RUMORS OF A MAD SCHEME.

In the absence of the Judges of the Supreme Court the duty is devolved by law upon the Secretary of State to administer the oath to the members of the Constitutional Convention next Monday, that oath which solemnly binds them to observe the restrictions imposed by the act of the Legislature calling the Convention. It is said that the Secretary has declared that he would not administer this oath to the members from Robeson county. Indeed, it is charged that the Secretary has affirmed in the most emphatic manner that he would not administer the prescribed oath at all.

Are these reports true? Did Secretary Howerton make any such declaration? Does he entertain any such revolutionary idea?

The Convention will meet. The delegates from Robeson will present their regularly certified credentials. No Judge of the Supreme Court will dare to reject these gentlemen at the hue and cry raised by the Radical party. Will every one of these five Judges stay away in order to permit Mr. Howerton to attempt an act of usurpation and defiance of law? Will Mr. Howerton dare to undertake the execution of such a crazy

THE UNIVERSITY. A BOY'S TERRIBLE DEATH.

tees Meeting. [Abridged from the Raleigh News.]

The Trustees of the University held a meeting in this city on the 31st ult., present: Gov. President, ex officio, and Hon. B. F. Moore, Rev. Dr. Neil McKay, Messra, P. C. Cameron, D. M. Carter, W. T. Faircloth, John Manning, John A. Gilmer, Hon. Jno. Kerr, H. Clay Thomas and Kemp P. Battle.

The committee on contributions were instructed to commence subscriptions for endowment scholarships, the subscriber upon payment to be entitled to name one student for each $1,000 subscribed, upon terms to be prescribed by the committee.

It was resolved that the Trustees will receive donations to found professorships or schools at the University, sufficient in amount for the annual interest to pay the salary of a professor, with the privilege to such contributor to bestow his own name or other appropriate title upon such professorship.

A committee looking to the repair and enlargement of the scientific apparatus was appointed.

A plan for raising an endowment for the University and the basis of life insurance was presented by Mai. P. H. Cameron. Referred.

Mr. Cameron, Chairman of committee on Repairs, made an elaborate report showing that the repairs are nearly completed, the cost having been less than the estimates, The thanks of the Board were returned.

Owing to the fact of there being only a bare quorum, the election of President was postponed to the annual meeting in December.

A communication from Ed. Graham Haywood, Esq., touching an appeal pending in the Supreme Court of the United States in a case in which the University is largely interested, which was dismissed by the Circuit Court of the U. S. for want of jurisdiction, was referred to the Executive Committee, as were various other questions relating to the welfare of the University.

The following resolutions of respect offered by Hon. B. F. Moore, to the memory of the late Hon. W. A. Graham, were adopted:

Resolved. That the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina have received the official announcement of the death of their honored colleague, Hon, Wm. A. Graham, with the most profound sense of the irreparable loss which the State and the University have sustained in his Resolved 2d, That the untiring zeal and great liberality with which Gov. Graham devoted his efficient labors to the service of the University during a long life, and especially to its revival in later years, entitle his memory to be enshrined in the hearts of all who love the University and the cause of higher education in North Carolina, and the University will gratefully preserve the memory of his illustrious character as a patriot and statesman, and his high devotion to and affection for his Alma Mater among its most cherished treasures.

Resolved 3d, That these resolutions be entered on the minutes of the Trustees.

We learn that the remarks of Judge Kerr on the adoption of these resolutions were peculiarly eloquent and feeling.

Continuation of the Trial of Wester-

PHILADELPHIA, August 31. In the trial of Westervelt to day Mr. Ross continued his testimony, detailing the facts of the search for the lost child. No new points have vet been elicited.

Mr. Ross went on the stand shortly after 10 o'clock, and Mr. Hagert continued the examination. The chain of evidence was taken up. The return of Walter Ross to his father by Mr. Peacock (the man who found him after he had been separated from his brother Charlie): the first search throughout the suburbs of Philadelphia, and the publication of the first advertisement asking for the return of the missing cli'd to E. L. Joyce. at the Central Station, Mr. Ross was going on to tell certain things of which his son Walter had informed him, when an objection was made by Mr. Hagert denied that he had ter had told him. Mr. Brown asserted that he did; and so they argued until interrupted by the Court, and Mr. Brown was instructed to present his objections in the regular way to the Court. These hot contentions between counsel were closely watched by the prisoner, and in the midst of heated discussion he would stretch his head forward and listen intently.

Mr. Ross was not cross-examined. Daniel Buddy testified, but nothing new was elicited. Walter Ross, the brother of the lost child, was the next witness. His testimony described the manner in which Charlie and himself had been enticed into a wagon by the strange their attention. We lears, however, that men, he (Walter) afterward being released by them. Nothing new, however, was elicited. Dragged Three Miles on a Rough Road by a Yoke of Oxen.

