THESE ITEMS RESPECTING DELEGATES elected to the Constitutional Convention as Independents, and claimed by both parties are from the Raleigh Notes: A prominent gentleman of this city who has just returned from a trip through the counties of Ashe, Watauga and Caldwell informs us that the slightest intimation in our paper that Dr. M. Wilcox, the Independent Democrat elected from Ashe was a Republican and that he would act with that party in the coming Convention, would be a gross insult to the political character and record of that gentleman. Our informant was present in the county during the canvass, and says Dr. Wilcox was supported as a Democrat by a number of the most ultra Democrats and Convention men in that county, all of whom believed, in fact knew, that Dr. Wilcox would act with his party on all measures of a party character in the Convention.

From Mr. F. B. Satterwhite, of Beaufort, who is on a brief visit to this city, we learn that it would be news to his section, where Dr. Ransom, the Independent elect from Tyrrell is from, that Dr. R. was supported as a Democrat by a number of the most ultra Democrats and Convention men in that county, all of whom believed, in fact knew, that Dr. Wilcox would act with his party on all measures of a party character in the Convention. Dr. Ransom threw off the yoke about two and a half years ago.

The Governor of Tennessee has settled the question of the succession to Andrew Johnson's seat in the Senate by the appointment of one of the least prominent of the fifty or more candidates for the position. The name of the new Senator is D. M. Key.

Ex Gov. Vance delivered a very able historical address before the Southern Historical Society, at the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, on Tuesday, in which he made conspicuous the heroic record of North Carolina in the late war.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE

— Dr. J. D. Matthews, of Nash county, is dead. — The gentlemen spoken of for the Orange vacancy are Major John W. Graham, Major Patterson, Dr. Pride Jones, Henry K. Nash, Esq., Paul C. Cameron, and perhaps others. — Sentinel: It is generally understood that His Excellency, Gov. Brogden, will select the Raleigh Light Infantry as his guard of honor and escort to the convention next year. Why don't the Governor prepare to march to Philadelphia at the head of all the military organizations of the State that may desire to attend?

— We learn from the Vicksburg Herald that "the Hon. Abner Nash Ogden, one of the oldest lawyers and most honored citizens of New Orleans, died at Blount Springs, Alabama, last Wednesday evening. Judge Ogden had been in feeble health for several years. He was a native of North Carolina, and was a grand-son of Gov. Nash, one of the earlier Governors of that State. After a long, useful and honorable life, he has been gathered to his fathers. He will long be remembered for his high, honorable and many qualities."

Magistrate's Court. Richard Merrick, colored, was arraigned before Justice Gardner, yesterday morning, on the charge of assault and battery and also upon a peace warrant, on the complaint of Mary Merrick. In the first case judgment was suspended on the payment of costs; and the peace warrant was withdrawn.

Red and Water. Red Cross, between Third and Fourth streets, is said to be in an almost impassible condition from the quantity of mud and water accumulated there during the late rains. The same is also reported to be the case on Fourth street, opposite the residence of Mr. J. W. Strauss and the store of Mr. Henry Bush.

Guilt or Not Guilty? A white boy, who gave his name as Antonio Swan, was arrested yesterday on the charge of appropriating a pocket-book, the property of the W. & S. S. Railway Company, containing a number of tickets and a small amount of money. We understand that the youth says the tickets were given him by another boy to sell, the two to divide the profits, and that he was not aware of the manner in which they were obtained. The case will be heard before Justice Gardner this morning, at 10 o'clock.

Local Notes.

Day's length 13 hours 18 min. High water—12:55 A. M., 12:29 P. M.; Smithville, 9:43 A. M., 10:08 P. M. — The flood in Lumber river, as we learn from a gentleman now in the city, has fallen considerably within 24 hours. — In the Robesonian of this week appears the first chapter of Rev. R. K. Bennett's "History of the Cape Fear Baptist Association."

— Rev. J. T. Gibbs, Pastor of the Fifth Street Methodist Church, has returned to the city after several weeks' absence, and is expected to occupy his pulpit as usual to-morrow. — We overheard a colored official instructing a less well informed brother as to the result of the election: "You see, dey has 64 and we hab 66—jes 12 majority." We like to see everybody happy.

