

GENERAL BURGLES.

In the days of the Tudors, and earlier in English history, it was no uncommon thing for gentlemen's sons, the young nobility, even the scions of royal houses, to "take the road."

THE CAMPAIGN IN OHIO.

The Republican and Democratic State Committees carry on their business here. Ex-Secretary of State Wyckoff is Chairman of the former, and Mr. John G. Thompson of the latter.

A NATIONAL CANVASS.

From the State Capital—What the Republican and Democratic Committees are Doing—Their Opinion of the Results—The Catholic Question—The Stumpers in the Field—Governor Allen and Senator Thurman.

The New York Sun's Ohio correspondence, reprinted in this paper to-day, is entertaining. We think it is the most reliable presentation of affairs in the State yet made.

The Herald and other Northern papers pretended to think that the conspiracy in Georgia was all a sham. Now the Herald is convinced that it was a grave affair, and says it should be investigated thoroughly.

Gov. Hendricks is so dangerous a man to the Wall street plotters they have commenced already to make covert war upon him.

be willing to let the currency go to the devil, provided they can keep the schools out of the hands of the Pope, and as the Democrats and the Ohio Constitution are in accord with the Republicans on this latter point, nervous people outside of the State may regard the Ohio school money as safe, whatever becomes of Hayes and Allen or of the electioneering fund of the Republican and Democratic committees.

Seriously, though, there never was a false pretence that the bringing of this sectarian question into the present campaign under the guise of a simulated belief that the Catholics and the Democrats have entered into a conspiracy to divide the school fund.

I know that the Republicans have practically abandoned the currency issue, and stake their hopes of success on this sectarian question, and that they do not so much anticipate a triumph by drawing votes from regular Democrats as by securing a portion of those anti-Catholic Germans who have gone with the Democrats since the Greeley campaign, and more especially by calling out an unusually large regular Republican vote in the twelve counties of the Western Reserve, which, as everybody knows, are impregnated with the principles and the prejudices of Plymouth Rock.

But I must say a few words of the Democratic State Committee and its doings and its opinions as to the result, in October. Mr. Thompson, the Chairman of the Committee, is a gentleman of marvellous energy, and possesses extraordinary capacities for organizing a political campaign.

There are a dozen other capital speakers here from Michigan, Iowa, Pennsylvania, and so on. Perhaps one of the most effective of what may be called "outside" influences aiding in the election of Allen is a large body of Ohio Republicans who are now on the stump advocating the Democratic ticket.

Now, as the effect to these Ohio Republican speakers who support Allen, I have not heard of a regular Democrat who is on the stump for Hayes. Besides these home Republicans, there are others of like faith of considerable prominence in Western States who have tendered their services to the Democratic committee, and some of them will be invited to come.

All the prominent Ohio Democrats who usually speak in great campaigns are now, with two or three exceptions, in the field. Senator Thurman is suffering from a chronic complaint, but he will make a few speeches. Gov. Allen is brimfull of vigor. I saw the old Roman a few minutes yesterday, with his duster on his arm, just starting for the train to enter upon a series of appointments, which will swell to forty by the day of the election.

The venerable statesman appears a good deal younger than Gov. Dix (as he is fact) and said he felt sure of being elected by a large majority. The stumping tour whereon he has entered extends from the northeast corner of the State to Cincinnati, and cover six weeks. Of course Mr. Pendleton and Gen. Ewing are busy, while Gen. Cary, the candidate for Lieutenant Governor, seems to be almost omnipresent.

and remain open, with no takers. Such a symptom will pass for what is worth among the betting fraternity. Of one thing I feel certain, and this is that the Democrats in this city who have access to all the information of the State Committee are more confident of success than were those in Cleveland and other points on the Reserve whom I saw, and that the Republicans whom I have seen here are less confident than were those whom I met up there.
