THE BLECTION.

We give pretty full additional returns of the election this morning, official and reported, and the net result now appears to be that it is one of the closest, political contests that has ever occurred in the United

It will be seen by our latest telegram from Raleigh that our friends there confidently claim a majority of four in the Convention, conceding to the Radicals Washington, Dare, Chowan and Currituck. We were apprehensive yesterday that Wash ington and Chowan, claimed by us would have to be conced to the Radicals; and on this basis our estimate now is that the Convention will stand 60 Democrats and 60 Radicals. In this estimate we give the Radicals Jackson and Mitchell counties, about which there is still some little doubt. If we have carried those two counties, then, according to our calculations, we will have a majority of four.

The contest is so close that it may require the official vote of every doubtful county to determine the result, but the chances seem to favor a small Democratic majority.

A Noble Deed.

Under the heading of "Alex. H. Stephens-Honor to Whom Honor is Due," the Macon Telegraph and Messenger publishes the following editorial article:

Although many believe, and perhaps justly, that the Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, enfeebled by age and infirmity, should have retired for life to the quiet shades of Liberty Hall, after the completion of his great historical work, vet few are aware of his active, living interest in passing events, and the noble benefactions of this distinguished Georgian. The latter have ever been characteristic of the man. Self-made himself, he. has never failed to sympathize with those who were struggling for education and independence, constantly extending to such a helping hand. Eternity alone will disclose how many have thus been elevated through his agenev from poverty and obscurity to positions of usefulness, honor and trust in the State. No man was ever more modest and reticent in the bestowment of these kindnesses, or sought more diligently to conceal them. These remarks are predicated upon a notable instance which has recently fallen under the observation of the writer, fully illustrating the characteristic of the great statesman. The case is that of young —, in the University of Georgia. Sprung from an excellent and wealthy family, who had been ruined by the war, this youth, ambitious, talented and virtuous, sought in vain for the means to defray the cost of an education, and, when despairing of success, was taken up by Mr. Stephens and liberally provided for. The matter was kept a profound secret, however, nor should have been mentioned here had it not somehow reached the ears of his fel ow-students. His name, however we suppress. This youth, fired by the determination to prove himself worthy of the kindness of his benefactor, at once lent every energy of mind and body to the prosecution of his studies, and rapidly rose to dislinction in his class.

Exemplary, also, in deportment, he became a favorice with his instructor, and is now one of the most thorough scholars and popular young men within the walls of the University. Indeed, so rapid has been his progress that the faculty promoted him to the position of tator to fill a Vacancy, the duties of which he percontinuing his own college course, now nearly completed. It affords us unspeakable satisfaction to record this interesting incident, which redounds equally to the honor and praise of Mr. Stephens and his protege. The Jatter, to his credit be it said, has already begun to discharge the pecumary obligation under which he has been placed. To suppress such facts is a crime against justice and humanity. THIRD DISPATCH.

According to the most reliable information, and which both parties now concede, the result stands as follows: Fifty-nine Democrats, fifty-nine Republicans, one Independent Democrat from Tyrrell, and Cherokee to hear from. There are several doubtful counties conceded to the Radicals - The gain of 48 mentioned by us in this estimate. I learn from Radical headquarters that they must gain a majority in the counties of Montgomery, Clay, Cherokee and Polk to gain a majority. The Democrats here are highly elated over the prospect and believe that they will have a majority in the Convention. In this esti mate Mecklenburg is conceded to the Radi cals, though there are rumors that on account of frauds the Republican vote in several townships and wards will be thrown out, thus securing a good working Conservative majority in the Convention.

Closing of New Inlei.

