WILMINGTON, N. C .:

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 26, 1875. AN ELECTION FOR ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY DELEGATES TO A CONVENTION TO AMEND THE STATE CONSTITUTION WILL BE HELD ON THE FIRST THURSDAY OF AUGUST, 1816. THE CONVENTION WILL MEET AT RALBIGH ON THE STH OF THE FOLLOWING SEPTEMBER.

THE RADICAL ADDRESS.

This document, signed by Thos. B. Keogh, Chairman, and F. M. Sorrell, Secretary of the Republican State Executive Committee, has the earmarks of that arch-conspirator, John Pool. It matters little whether he wrote it or inspired the man who did write it, or had nothing whatever to do with it, it is false enough to have been composed by him. It is false in its charges, false in its insidious suggestions, false in every part and

We shall not allude to any of the points in this address except its closing recommendation to the people to support for delegate no man who will not bind himself "upon his sacred honor to vote for an immediate adjournment without the alteration of a single word or line of the existing Constitution." The writer would have the people take this action beeause, as he alleges, it would "secure for unlimited years a cessation of the agitation for a so-called Constitutional reform," &c.

We are glad the Republican party is placed by its responsible and official spokesmen in this attitude before the public of North Carolina. This mode of fighting the campaign had been advocated in some of the Republican organs, it had been whispered by many of the leading spirits, it was believed to be the prearranged platform on which the party was to go into the conflict, but until this address was issued there was nothing to pin Radicalism down to concerning this thing. Now that it is fully committed, and gladly makes the issue, let ns accept the gage of battle on this point and demolish our adversary effectually.

We are especially pleased that the Radical party in North Carolina has the termerity to tell the public that it favors no change in the Constitution "for unlimited years." Some of its most intelligent chiefs have dendunced the cumbersomeness and inequalities of the paper, but the Republican executive committee speaking for the party declares that no line or word must be changed for an indefinite period. That party has persistently fought all amendment to the Constitution, by whatever means, opposing even the slow and cautious and well-approved method by Legislative enactment. It says it will hereafter oppose it. What it appears to say through the mouth of Mr. Keogh or John Pool in approval of this slow mode it, in reality, does not say. The very address before us, carefully and jesuitically worded, conveys no other meaning than that the party is opposed to all amendment and will not at any corceivable time change its present position on that question. People of North Carolina, mark this position well: In August hold the Radical party responsible for its present declarations as well as for its numerous criminal acts in the past. Marred as it is by the cat's claws of the earpet-bagger, fouled with the slime of the native recreant and perfumed all over with the odors of the civet, reject with indignation that instrument which the Radical address commends to your cherishing care "for unlimited years." Otherwise suffer as you will the pangs of acute regret and remorse, and bend your proud head, to the rule of the levelling horde who will have conquered STIND RECEIPT OF Beach concluded his masterly argument in the Beecher case Wednesday, having been occupied in its delivery eleven days. It will, what ever the issue of the trial, rank with the most elaborate and forcible efforts of the forensic stage. Judge Neilson charged the jury and the case was given to them on Thursday, all efforts to get in the new evidence having failed. So this cause celebres draws to its couclusion, atter many vexations and soul-sickening delays.

Like THE MORNING STAR the Pe tersburg News "cannot publish com munications nominating or commending candidates for office unless they are duly paid for as advertisements." And designated, we presume, as advertisemental Business is business.

"Old Probs." is now a full fledged Ph. D., and the weather will put on lottice airs than heretofore,

"The Boston Globe remarks that the portrait of Red Cloud, in the Graphic, is a good likeness of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe." The Gtobe was evidently not well pleased with Mr. Sanguinary Cloud that morning.

"Facetions editors refer to the new St. Louis "hyphenism" as the G-D-." Which is as much as to say that the Globe-Democrat might be loosely spoken of as the G- Dem.

"I don't believe that Grant was ever drunk when there was any fighting to be done," says Sherman, and stops there stock still.

The New Orleans Picagune estimates the growing cotton crop at 3,650,000 bales.

"The Color Line,"

Petersburg News. The declaration made the other day by the Hon. Ben. Hill, of Georgia, that "the negro will drop out of politics, or rather, he will drop himself out, and within five years will vote just as his employer asks him," seems to have been exceedingly distasteful to the Chicago Tribune and other Radical organs of the North, who still desire to fan the flame of sectional discord and strife. They pretend to interpret the declaration to mean a war upon the negro and a purpose on the part of the South to rob him, by intimidation or otherwise, of all his rights as a freedman! The utter falsity of this interpretation none can fail to see, for the clear meaning of Mr. Hill's declaration is that in a few years the negro will voluntarily "drop out of poli-tics" when rid of the control of the carpet-bagger who has heretofore lead him by the nose, and that the business relations and identity of ininterests of the two races will become so complete that they will run in the same groove of politics, and the nebeing the inferior race, will very naturally vote pretty much as his "employer asks him." And why should they not do so? Have they not, ever since the right of suffrage was conferred upon them, voted in solid column just as the carpet-baggers have asked them to vote? Has not the whole race stood directly arrayed at the ballot-box against the white people, and in antagonism to the best interest of our people and section? Why should this state of things longer continue? and why should not the colored man vote free ly with the Conservative party of the South, with which all their business and political interests are so insepar-ably connected? But here is where the sting comes in with these Radical soreheads. So long as the colored man voted as unit with the Republican party, so long did he receive the unbounded plaudits of Northern Radicals, | Suffrage was first given to him to secure his vote, and not to enlarge his liberty and benefit his race; but now when they see it is probable that the negro voters in the future will "drop out" of the color line and vote as they please, they become alarmed and indignant, and seek to take out their revenge by abuse of our people.