— Several fights between small colored boys occurred on the base ball grounds while the match game was in progress yesterday. One boy was hit with a large stone. No arrests were made. — The prayer-meetings Thursday night were rather thinly attended, owing to many of those who are usually in place coming home from the excursion tired and indisposed.

— We learn that any quantity of Jamestown weeds are flourishing "like the green bay tree" in the neighborhood of the railroad, the roots of some of them being represented as nearly as large as a man's leg. — A crowd of about twenty hogs, big and little, were holding a festival on Mulberry street last night at the scene of the bursting of a bag of ground-peas. They expressed themselves as delighted with their thirty days' grace.

— Mr. J. F. Westbrook, of Harrison's Creek, Northeast Cape Fear, Pender county, sends us a rare curiosity in the vegetable line, being a large cabbage composed of about thirty distinct heads, all perfect and complete in themselves, but of course of small dimensions. — The dangerous hole in the sidewalk on the North side of Princess, between Front and Water streets, is still gaping at pedestrians who pass that way, or was before some Good Samaritan placed an empty hoghead over it; and now some say may be the hole is larger than ever, as the end with the missing head is upward.

Range of Thermometer. The following was the range of the thermometer at the Signal Bureau, in this city, yesterday: 7 A. M., 73; 10 M., 78; 2 P. M., 84; 4:30 P. M., 84; 9 P. M., 86.

Surveying Operations. We learn that Capt. Michler and his corps of engineers, having completed their work below this city, start out this morning for the purpose of examining the route (from New River) and known as the "old Kearney line," which enters the Northeast branch of Cape Fear River at or near Bannerman's Bridge.

To Visit Fayetteville. We learn that the Wilmington Amateur Dramatic Association will give two of their pleasant entertainments at Fayetteville on the evenings of Thursday and Friday, the 26th and 27th insts., one of which will be for the benefit of the Orphan Asylum.

The pieces selected for the occasion are "Robert Emmet" and the "Maid of Croisic," or "Theresa's Vow." We hope the praiseworthy intention of the young gentlemen of the Association to appropriate a portion of their receipts at Fayetteville to the benefit of the poor orphans at the Asylum at Oxford will meet at the hands of our friends the encouragement it deserves.

The entertainments given by the Association here were very highly appreciated by our people and we doubt not they will succeed in giving satisfaction to the amusement-loving public of Fayetteville.

Meeting of Township School Committee. The School Committee for Wilmington Township met Thursday night, at 8 o'clock, pursuant to adjournment.

Committee on A. H. Morris made a report, as requested, detailing the condition of the school houses occupied by white children, &c., which was received and referred to the next meeting of the Committee for further consideration.

Committee on Alfred Howe submitted a verbal report in relation to the school buildings occupied by colored children south of Market street and stating that the children attending the school at Mt. Olive Church ask for a male teacher, &c. Referred to the next meeting.

Committee on J. E. Sampson submitted a report in relation to the condition of the school property used by colored children South of Market street, which, on motion, was received and referred for consideration at the next meeting.

It was ordered that Committee on A. H. Morris open correspondence with Col. S. D. Pool, Superintendent of Public Instruction, in regard to the Peabody appropriation and report at the next meeting.

The annual report for 1874 and 1875, from the Auditing Committee, was received and referred for the further consideration of the next meeting.

Committee on A. H. Morris turned over the papers and documents received from the outgoing Committee, obtained as per order of a previous meeting of the Committee.

Three applications for positions as teachers were received and referred to the next meeting. The Committee took a recess until the first Thursday in September.

C. W. WARREN.

Appearance of the Wanderer in Knoxville—He Figures as a Lawyer, Preacher, Bohemian and Lothario — The Post Office Again One of the Means of His Exposure—His Name in Knoxville is L. F. Copeland—He Gets a Coat which "Sticks closer than a Brother"—He Flees from the Wrath of the Knoxvilleans and Seeks Some Other Field of Operation—"Chain Up the Dog."