We observe by the Baltimore papers, and otherwise, that on Friday last, the 6th, there were opened in Baltimore in the office of Col. Craighill, of the Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., proposals for certain work at New Inlet, the ultimate purpose of which, is the entire closing of the same. The various plans proposed all differ more or less, some of them preparatory and some additional, but all agree in the one object of stopping ultimately the outflow to the ocean at the above point of the water of the river and thus turn the entire volume of the water out at the main bar or original mouth of the river, thus assisting in deepening it. The government allowed much latitude to be used by the bidders in their proposals, in the form, plan, mode and character of the work to be adopted as well son, Yancey, Haywood, Jackson, Swair, as the character of material to be used, Macon, Watauga and Transylvania all elect such as stone, crib, sand bags, brush, piling, &c., &c., throwing out general sugges tions or directions. Hence there were a > variety of plans submitted. The following were the bidders and prices: Bangs & Dolby, of Manlius, New York, for an apron, $:20,000; to close New Inlet to low water mark, $188,000; M. A. Bryson, of St. Louis, to construct an apron, $20 per lineal foot, to maintain it four feet above present bottom $34 per lineal foot; to close New Inlet for $205,000. R. G. Ross and H. M. Drane submitted three proposals, as follows: Propose first to close New Inlet to two feet above low water mark for $242,000; to close to two feet above high water mark under this proposal and plan, $346,000; proposal No. 2 by a different plan, for $250,000, and proposal No. 3 by still a different plan and mode, $250,000, allowing the government the option as to plan and materials. C. J. De-Graw, Fulton, New York, offer to construct an apron at $20 per lineal foot, and each additional foot in height $4; close New Inlet for $164,000; F. H. Smith, New York, bids for building the apron, $87 per lineal foot.

The proposals are all held under consideration, and will probably be decided on in a few days. No very correct judgment can be obtained of the cost of the work from the above prices, as the plan of obstruction for stopping the inlet and character of materials used in same by the different bidders, may vary greatly. Inland Water Communication.

We understand that Capt. Michler, in charge of a Corps of U. S. Engineers (about twenty-five in number), who have been detailed by Col. S. T. Abert, the Supervising Engineer to whom the work was assigned, are now at Masonboro Sound, having passed all the way from Norfolk through the coast line sounds on an examination of the same, with the view of ascertaining the feasibility of opening to general commerce an inland water communication along the Atlantic coast, in accordance with a resolution of the last U. S. Congress. We hear that they also contemplate examining another route, from New River, known as the old Kearney line, which enters the Northeast branch of Cape Fear | tame and stolid indifference we submit to a River at or near Bannerman's Bridge.

The Election Case.

The case of the Judges and Inspectors in the recent city election, who brought suit against the city for payment for their services on that occasion, which was withheld on the ground that the act under which thoy performed said services had been pronounced unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the State, etc., came up for a final bearing before Justice Van Amringe yesterday. The decision of the Justice was reserved until Wednesday next.

It has been suggested, for the better convenience of the public, that in the race at Wrightsville on Wednesday, as well as in future contests, the different boats be. designated by the color of their respective flags, or by a number painted on the centre of the mainsail, which, we believe, is the practice in vogue at the North. In Smithville Township the Radicals had no organization, and out of the 147 votes cast at Smithville, only one white man voted the Radical ticket. The white Republicans apparently evinced no interest in the conflict, and expressed themselves openly as thoroughly disgusted with the present as sumed directorship of the Republican party of the county. As a result from this state of feeling some sixteen or eighteen votes were lost to the party.

GOOD ROADS AND BAD ROAES. The public roads of the county of New Hanover, and more particularly those in the vicinity of Wilmington, are a standing shame and reproach to our people, and when it is considered how directly connect ed with the agricultural and other promi nent interests of the country and city, are the means of easy communication between the two, it is truly surprising with what nuisance so damaging to all. Our highways are indispensable. They are necessaries in the fullest sense. We cannot do without them. Few things are more imof practical civilization than good rouds, yet sive asses, that we seem to be utterly indisposed to consider or act in a matter of such vital moment to the general and immediate interest alike of town and country. It cannot be that we are such arrant fools as not to know the great difference between a good road and a bad road-between an even and firm surface furnishing easy and safe means of communication between any two points, and a sand-bed or a quagmire, with here a root and there a stump, to job lay and annoyance of the one and injury to the other.

