On Tuesday night a large assemblage had collected in the Town Hall to hear the orator of the Society for the occasion, Dr. John F, Long, of Newbern, whose address was well received by an appreciative audience. The doctor is a pleasant speaker and dwelt with convincing force upon his subject, " Heredity in its special relations to the alarming increase of mental and physical diseases, and the urgent necessity of legislative action in additional restrictions to liberty of marriage."

- Special telegram to Richmond Dispatch from Charleston, dated 3rd: About 5 o'clock this evening, while Mr. William Orr, acting jailor at this place, was removing prisoners from the upper cells into the dungeons for the night, he was pounced upon by one Lee Robinson, who struck him on the head with a bucket and also endeavored to throw a blanket over his head, which only partially succeeded. - Goldsboro Messenger: We are daily asked "What about Convention? will the Legislature call one ?" We are not prepared to give a satisfactory answer. As our readers have already been informed, the Executive Committee (though we have seen no official appouncement) have decided that there exists no ground for the fear of "inexpediency," and having declared our willingness to abide by the decision of the Raleigh caucus we choose to occupy a neutral position-yielding our own views to the opinion of the majority. In the meantime we have carefully watched public sentiment, and the State press in particular. Our conclusion to-day is that the movement is not as strong as it was before the meeting of the Executive Committee, and just now there is no probability that immediate action will be taken.

- Raleigh News: Senator Love vesterday showed us some fine specimens of copper ore from Savannah Copper Mines, Jackson county. These ores are worth net price in market 26 cents per pound. From official reports of "Union Consolidated Mining Company, Duck Town, Tenn.," the production of ingot copper from these mines since the resumption of work in the fall of 1865 to June 1st, 1872, amounted to 7,209,000 pounds net. Gross price in market in 1872, 28 cents per pound; net price in market 26 cents per pound; amount realized from said mines during the poriod indicated, $1,874,342 36. These copper ores, together with those from Jackson county, and the iron ores of Cherokee county and other minerals of great value, would be transported-over the railroads of this State if the Western N C. Mr. Mills moved to lay whole thing on the table. Mr. Cantwell asked the aves and nays, Senate refused, aves 10, nays 31.

Mr. Marler opposed the amendment, said it would kill the bill, and read a letter from C. H. Wiley, suggesting $150 worth of Bibles, and that the committee proposed to give them $100 worth at 40 cents a piece, and he thought this was little enough for the State to do for this unfortunate class.

Mr. Boddie asked how many convicts could read.

Mr. Marler couldn't answer, but Mr. Anderson answered that only 75 of them could read, and he could see better book for beginners than Webster's Spelling Book, and he was in favor of sharing this book with them.

Mr. Standford strongly urged the hundred dollars' worth of Bibles. Mr. Mills opposed any such legislation. When our unfortunate insane received more attention from the State he would feel better prepared to attend to the other class. Mr. Latham favored the amendment of Mr. Anderson, and in addition was in favor of giving the convicts copies of the criminal laws. Mr. McElroy amended to give each convict an ounce of tobacco.

Mr. Kerr couldn't vote for such an amendment while the insane were not better provided for. Mr. Parish regretted that in this nineteenth century, living in a christian land; that Senators would get up here and refuse to give any class of persons the word of God. Mr. Albright offered an amend-

Says the Norfolk Landmark: We are gratified to learn from the Wilmington STAR that the cotton factory in course of erection in that city is "rapidly approaching completion," and to this announcement it adds: "Many anticipations of the lavorable effects of this improvement on the future commercial prominence of Wilmington are freely indulged in" by the inhabitants of that growing and energetic seaport. To judge from all we have heard and seen of similar experiments in the South, this enterprise is destined to realise all and more than all that our cotemporary claims for it. Seated as it is in an excellent cotton market, with every facility for purchasing the raw material on good terms and of the best quality; with a great economy in the costs and charges incurred by Northern factories for transportation; with a great body of consumers of cotton fabrics in and around the city; and with coast and rail or through their connections, with all the great markets of the country; it seems to be beyond dispute that this Wilmington factory must, if well managed, be a complete no use of furnishing 250 Bibles for success. That its projectors have faith in only 75 persons; that there was no it is abundantly plain, and we are told that Boston capital has been added to that subscribed by the native population of our sister city. It is not our purpose now to renew directly our often-urged suggestions on this subject. We do not now reproduce the elaborate statistics that we once offered to our readers; but we do call on the enter prising business men and capitalists of Norfolk to study this enterprise in our sister city in order that they may be instructed in their own interests by the result.

Jail Delivery-Four Prisoners Escape

and are Recaptured. Yesterday evening, about 5 o'clock, S. Van Amringe, J. P., was informed that the prisoners confined in the county jail at this place were intending to break jail for the purpose of escaping. He at once informed the sheriff, who dispatched Deputy Sheriff Morriss in charge of a posse for the purpose of preventing the intended escape. As soon as they arrived at the jail they ascended to the second floor, and while going around the corridor they heard some noise going on in one of the cells and on looking through the grated door saw that the last one of four that the cell had contained was neatly slipping through a hole just large enough for the purpose which had been made in the stone flooring.