The particulars of the career of the "Wanderer" in Knoxville, Tenn., and his flight from that city after receiving a coat of tar and feathers, as mentioned in our last, are thus given in the Press and Herald of that city of the date of Aug 17th: The Press and Herald, Sunday morning, created quite a sensation in the city. At first the wonder was that we should devote our entire first page, on such a day, to a history of the exploits of a clerical Jeremy Diddler in whom Knoxville had no interest and who had no interest in Knoxville. It was not long, however, before squads of morning readers began to gather on the street corners and compare opinions. Each one seemed relieved that each other had come to the same conclusion with himself, and all concurred in the decision that the hero of the life-romance was none other than an obtrusive lawyer and gushing preacher established in our city under the name of L. F. Copeland. Throughout the day, the interest increased and we fear Sunday's Press and Herald seriously disturbed the continuity of the moral reflections of many Knoxville church-goers. For this, we plead in extenuation the good moral and social results of the publication.

To show that the readers of the Press and Herald were not mistaken in the identity of the personages, it becomes us to offer a few facts touching the individual, which may be compared with the facts given in the Baltimore Gazette article, which is reproduced on our third page. This we proceed to do.

THE HERO OF "FIFTEEN ALIASES," who figured as W. E. Copeland, at Milwaukee; as Ware, at St. Louis; as Horton, at Canton; as Simmons, at Memphis; as C. W. Warren, at Wilmington; as W. E. Copeland, at Baltimore; and as such other persons as suited him at other places, for some reason or other, selected Knoxville as the field of his summer operations. So, on the 29th of May, last, he made his appearance in this city as Rev. L. F. Copeland. On the train, he had met with Rev. Mr. Manker, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Presiding Elder of this District, to whom, after finding out to what church Mr. Manker belonged, he showed, besides other vouchers, his license as a local preacher of the M. E. Church, signed by Rev. Dr. Hibbard, of the Syracuse (N. Y.) District. Having ingratiated himself into Mr. Manker's confidence, the latter, upon their arrival in the city, introduced him to Mr. Daniel Lee, a very respectable merchant of the city and member of the M. E. Church, to whose house Copeland went to board. Having fully taken in the situation, Copeland concluded that for the sake of the appearance of business, it would be just the thing to become a lawyer. Accordingly, at the last June term of our Circuit Court, he applied for

ADMISSION TO THE BAR, was examined by a committee of lawyers, and admitted to the roll. He procured a place in one of the offices at the Court House and hung out his sign as "L. F. Copeland, attorney at law." [Business did not come upon him like an avalanche, nor, indeed, did he seem to care much. He still seemed to be in mind that it was not alone his duty to save the innocent from temporal punishment, but to "call sinners to repentance." It was but an easy thing for him to combine worldly with sacred duties. So, having shown his license and church letter (from the church at East Marion, N. Y.) to Rev. Mr. Goldman, pastor of the Olney Street M. E. Church, he was, of course, admitted to the privileges of the church. On Sunday, June 20th, on invitation of Mr. Goldman, he filled his pulpit, morning and evening, preaching with something of his Canton eloquence and to the great satisfaction of the congregation, who accepted him, of course, as worthy of the calling he professed. These performances, of course, gave him only a partial introduction to our citizens. It was necessary that all our people should be acquainted with his valuable and ministerial services. Therefore our local papers of June 22d contained the following unique and attractive notice:

"DOT DORG." A LECTURE AT 1ST M. E. CHURCH TO-NIGHT. Mr. L. F. Copeland, attorney at law, formerly of New York, but now a resident of Knoxville, Past Grand Deputy I. O. G. T. of the State of New York, a strong advocate of the Temperance cause, being a member of four different Temperance Societies, has consented to deliver his humorous Temperance Lecture, entitled "Dot Dorg," under the auspices of Holston Lodge, No. 38, I. O. G. T. He will deliver the Lecture on next Friday night at the First M. E. Church, at 7 o'clock, gratis free. The Lecture is of a humorous character, and has been given with striking effect in many of the cities in the North, as the following extracts will testify: (Extracts from New York papers.)

Next morning, one of our local papers thus noticed the performance: As a whole, the lecture was a success and stamps Mr. Copeland as a speaker of more than ordinary power. We hope his will not be his last lecture, but that we may frequently listen to him upon this and kindred subjects.

