LUTHERAN GENERAL SYNOD.

At Baltimore, 7th and 8th Days. [Condensed from the Gazette. ]

Dr. Harkey presented report of committee on correspondence with other bodies. Among the interesting letters read was one from the delegate of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church-he being unable to attendin which was shown the unity of the two bodies, viz: General Synod Lutherans and Cumberland Presbyterians, and the desirableness of some movement that might tend to a union of the two bodies. The report, being incomplete, was referred back to the dren of the Lutheran Church.

The discussion was continued at some length by Drs. Barnet, Brown

The Luther Union met at 8 P. M in St. Matthew's Church (Rev. Maier). Rev. M. Sheelough addressed the audience on Luther's Battle Hymn, giving a history of its origin, &c. Other addresses were made.

EIGHTH DAY. Unfinished business was called up. and the discussion on the ministerium continued. Dr. Hay resumed, and was replied to by Dr. Conrad. A discussion sprung up on the motion to postpone the whole question until the next General Synod, participated in by the Rev. Messrs. Harkey, Wenner, Brown and others, and it was lost. Dr. Sprecher spoke at some length and was followed by Dr. Brown in review of the case. Then the vote was taken, and the yeas and nays resulted: yeas 68, hays 55. The amendment was carried, viz: The rights of the ministenum (composed entirely of ministers) granted to those Synods having no such body, which authorizes clergy and laymen to ordain and examine for the ministry.

The whole constitution as amended was adopted. The committee on the Liturgy pre-sented their report. It led to much discussion, many participating in the debate. When the final question was put, on reference and a provisional form of liturgy for examination, it was adopted. Professor Geiger presented the report on statistics for the Centennial Rev. U. G. Wenner reported on the German hymn book, which was also adopted.

"A thing of beauty and a joy forever" is a dog. His beauty consists-for the most part in omitting his tail-his absence: likewise his joy forever. Except fleas. Still a dog may be considered a useful animal when he bites a burglar or runs down a cat. Speaking of cats and dogs the philosophic mind reverts to those blessed days when mastodon and megatheriam excluded things of smaller breed, or words to that effect. Wonder how those old patriarchs of the earlier world got along without such a musical insect as the poetical pussy and such a romantic roamer as Jingo? Unlike cats, dogs are mostly good tempered except coach dogs and what are pronounced, but not spelt, "fice." The latter is a model of irritability, and is chiefly useful in egging on big dogs and snarling at small children. Still, we ask pardon of the-shall we spell him f-i-c-e? Some people own him, and if they are satisfied so are we. The Newfoundland is the best sort of dog to fill up space with, or induce a hurried examination of bose at unreasonable hours. Still we go for him on all occasions and with great ardor. is not the season for dogs that engage in the chase, and that accounts for our not writing a glowing description of Ponto and his matchless qualities. Against the bird dog no man must utter a syllable without incurring our implacable wrath until the day of judgment. We hold these truths to be self-evident that a pointer and a setter are the quietest, snuggest and most elegant fire place furniture in winter time and the most graceful additions in summer to the front part of a private residence. As a true sportsman we shall scratch out the eves of the first bloody Britisher or native American rooster who dares to speak disparagingly of a hunting dog. Even the melodious hound hath our sincere friendship. In conclusion let us read you a sentiment that we think should meet with a response in every good citizens heart-Up with the dog; but chain him not up unless he is given to sheep murder. If he is good for nothing else he is good for nothing.

WANDERING WARREN.

Again Heard From-He Turns Up in Memphis-He Leaves His Wilming ton Cane "In Soak"-A Detective

for a Travelling Companion. Charles Wesley Warren, the clerica fraud and gay Lothario, is still on the run but swift-footed Justice is close on his heels and it seems highly probable that his hith erto successful career of villany is about to be brought to an inglorious end.

The following, from the Memphis Avo anche, will be found interesting:

"Wednesday afternoon (May 26) while Captain W. J. Ross, General Superintendent of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, was seated in his office, there entered a well dressed man, of medium size, very full in the face, with a light complexion and doffing his hat, a silk one, said, in the measured, drawling tones of

A DOWN BAST PARSON. Ah-good morning; Captain Ross, I believe.' 'Yes, sir,' was the reply. The elerical-looking individual was about to continue, when another person, looking like a commercial traveler, entered the office in brusque manner and asked Captain Ross for a few minutes conversation. He was told to be seated for a few minutes, and visitor No. 1 resumed: 'Ah Captain, I am

