Notes and Gleanings.

Ex-Gov. Graham being unable to address the citizens of Orange county in person has issued a printed address of much cogency.

Raleigh News: We cannot too often say that the Convention will be the Radicais have the majority. If in the hands of Democrats, for permanent good; if in the hands of Radicals, for equal by as permanent evil. The question then for the people is, which party shall hold the Convention, the Democrats, or the Republicans? Democrats speak out.

Through a letter received by Dr. S. S. Everett, of this city, from Mr. J. H. Mills, Superintendent of the Oxford Ouphan Asylum, we learn that he will visit this city on Friday next, accompanied by a dozen of the orphans, and that he will give an entertainment on the evening of that day. Masonic Hall, we understand, has been secured for that purpose. Our citizens can feel assured that they will not regret being present on the occasion.

A Free Fight at Hilton. We learn that quite a considerable row occurred at Hilton on Monday night be tween a party of colored men. It appears that some of the party were riding on what is known as flying ponies, located at that point, when a difficulty occurred between one D. Chadwick, who was superintending the business, and one Buck Wright. A gen eral fight ensued, during which Wright received a severe cut and Chadwick was bad. ly handled. Among other parties implicated in the affair were Pat Walker. Uriah Scott and Josh. Tucker. At last occounts no arrests had been made.

Again Arrested. Patrick Flynn, at whose house the sac affair occurred on Sunday last, by which Mrs. Margaret Reynolds lost her life, was re-arrested on Monday evening, on a warrant issued by Justice VanAmringe, and lodged in fail. This action was based on the representations of Coroner Hewlett, Dr. D. M. Buie and several citizens, some of whom were witnesses of the transaction, who were not satisfied with the verdiet rendered by the jury, as published in our last issue. It appears that Dr. Buie held a post mortem examination of the body on Monday and from what we can learn his evidence, adduced by such examination, is very im portant to the proper understanding of the case. The singularity of the verdict was extensively commented upon yesterday.

Embezzelment. A colored man by the name of Fred Lord, was arrested yesterday on the charge of going to the residence of Col. Dearing that evening. On the impulse of the moand representing himself as the confidential servant of Mr. Chadbourn, that he had a store where, among other things, he sold a great many articles of cast off clothing for gentlemen about town, &c., by which representations he succeeded in getting about $25 worth of clothing to dispose of in this manner. It appears, however, that defendant had no store, that he disposed of part of the clothing and appropriated the proceeds, wore some of them on his own person, and only made returns to a very slight amount. This was some time in May last. Defendant was ordered to give security for his appearance at Court, in default of which he was lodged in fail. The case was heard before Justice Gardner.

An Alleged Forgery. A colored drayman by the name of Andrew J. Merrick called at the Mayor's office vesterday and represented that a colored boy by the name of James Anderson, a porter in the establishment of Messrs. Bruuhild & Bro., had engaged him on Friday last to take an order to the store of Mr. H. Hutaf, corner of Eighth and Chesnut streets, and get a number of empty whiskey barrels. The order purported to have the signature of Messrs. Brunbild & Bro. attached to it, and requested Mr. Hutaf to charge the amount for the barrels to them. Merrick was directed by Anderson to take the barrels to a certain point and did so, but has since ascertained that the order was a forgery. The Mayor directed Merrick to take the case to one of the Magistrates. since which we have been unable to trace it up.

The Moonlight Excursion.