Other papers complimented "Mr. Copeland's" lecture in very favorable style, so that he got a good send-off. Meanwhile he had not been unkind of the pastures that the lambs frequent. He had already become prominent in Sunday School operations and prayer meetings; making himself conspicuous and agreeable, of course, at temperance and Sunday School picnics. So far had he progressed, that recently he aspired to the superintendency of the Church street Sunday School.

His law-practice proving to be only a sort of ornamental employment, he took up the role of newspaper correspondent, having secured employment from, or volunteered his services to the Chicago Times. In this capacity he attended the funeral of Andrew Johnson and has been soundly denounced for his dispatch, pronouncing as a forgery the letter written by Mr. Johnson during the cholera epidemic. On that occasion, also, he was rather disgusting by reason of his egotism and presumptuous criticisms upon ceremonies, &c. He seemed to be quite a censor and found nothing so good or so proper as it ought to be or he could make it. He was on a fat at all points. As a matter of course, he kept his eye on the main chance—his apparently leading object of his life. Armed with his recommendations (forged or otherwise) from Bishop Kavanaugh, and such other church dignitaries, preaching with eloquent tongue from the pulpit, and illustrating his gifts in the Sunday school rooms and temperance halls, he had no difficulty in gaining the social recognition that he sought. To be brief, he had succeeded in gaining the confidence of an estimable young lady of this city, and had become betrothed to her marriage was the common expectation. Thus matters stood Saturday evening, and he had reason to exclaim then, "Now, by St. Paul, the work goes bravely on."

But, alas for human expectations! Sunday's Press and Herald uncovered the impostor and set the community to noting and comparing facts that had previously attracted but little attention. Our pursuit of facts resulting in the following, among other discoveries: We found that soon after coming here Copeland, having taken a box at the post-office, notified the clerk to put all mail matter addressed to "C. W. Warren" in his ready box, and Mr. Warren was one of his clients. In this connection, a few days since, Judge Andrews, U. S. District Attorney, received the following letter: GENEVA, N. Y., Aug. 9, 1875.

To U. S. District Attorney: DEAR SIR: Will you please inform me whether Mr. C. W. Warren is in Knoxville at present, or at some other place, or saying his office of business was in with yours. If you will answer you will confer a kindness upon me. Please answer immediately and oblige Yours, very respectfully, Miss M. D. K. Box 55, Geneva, N. Y.

P. S. He has received his mail in care of Box 274. Judge Andrews knowing no such man as "C. W. Warren" so inquiring in the office. The explanation of this matter is that Copeland has been occupying an office jointly with Mr. J. C. Williams, the State District Attorney, (upon whom he had imposed himself as a gentleman), and the latter, who is probably one of C's dupes—erroneously assumed that it was a United States District Attorney's, as we believe they are commonly called in New York. Hence Judge Andrews got the letter in question of Mr. Williams, who would have been as much puzzled as Judge A. to know who C. W. Warren was that had been occupying his office. Upon inquiring at the post office, we learn that box 274 belongs to L. F. Copeland. The matter at hand is sufficient to fix the identity of our "L. F. Copeland" and the "W. E. Copeland" described by the Baltimore Gazette. Besides, the personal description furnished by the Milwaukee Chief of Police is in every respect identical with the ville Copeland. So brief a description was never more marked.

During yesterday, we believe we heard of but one person who had any doubts on the subject of Copeland's identity. He denies and, we understand, says the Baltimore article refers to a brother of his, but unfortunately for him, in his previous confidence, he had told that his brother died several years ago. He denies having been at the Baltimore Sunday School Convention, yet there is a gentleman of the highest respectability and intelligence now in the city who remembers well to have met him there. He denies having been at Canton, Miss., a gentleman now in the city who remembers well to have heard him preach at Canton, under the name of Horton. They have identified him since Sunday's publication. He denies having been at Wilmington, yet there is a gentleman now in the city who heard him preach in Wilmington as C. W. Warren.

During Sunday Copeland undertook to "brazen out" the matter. But yesterday morning his best was removed from the streets as he was by his friends, whom he had deceived, had abandoned him. But for the consciousness that he has been and still is playing the part of a consummate villain, he could never have plied him. At an early hour in the day he approached his landlord (Mr. Lee) and said, "I presume you wish me to leave your house." "Yes, sir, I do," was the decisive reply. After his baggage had been removed, he was discovered that he had burned a lot of his papers. There was found in his room a linen collar marked "C. W. Warren"—thus adding another and clinching fact upon the question of identity.