REV. C. W. WARREN, Sir, of Philadelphia. I am on may way-al from New Orleans to Philadelphia. I-ah way-ah to Little Rock to attend school. had the manurtune-ah to lose my ticket-ah, at least that part of it ah good from Grand Junction to Philadelphia. Ah would you be so kind-ah as to furnish me another ticket, for which ah I will give you a duebill. I assure you-ah it is an unpleasant matter to ask it, and ah if I had the money, I ah would not do so.' Captain Ross, be lieving the man was a

BONA FIDE 'GOSPEL-SHARP,' and was telling the truth, took his due and gave him an order for the ticket. Visi tor No. 2 asked the Captain to subscribe for a paper, of which he was proprietor, and was politely shown the door. Several of the employes in the railroad office commented on the genuineness of the parson, the assistant freight agent, who is some-what of a detective, making a bet with one of the clerks that the man would prove to be a fraud, and won the bet by producing the next day (yesterday) the following tele graph item from the Avalanche: 'Rev. W Copeland, so-called, was engaged Philadelphia to take charge of the First Baptist Churchin New Orleans, and was on his way there when

THE BALTIMORE SCANDAL occurred. The deacons of the church r ceived a telegram from the Baptist Publish ing House of Philadelphia, in answer to an inquiry, saying that Warren and Copeland are one and the same. Several women in New Orleans would like to know where he This so-called preacher was expected to leave yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock, and a watch was kept for him at the depot. Just before the train left, Capt. Ross went through the cars, and seeing Visitor No. 2, whom he mistook for the clergyman, he tapped him on the shoulder and asked him if his name was Warren. The man smiled and said it was not. Warren was evidently within ear-shot, however, and heard hi name spoken, for a few moments afterward he was observed to sneak out of one of the gates and walk up Charleston avenue toward the Madison street bridge. He was overtaken by Capt. Ross before reaching the bridge. A conversation ensued between the two, during which the man appeared much mortified at being detected. He was so ANXIOUS TO GET AWAY that he left as collateral for a ticket hi watch chain and an ebony gold-headed cane, which, as an inscription proved, had been presented to him by the young men of Wilmington, N. C. Before the train left Capt. Ross was approached by Visitor No. 2, wh asked him what he knew about Rev. Mr. Warren. The Captain replied that he knew nothing about him, and wanted to know why the man asked it. Visitor No. 2, with-out replying, put his hand into his pocket and drew forth his credentials as

HOT IA SPECIAL DETECTIVE OUL from Chicago. He stated that he had been shadowing the man since he left New Orleans. The two went off in the same train, the Rev. Warren having his baggage checked to Chattanooga. He was in Memphis Wednesday afternoon and night, but an examination of the hotel registers failed to discover either the name of Warren or Copeland, and it is evident he has other aliases. Whether or not he was accom-panied to Memphis by a young woman could-not be learned, but it is certain he had no such company when he left here."

A new brass has been formed in our city by Stonewall Lodge, K. of P., to be known as the Pythian Band This band is especially designed, we understand, to supply the music required by the Knights of Pythias. There will be fifteen performers and the instruments are expected here from Philadelphia in a short time. The following officers have been elected: President-W. L. Jewett.

Vice President-J. W. King. Secretary-V. D. Macumber. Treasurer-Newton Gillican. An election for Leader and Musical Director will be held on Monday night. Magistrate's Court. John Fisher, colored, was vesterday arraigned before S. Van Amringe, J. P. charged with complicity in the assault

Yacht Salling. There seems to be an increased interest in our city in the sailing of yachts and such like sports. Each evening as the slanting rays of the sun are just mildly falling upon the river, here and there yachts may be seen gaily moving over the waves. The new yacht Ripple made her appearance yesterday evening, and we are informed by those capable of judging that she did some excellent sailing and showed that her first appearance will create a Ripple in the fleet. Many persons were doubtless attracted to witness the sailing of the Ripple yesterday on account of the novel dimensions given to her in our issue of vesterday morning. in which by a slight mistake, the length was made 81 feet instead of 181 feet, making the length and breadth the same. Of course such a broad Ripple on the waves would be an interesting spectacle.

City Court. James O'Bryant was arraigned for disorderly conduct. The defendant complained of bad treatment at the hands of the officer, Jeffrey Wise, who arrested him. O'Bryant, it seems, is much hurt, two of his fingers being broken and other injuries having been received by him, he alleges, at the hands of the police officer. The investion was postponed until to-morrow morning. In the meantime O'Bryant is receiving medical