Paintings for the Contonnial. The steamship Indiana, which, ar rived at Philadelphia from Liverpool on Tuesday, brought over a rare and valuable collection of paintings, for warded by Captain James Wharton Harrell of the Junior United Service, London, for exhibition at the Centen nial Exposition. The value of the collection is set down at $250,000, and among the paintings are many by celebra el ar. ists. Under the re cent acts of Congress, which remove the duty from all goods destined for the exhibition, these paintings come in free, thus saving a tax of $25,000 to the owner. They will be appraised by the Government officers before their delivery to the Centennial authorities, in order that, should any of them be said in this country, the Government may collect the proper tariff. The largest painting in the collection is "The Holy Family," by Luca Glordano, which is 6 by 5 feet. and among others are the "Danae," by Tilan, 5 feet 11 inches by 4 feet, and the "Virgin and Child," by Murillo, 5 feet by 4 feet 6 inches.

COX ON GRANT, A Funny Speech. Ion. S. S. Cox, of New York

e a capital speech at the lat ocratic Convention in Columbus As usual he enlivened his address with characteristic fun! He asked: "What has Grant not done, what don't he do, what does he don't do? [Laughter.] In summer time where does he go away? He goes to Long Branch. He goes out junketing. He goes philandering over the country all summer. Off he goes and his Cabinet after him, and his chiefs of bureaus and his clerks of bureaus following him all through; from the biggest whale down to the smallest tadpole go philandering. I rode upon a steamboat as it ran upon the Mississippi river many years ago, which was called "Lively Sally." They always had a string band aboard, and were singing and dancing, and dancing and singing, and fiddling, irrespective of any other steamboat that flew up before, behind or about her; but fiddled away-up the side and down the middle, give us the tune with flute and fiddle.

"That is the way they are going with our Federal administration-Credit Mobilier, back pay, double salary, junketing at Long Branch, Indian treaties, third term; up the side and down the middle, give us the tune of flute and fiddle. [Laughterond applause.

I heard the other day when I was up in Connecticut a friend of mine make a speech, in which he illustrated this by a story. He said if Grant was not nominated by the Republicans he would burst the party, and if he was nominated the people would burst him and the party, and said that it reminded him of an old Baptist preacher out in one of the Territories n old times. He took his text to preach from, some place in the Bible -I cannot tell where, you can read it through and find find it, it won't hurt you, as Dr. Olds used to say-he took a text which ran in this way: "Once in grace always in grace, for your feet shall be as hen's feet." [Laughter.]

"'Now, brethren,' said he, 'as you know the peculiarity of hens' feetthey have three toes in front and one in the rear, so it can never slip up backward—once in grace always in grace, for your feet shall be as hen's feet.' [Renewed laughter.] "I heard of a fellow who went out coon-hunting the other day and brought down a good fat coon. He skinned it and thought he would sell the skin. He took it to the fur-man in town, but he said he didn't want it; that it was the wrong season of the year. The fellow told him that it was a good skin: but no doubt he didn't want it. 'But,' said he, 'I have put a good deal of labor on that skin, and I will let you have it at half price. 'I don't want it at any price,' said he. 'Well, stranger,' replied the coon hunter, 'I know you don't, but it is a good skin, and you may take it,' said he. I will not give it store-room. The fellow, who had on an overcoat, put it in his pocket loose and started down town, determined to lose it. He had not gone far until he found it was gone, and felt glad that he had got rid of it, when a little boy coming up behind him, cried out, Stranger, here is your coon skin. So he said he could not sell it; could not give it away, nor could he lose it.

Once in grace, always in grace, for your feet shall be as hens' feet; and so it is with Grant-you cannot sell him, you cannot get rid of him, and you cannot lose him; once in Grant, always in Grant, for your feet shall be as hens' feet." [Great laughter and

A Singular Case.

About the year 1857, Samuel Tay lor was admitted to the Philadelphia almshouse as a pauper, and remained there until his death, which occurred in 1863. During his residence in the almshouse he acted as gatekeeper, &c., and after his death it was found that he owned an estate of $2,151 12. A claim for his board during the six years he was in the almshouse was therenpon made on behalf of the Guardians of the Poor. This was offset by a claim for the remuneration of his services, made by the claimants of the estate, and the matter was referred to an auditor. The auditor, after a hearing, allowed the claim for board to the amount of three dollars per week for the six years, deducting from that amount the sum of one dollar per week for services rendered.

The Symptoms of Liver Complaint The Symptems of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for heulmatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appatite and sickness, bowels in general costive, sometimes alternatin with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility, and low spirits, sometives many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the Liver is generally the organ most involves.