Copeland's financial operations—money doesn't seem to be his main point—appear to have been light. Two or three gentlemen, we believe, had been induced to indorse for him for small amounts, but we care to say nothing about such matters, since we understand that the parties have secured personal effects to make them whole. Very many excellent people have been deceived by this adroit rascal, and it is creditable to them that their adherence to him did not outlive the deception. So he is an impostor—so cunning and calculating a villain—deserves to be exposed, and to be kicked out of every respectable community. He is a prowling curse, carrying ruin in his train. In the light of his history, as given by the Baltimore Gazette and his attempted achievement in this city, we may safely infer that he has blighted many a heart and carried woe into hundreds of households. We know not at this writing what has become of him, but we presume that before the morning dawns he will have

"Folded his tent like the Arab And as silently stole away."

P. S.—Since writing the foregoing, we learn that Copeland was making his way toward the depot, at about 11 o'clock, he was met by a number of persons who did not present him with a good send-off, but ornamented him with a coat of tar and feathers in token of their appreciation of his character. We do not approve such compliments. They are not always manly. But this is a case over which we will shed few tears. They are one of the kind we ever heard of. Having divested himself, as far as possible, of his new suit, the Rev. L. F. Copeland departed at 2:30 o'clock on the Eastern train.

Robberies. We learn that one night recently six houses in the city were entered and robbed, and that one house had been visited by thieves on two successive nights. We again call the attention of citizens to the expediency of having their fire-arms well charged and at hand ready for emergencies. A few deaths in the [fraternity of burglars] would have a very healthy general effect.

The River.

The latest arrivals report the river falling at Fayetteville, but rising beyond that point under the influence of heavy rains in the Deep River section. What effect the new freshet will have remains to be seen, but up to this time, we are glad to learn, the damage to crops in the vicinity of the river has been so slight as to be hardly worth mentioning.

The Public Schools.

The various public schools of the Township of Wilmington will be open about the 1st of October. Committee on A. M. Morris is to have the general supervision of the schools attended by white children, Committee on J. E. Sampson of the colored schools north of Market street and Committee on Alfred Howe of the colored schools south of Market street. In this connection we will add that applications for situations as teachers, as per order of the Committee, will be received from this date, further particulars in relation to which can be found in an advertisement of Mr. Morris, Chairman of the Committee, in this issue.

Meow.

We note a few early arrivals of new crop cats. During the spring months the stock of old in sight was decimated by hot water thrown by long-suffering cooks and plundered matrons. As the season advanced the small boy, freed from the restraints of school, occasionally carried one with large stone attached to the convenient well or river. The hot nights of July, when sleeping was difficult and the bright moons offered strong inducements to operate, saw the visible stock much reduced by bricks dropped from upper windows, and when, early in the current month, dealers in pelts had begun to let down baited hooks, a minimum was reached where old in first hands were firmly held. As fall approaches, the new crop now almost mature begins to have a noticeable effect. As, from the increase, forage gradually becomes scarcer, holders are unable to keep stock within bounds, and as a result, some is forced upon the market, with few takers. Some persons who have given attention to the matter during the dull season now turn their activities into more lucrative channels and the commencement of the schools will draw off a large force of operators, tending greatly to the increase of stock. We have no statistics from the Agricultural Bureau, but think it safe to estimate that there is likely to be about 602 per cent. of a full crop, of which 600 per cent. will be predatory. Already, when our reporter goes home in the early morning, he begins to find a troop of cats prowling the piazza to the tune of the "Mulligan Guard," and several cats prounging on the gate-posts while waiting to see if he don't want a few cats.

The Base Ball Match.

The game between the Old North State and the Stonevale Base Ball Clubs came off yesterday afternoon as announced, resulting in a victory for the former club. The game commenced at 4 o'clock and was continued until 6, when it had become too dark to see the ball, and the game was therefore terminated at the seventh inning. Quite a crowd of spectators were present. The following is a summary of the score: OLD NORTH STATE.
