tennessee. and United States Senator from 1857 to 1863. He was nominated for Vice President by the Baltimore Convention in 1864, and on the assassination of President Lincoln succeeded him in the Presidential chair. In 1872 he was defeated as a candidate for Congressman-at-large, having been previously defeated as a Senatorial candidate by Mr. Cooper. After a fierce and prolonged fight, he becomes in 1875 the successor of Parson Brownlow in the United States Senate. Who has lived such a life?

PROVISION FOR GEN. GRANT.

"A Boston Merchant" suggests, through the New York Tribune, that General Grant probably regrets the resignation of his military position, and would gladly return to it. To meet the President's wishes, and at the same time restore peace and prosperity to the country, the writer proposes that President Grant shall at once resign the Presidency, with the understanding that Congress shall create the office of Field-Marshal with a large salary for life, and Mr. Vice-President Wilson shall appoint General Grant to that position.

The only provision Grant desires the country to make for him is to give him a third term as President, which it most assuredly will not do.

BUTLER QUOTES TENNYSON.

During the debate the past week on the Civil Rights bill Mr. Benjamin F. Butler amused the House of Representatives by soaring into poetical regions. He tried to recite a passage from Tennyson and rendered it thus: Oh, God, for a man with head and heart Like one of the strong ones long gone by; Aristocrat, Democrat, Autocrat-whatever they call him, what care I?

One who can rule, and dare not lie. He ought to have given the House one of his Biblical quotations, and sat down. Butler is a beast in war and politics and has a beastly bad habit of getting his quotations wrong.

CONVENTION.

One of the leading Conservative members of the Legislature writes us: "The sentiment against Convention is stronger than it was before the meeting of the Executive Committee. * * * The movement is, in my opinion, weaker than ever."

We have other information of similar character, which leads us to the conclusion that there is no probability that the present Legislature will call a Convention.

Having survived "the late unpleasantness" and all its woes, and having also lived through the period of Reconstruction, the women of the South, it is presumed, can stand without wincing the following spiteful effusion of a Chicago Republican paper: "The whole population [of New Orleans], in fact, in the ecstacy of its hatred, which is barren of any definite result, vents its spleen as children do by making faces, turning up their noses and calling names; and, as the female sex at the South is specially accomplished in this direction, having had some experience during the War of the Rebellion with Gen. Butler, and during the war of 1812 with Gen. Jackson, both of whom were exposed to the same sort of obloquy, the women devote their spare time to this elevating and womanly business." The mention of Beast Butler in this connection was peculiarly unfortunate, even for a Republican organ. His shameless military orders concerning the ladies of New Orleans, while he was commander there, reflect upon him and his superiors nothing but infamy, to which his other brutalities and his numerous rogueries are white as the stainless snow. The flippant reference to those matters exhibits a debauched heart or a wandering intellect.

We are a zealous friend of the Philadelphia Centennial. But we will "take ours with sugar" something like the following brand. The Baltimore Sun thinks "it might add some eclat to the occasion, and insure its being a National festival, if the government of the United States would so far assist the celebration of the Centennial of American Independence as to put into practical operation in all parts of the country the principles which it is intended to commemorate."

The gorgeous and energetic sovereign of THE PRESS SINCE THE CAUCUS. Egypt is as gallant, it would appear, as he is liberal and progressive. He has presented Mrs. Fitch, daughter of Gen. Sherman, with a magnificent necklace and ear-drops, whose estimated value is $300,000. This was done in recognition of the General's services in advising him how to reorganize and equip his army during a visit in 1873. The following is a description: "The necklace is formed of a double row of solitaire diamonds, consisting of about two hundred stones of exceptional beauty and brilliancy. and pendant from the lower row are pearshaped stones of great size and rarity. The larger brilliants will weigh from eight to fourteen carats, and all are set in the French fashion, a la Goutte d'Eau, and dazzle the eyes like sunshine filtered through cut crystals. The earrings are composed of a number of the larger sized diamonds, arranged to match the necklace. Both are contained in a superb jewel case of velvet, and are accompanied by a congratulatory etter from the Khedive. It is stated that the Western Union Telegraph Company is considering the question of placing the wires of their lines underground in all the large cities, thus dispensing with the unseemly poles that disfigure city thoroughfares. Besides the alleged greater cheapness of the system and more infrequent repairs required, it is believed that it will be less liable to interruption by the elements and defective insulation than at present. The underground system prevails extensively in England, embracing about three thousand miles of wire and one hundred miles of iron piping. The wires of the first telegraph line from Washington to Baltimore, which was the first in the world, were laid in pipes under ground, and worked as well as the lines on poles now do, but were taken up to test the latter. So we learn from the Baltimore Sun. The cost of conducting wire for underground lines, covered with gutta percha, taped and tarred, is $85 per mile. The total cost per mile for sixty underground wires is $7,130, or about $119 per mile of wire. The underground system in England gives comparatively little

NO CONVENTION. [Correspondence of the Star.]