The posse at once descended to the yard, and, after an exciting chase, succeeded in re-capturing the four prisoners. Their names are as follows: John Scott, Jack

day, by Justice W. J. Bivins, of Holly township, charged with stealing turkeys. The hole in the floor through which they

Von Glahn, to recover four thousand dollars from the defendant, Dawson, it being double the amount of the par value of the stock held by the defendant in the Commercial Bank (one of the old State banks) of Wilmington. The plaintiff, to whom the bank was largely indebted by deposit account, sought to recover from the defendant by virtue of a clause in the charter of the bank which provides that, in case of the insolvency or ultimate inability of the bank to pay, the individual stockholders should be liable to creditors in double the amount of their stock.

It appears that Smith was on the premises and was found in close confab with the prisoners at the door of the cell from which they escaped. WILMINGTON, N. C., Feb. 3, 1875. To the Citizens of North Carolina; The purpose of this address is to invite your attention to the recent organization of the Wilmington Branch of the Southern Life Insurance Company and the formation of a Board of Trustees. In presenting its claims it is not deemed necessary to enter into an elaborate argument upon the general subject of Life Insurance. The propriety of every man's availing himself of its benefits is now so universally recognized by intelligent persons that such action would be superfluous. It remains for us, then, only to endeavor to place before you such facts as will recommend this particular Company to your pat-It has been officially stated that since the war about one hundred millions of dollars have been taken from the South for Life Insurance, and that annually from six to eight millions more are paid by our section for the same purpose. The desirableness of retaining this enormous sum at home, to be invested among our own people, has long attracted the attention of the thoughtful. Such a yearly accession to the capital of the South would give a new impetus to her prosperity—every department of industry would feel its quickening influence, and every community be benefitted thereby. While these are patent truths, however, it is equally clear that a Southern Company must base its claims, not upon the sentment of sectional pride alone, (though that may honestly be appealed to, other things being equal,) but upon the plain business principles of security to policy-holders combined with economy of management. The Southern Life Insurance Company was organized nearly nine years ago, by some of the best business men of the South. It has accumulated assets to $2,500,000, and has paid liberal dividends to policycompany organized in the South after the war for the purpose of arresting the drain companies in the United States is based, it compares favorably with the oldest and most stable companies. It has now secured a firm basis, a large accumulation of good assets safely invested, is managed with economy and is rapidly extending its operations and widely diffusing its benefits.

Of the sixty-five American Life Insurance Companies reported in Goodsell's New York report for 1874, the Southern Life Insurance Company excels:

47 as to gross amount of assets; 44 as to number of Policies issued; 42 as to premium receipts; 42 as to total income: 49 as to economy of management:

35 as to whole amount insured;

53 as to average of each policy in force; and, with one exception, it excels all in increase of business It will thus be seen that this Company has reached that condition which renders its success beyond question, and that it furnishes all the elements of strength, stability and character, and absolute solvency, to commend it to the confidence of the people. It has made within the past year large investments of real estate in our sister States, and is about to erect a handsome building in the city of Charlotte, in this State, and is under obligations to invest its reserve fund in Wilmington, and as soon as the receipts will justity.

It is no part of its programme, nor is it necessary to its success, that it should decry the security of other companies. But it claims to be itself secure, and it expects to succeed upon the basis of the positive bene fits which it affords to individuals and to communities, and by the proper management of its own business. We, as a Board, however, do not consider it amiss to refer to the recent action of some of the large corporations of the North to wards a great portion of the Southern States, including the entire eastern portion of our State. Some of these companies have removed foreign immigration and capital, so essen tial to the resuscitation of the South. If the vast sums of money sent from our midst were spent in sustaining ourselves and building up our enterprises and diversifying our pursuits, we should hear less complaint of hard times, of the scarcity of our own companies. The proposition that it is important to he people of the Southern States (impoverished as they have been since the war) to retain all the money which it is possible to invest safely and profitably among themselves, is too self-evident to need argu-

We have joined this enterprise, believing that it will supply one of the many desired wants, tending to build up an impoverished country. We think there is nothing small or great (if it advances the interest of our State and section) that we should not take hold of and support. We believe in encour aging our insurance companies; our manufactories of commercial fertilizers; our woolen and cotton factories; our mills of every description; our iron works and tobacco factories; our depots for the manufacture of agricultural implements, and every other enterprise that tends to develop our resources, and retain Southern capital at home. We have but to be true to ourselves-to have more confidence in each other-to work faithfully to establish and support our own institutions, and diversify our pursuits, and we will see our country bloom and blossom again, and be made sensible of the presence of our rightful pros-