The moonlight excursion on Monday night, under the auspices of the Pythian Silver Cornet Band, was a very enjoyable occasion. The Gov. Worth left the wharf at about 9 o'clock for Smithville with a happy throng numbering about three hundred persons. The LaFayette Silver Cornet Band, a number of fine looking musicians from Fayetteville, were on board and frequently discoursed excellent music to the great delight of the large number of excursionists. This band appeared in their handsome grey uniforms, which were very prettily trimmed and which added much to the general attractiveness of the scene on board. The Apollo Band from this city were also the guests of the Pythian Band on the occasion and rendered themselves successful pro-- Slight changes in barometer moters of the enjoyment of the music-loving participants. The night did not seem 10 be very propitious. Large black masses of clouds continued to darken the skies portending rain, and not withstanding the many wishes that went up, from the otherwise happy throng for one glance of the moon, fair Luna did not deign to put in her appearance, thus causing a slight damper of disappointment upon the happy group, that looked wistfully up at the gloomy skies from the decks, where all otherwise was gay chit chat, pleasure ure and merry laughter. The sound, however, of the string band, combined with the lively patter of feet on the decks below, where a happy party were gaily tripping the light fantastic toe, quickly dispered any feeling of disappointment that the non appearance of the moon might have caused. Thus the great majority of the party continued to dance merry hours away, while the excursion steamer ploughed the darkness of night and the black waves of the river, on her onward path to Smithville. In short time, however, the thick mass of clouds, as if ashamed to remain in direct opposition to the wishes of the excursionists, rapidly swung into line and passed from the skies and the stars glittered and glimmered, radiating a pale gentle light on the earth below. The music never ceased, the dancing never grew less, pleas ure was ever at its height, and still the enjoyment went on as the Gov. Worth drew up at Smithville, long after the midnight hour, when the excursionists rapidly took their way to the Academy in the little town, dancing was commened an kept up without intermission for several hours, until the warning whistle was heard and the party again embarked. The real furry of the storm which had seemed impending all night, came on at Smithville, when fortunately the party were all securely sheltered in the Academy. dancing away regardless of the vivid light ning that lit up the sky, the loud and deafening peals of thunder and the heavy seemingly ceaseless rain. The run back to the city was made in due time, a great number > in the merry chorus on the quarter deck. The excursion was indeed very enjoya ble and it is doubtless, if any similar affair on our river, was ever fraught with more genuine pleasure to all the participators. The committee composed of the President, Vice President, the Secretary and the Treasurer, of the Pythian Silver Cornet Band were indefatigable in their efforts to render every one happy, and that they well succeeded each excursionist can attest. The refreshment committee showed themselves solicitious for the welfare of the inner man. The excursion steamer reached the wharf at about o'clock yesterday morning, while both bands were playing, and the happy throng landed, seemingly well pleased and somewhat fatigued with the nights injoyment.

Saved His Suit. We learn that a colored boy, whose name could not be ascertained called yesterday at the residence of a gentleman on Fourth. between Orange and Ann streets, knocked at the door, and upon the appearance of a young lady who answered the summons, the boy stated that her brother, who is clerking in a store on Market street, had requested him to call and get his Sunday suit of clothing, as he desired them for use on ment the young lady was about to deliver the clothing to the boy, but upon second thought, concluded she would consult her aunt on the subject before doing so. This lady suggested to the boy that her nephew should have sent an order for the articles. to which the boy replied that he was too busy at the time or would have done so. The ladies, however, refused to let the fellow have the clothing, and, of course, when the young man arrived at home after the duties of the day were over he denied having sent any such message, The boy had probably seen the young man on Sunday, clothed in the habiliments. above said, and had determined if possible to obtain possession of them. The young man of course congratulated himself on the narrow escape he had made. Instances of this sort should serve as a Marl as a Fertilizer-Its Effect Upon Worn-Out Lands, &c.

The use of marl as a fertilizer is attracting a great deal of attention among farmers and planters in this section and its utility is becoming daily more thoroughly understood and appreciated. This marl is to be found in large quantities at several points on the Carolina Central road, and an arrangement has been effected, we are glad to learn, by which this new and important domestic fertilizer can be delivered to parties anywhere on the C. C. road within a hundred miles of the marl beds near Livingstone's Creek, at $5 per ton. Messrs. Cronly & Morris own the marl beds at this point, which is about 17 miles from Wilmington, and from them we have obtained the following extract from a letter received from Mr. Alexander MacRae, Jr., of Argyle, Robeson county, which will give some idea of the effect of the marl even upon old, worn out and abandoned land: "You will recollect that at your offer to get a few tons of the blue marl last summer I sent down a half dozen hands to dig it out. What little I did succeed in getting up was put in an old, turned-out and abandoned field, and the result in growth of cotton is so surprising that it is a subject of general inquiry among the farmers as to how it was treated." One important feature of this marl as fertilizer is the facts that its effects are permanent. The farmer and planter who uses t will not find it necessary to procure the article from year to year and scatter it upon his ground. It impregnates and permeates the soil and becomes a part and parcel of it, enriching and improving it for all time to

The existence or these marl beds along the line of the Carolina Central road is but one of the many evidences, which are constantly recurring to show the wisdom of constructing this great highway, by which the development of the almost unlimited resources of our State have been so greatly facilitated.

Marl, as a fertilizer, is undoubtedly destined to become an important auxiliary to farmers and planters in our section, and we can but think that the officials of the C. C. road have acted both wisely and generously in placing the rates of tronsportation at such a moderate figure that all can enjoy the benefits accruing from its use upon their