LILESVILLE, N. C., Jan. 29. EDITORS OF STAR: Spare no labor to avert the calamity which must follow the call of a Convention at this time. We sorely need reform. Our Constitution, in many respects, is unsuited to the genius of our people. pressed, we believe that upon furth-We would gladly see the obnoxious features expunged and wholesome laws substituted. Every true-hearted Conservative utters this sentiment, and would hail with joy the much needed reform, but it is a matter of grave doubt, with very many of our best citizens, whether it were not better to endure for a time existing evils than to run the risk of those we know not of. I very much doubt the sincerity of those Radical leaders who call so loudly for Convention; is not the "drowning man catching at a straw"? Beaten, discouraged and bereft of power, their last faint hope rests with the call of a Convention That measure, if adopted now, they very well know, would find the Conservative ranks dangerously weakened, and would truly furnish the Republicans the grandest theme for rallying the disaffected legions of the "trooly loil" sons of Ham ever enjoyed by any political party.
Friends, reflect, look well to this measure, weigh all the probabilities in the ease. We can't afford to lose. Nay, even less can we, at this juncture, safely hazard anything at a venture? Let us take no uncertain risks. We have overcome much, surmounted very grave barriers in the face of fearful odds. Let us not spoil the victory by plundering the battle ground, but with zeal to press on and courage to win, let us maintain our discipline, and soon our hearts will be made glad by a triumphal entry into the gates of the city.

The masses of the people are not prepared for Convention now.

How Beats the Popular Pulse on

Convention. Wilson Advance. In view of the delicate relations of the Southern States toward the Government and the hostile purposes of the President and his adherents in Congress-in view of the divisions existing among Democrats on the subject and the danger of apathy and divisions at the election, and in consideration of the terrible consequences of a political disaster in North Carolina in the present juncture of our national affairs, when victory is almost within our grasp, we hope the wise counsels of our delegation in Congress in Congress will be followed, and, with all respect for the opinions of the Executive Committee, we trust the Legislature will take no step that can possibly re citate Radicalism or that will ful fresh fuel for Radical falsehoods and Radical usurpation.

The only hope for permanent peace in the South is in the returning sense of justice, which is springing up everywhere in the North, and North Carolina do nothing that will tend in the remotest degree to defer the day when the defeat of Radicalism will be complete, and the deliverance of the South from the grasp of tyranny shall be vouchsafed hence-

When the Legislature decides this matter we will not deny ts authority, and we have alluded to the subject now principally for the purpose of expressing our dissent rom the assumption, expressed or implied, that the Executive Committee of our party has any show of right or authority for expecting, if it is expected, to silence opposition on the party of the Legislature or the press or any body, as a member of the party, to whatever action it may take. There is a matter of liberty involved in the point that we make which we are not willing to surrender, and any claim of a different character will not bear the test of a thorough examination. Statistics of Cigars and Tobacco. From the advance sheets of the yearly official report of the tobacco trade the following statistics are gathered. The report is for the fiscal year énding June 30, 1874:

There was exported from the United States, of native leaf tobacco, 318,097,804 pounds, amounting in value to $30,399,181. During the same time there was imported into the United States, and entered for consumption, 9,213,860 pounds of leaf tobacco, for use in the manufacture of cigars, and 85,690 pounds of stemmed, or prepared tobacco, amounting together in value to $5,332,548 41 During the same time there were imported into the United States, and entered for consumption, 845,774 ds of cigars, or, at an average of en pounds to a thousand, 76,888,-000 cigars, amounting in value to $3, 030,628 79. There were manufactured in the United States, of foreign and domestic tobacco, and tax paid, 1,780,961,000 cigars. Allowing thirty pounds of tobacco for every 1,000 cigars manufactured, there was used 53,428,830 pounds of foreign and domestic leaf tobacco in the manufacture of cigars in the United States. The comparison shows there were twenty-three domestic cigars manufactured in the United States, and the tax thereon paid, for every cigar that was imported and paid duty during the same time. A closer scrutiny reveals the astounding fact that the average number of cigars smoked in the United States during each twenty-four hours is 5,168,000. - An exchange says: "They would | The total amount of import duties on tobacco paid in gold was $6,150,060 41; total amount of taxes paid in currency $33,242,875 62; grand total

When Bill King was first developed Mr. F. W. Palmer, the chief proprietor of the Inter-Ocean, sent a telegram simultaneously to the St. Paul Press, Pioneer and Minneapolis Tribune, setting forth the "pool" stock speculating theory. It happens further that Mr. F. W. Palmer, the proprietor of the Inter-Ocean, was a member of Congress from Iowa when the Pacific Mail subsidy passed. The bill went to a conference committee, and the chairman of the committee on the part of the House was F. W. Palmer, while the Senate chairman was our own Bill Windom. A great many people in Minnesota who knew Bill Windom believe that he received a slice of Bill King's $115,000, and it might not be a bad plen for the committee to inquire whether Mr. Palmer's zeal in sending exculpating telegrams was because his services were valuable as chairman of the conference committee.

The defeat of Chandler in Michigan moves the Cincinnati Commercial to a rythmical summary of his virtues, viz:

"He was the loudest and longest, the stiffest and the strongest, the gayest and most festive, the most rampant and most restive, of the whole crowd."

Spanish Cleric Scandal,

Spain's ecclesiastical scandal is a distressing one. Bishop Caixal, of Urgel, is charged with assassinating a priest, cutting him up and burying the disjecta membra in a cellar of the Episcopal residence. The bishop is also charged with many acts of dissoluteness of the Beecher order, but as he hies himself away to the army of Don Carlos the authorities cannot get at him very well.