The existing condition of our public roads fully justifies the charge of folly or want of common sense which I attribute to our people in this particular, and for their enlightenment and future improvement I-beg to make a few suggestions—no com-munity that considers its own true interests, can afford to do without good roads—the wear and fear of vehicles, horse flesh and muwear and fear of vehicles, horse flesh and mucle on a bad road is enormous, and it constitutes an indirect tax on the people of the townships in the vicinity of Wilmington, which probably amounts to three times as much as the aggregate direct taxes paid by them for county and State purposes. It is indeed an indirect tax, and it is paid by our people without thinking or seeming even to know of its payment, on the same principle and with the same indifference with which they as consumers pay the duties or taxes on almost evrything they use, whose manufacture at the North is protected by the tariff of duties laid by Congress. The marked difference however between them is that the road tax is by far more burdensome than the tariff, and is a voluntary tribute to our own folly or in-difference to our true interests, while the other is imposed against our will, and submitted to our necessity. This indirect road tax is as I say, paid by us without considering or seeming to know of its payment, yet we feel it and suffer from it in every conceivable way. There is not only the wear and tear of vehicles, harness and horse flesh which can only be restored by the pay-ment of money, but there is in addition the incalculable loss of time and comfort, and he wear and tear of temper and christian feeling which are of necessity so provoked and outraged by a bad road as even to en-danger the souls of travellers by the conseuent profanity?

True economy demands of our legislators that a radical change in our system of read making should be adopted. The public convenience and comfort demands it, and it is passing strange that the sentiment of the public requires to be educated up to a full appreciation and realization of the difference between good and bad roads. Our people do not seem to recognize the fact, that the same power will move a much larger load, with much greater ease, with less wear and tear and in much less time, on a solid and properly made road, than one of opposite character. What is the experience of other countries, and how far are they in advance of us on this particular. The old Romans were true economists in the matter of road makingmany of these roads made 2000 years ago, are as perfect now as when originally constructed, and on these roads a single horse can readily pull fifteen grown persons. Many of the roads in England, made and in use time out of mind, are now as solid and smooth as a floor, and from London to the 'Kew" gardens a distance of ten miles, a hack or omnibus with two horses, will carry over one of these roads, in one hour, twenty-five passengers, the charge for transportation of grown persons being a shilling apiece. The principal high ways all over Europe, made hundred of years before the introduction of railroads are magnificent specimens of good roads, and are kept in perfect condition at a merely nominal annual outlay.

If my time and your space permitted, a statement showing simply the loss of time to our people, and consequent loss of labor of the country, resulting from our bad and injudiciously laid out public roads, could be submitted, and to such as have not rightly considered this question, such a state-ment would be startling in the extreme, But this loss of time and labor does not cover one-fourth of the aggregate loss and injury to our people from this cause, and could they have the trial for a day of perfectly good roads they would never again do with-out them, if the half of these estates could command them. I do most sincerely hope that the contemplated turnpike from Wi mington to the coast will be speedily made, that it may be, as I am satisfied it will be a profitable investment to the company pro-jecting it and more especially that this im-provement will have the effect as proving to our people the incalculable benefit of good highway, and stimulating them to their manifest destiny in this matter. Humanity alike to man and beast, in addition to the more practical reasons given, demand reform in this connection, and he who could successfully educate the public mind in this direction, and organize and engineer to practical completion a system of road making suited to the wants of this portion of our State, would be a public benefactor, a patriot in its broadest sense, deserving any ionor in the gift of the people, and a mon-ament more lasting than stone. So much as to our county roads, but some carping citizen from the country replies: This grievous nuisance should first be corrected in the principal street of the great city of Wilmington. Look at your Market street—no road in the country is as bad as that street, and we cannot reach your market without passing over its whole length. Why is this? Every citizen of your town is more interested in making s good and permanent roadway in this street than in any other portion of your city, for the reason that it is used ten times as much as any other street in the city. To all this we can only rejoin by confessing that the reply is true in gross and in detail, and acknowledging that the condition of that street is a patent disgrace and most shameful reproach to Wilmington, which our city authorities wilfully and obstinately refuse and neglect to correct or remedy, and for which neglect they should be indicted and punished, and made to perform this manifest duty, or be driven from office.