In the afternoon of August 23 Al vah Sloper, a farmer in the town of Orwell, Oswego county, New York, sent his son William, aged 15, to the lot for a voke of oxen, which he had hitched to a stump by a log chain, telling him to go to a neighbor's, on another road, for a pair of trucks. The boy started off with the oxen, and was not seen again until about 91 o'clock that evening, when three men found the oxen on a by-road, dragging his lifeless body with the log-chain hooked around his neck. All of his clothes had been stripped off, except his shoes and the wristbands of his shirt; his neck was broken, his skull crushed and his body frightfully bruised and broken. The trail, being followed back, was seen to begin at a point not over ten rods from the stump to which the oxen were hitched when he went for them, and it was ascertained that he had been dragged more than three miles over rough and stony roads, through fields, and over a lot where the timber had recently been cut. His hat and shreds of his coat, vest and trousers were found at various points along the road. The affair aroused the intensest excitement in the neighborhood, and at first it was believed that the chain could not have got around young Sloper's neck accidentally, and that he must have been murdered. A coroner was called and the jury, after a thorough examination, returned the verdict that "the boy came to his death by having a chain hitched around his neck and being dragged by a voke of oxen for a mile or more over a rough and stony road, by which he sustained injuries about the head and neck that caused his death. How the chain became hitched is to the jury unknown, but we incline to the belief that it was an accident."

Speaking of poling fig trees reminds us that we have been shown an improved arrangement for that purpose, by means in a general way was made in yesterday's of which a small boy is enabled to secure the fruit from distant branches with certainty and dispatch and at very little personal risk. PIGHT WITH A BEAR. TO MEET THE WASTS OF THE TEADS

Attack Upon a Bear While Swimming -A Desperate Struggle Bruin at Last Dispatched-His Size, &c.

Capt. E. P. Lewis, of the Schr. Annie G. Midgett, informed us yesterday of an interesting "bear fight" he had a few weeks ago. The scene of the conflict was in Wysocking Bay, Hyde county. It appears that Bruin attempted to swim across the bay, and it was while engaged in the performance of this feat that Capt. Lewis, whose vessel was moored near by, jumped into a skiff and "went for" the animal. He had not progressed far, however, before he discovered that the bear was much larger than he had calculated upon and might if hard pressed show him an agly fight. He therefore procured a canoe of a larger size and heavier calibre, in which, armed with an axe as his only weapon, he again pressed upon the fast retreating form of his bearship. Coming up with him, Capt. Lewis dealt the animal a heavy blow on the head with his axe, repeating the experiment several times, though with but very little apparent effect. Finally Capt. L., concentrating all his energy in one desperate effort, hurled the axe against the now yielding pate of the bear, but the next moment saw his weapon sinking beneath the waves and his bearship still alive and "eager for the fray." The next move of Capt. L. was to catch the bear by the tail, but the "tail-hold" in this instance proved to be a very short one-only about four inches-and he could use it to but little advantage. His object at this stage of the conflict was to drown the bear by manusering in such a manner as to keep the animal's head under water long enough for that purpose; but Bruin was too old to be caught napping in this way, and, upon being hauled upward, would raise his head until it would reach in such unpleasant proximity to Capt. L.'s hand that he would be compelled to let go his hold. Finding ufter repeated efforts that he was making but little progress in this way, he concluded to change his tactics. He then proceeded to tie one end of a rope securely to one of the hind legs of the bear, when he finally succeded in drowning him.

The bear proved to be an enormous one, measuring 8 feet in length and weighing over 300 pounds.

Strange Proceedings.

We learn from a correspondent that in corner of Stanly county adjoining Anson there lives a class of people who are very ignorant and superstitious, many of whom were deserters during the war and have since lived in ignorance of religion, always defying the law in a great measure, and being governed by a self-constituted leader, a Radical preacher, as ignorant as themselves. As an instance in point, a few days ago a man borrowed an ox to perform certain labor, but the ox became unmanageable and gored the poor fellow to death. The friends of the unfortunate man became very much exasperated and, under the direction in pursuance of a previous understanding. of their leader, demanded of the owner his for the purpose of completing by an elecox that they might stone him to death, in tion of officers an organization of the 22d accordance with a law of Moses written in Regiment State Militia, under the general 21st chapter of Exodus, 28th verse. They following choice: Colonel, Wm. P. Canawere refused the ox; but, determined upon their sinful course, collected a crowd of day; Lieut.-Col., Geo. L. Mabson; Major, men, women and children and proceeded Geo. W. Betts. to the stable, took the poor creature from the lot and with stones tortured him to death, after which they cut his flesh to pieces and cast it away, believing they were doing God a service. Gen. Dargan, of Wadesboro, has been re tained to prosecute the offenders, and the trial was to come off this week.

A friend calls our attention to the fact that our usury law authorizes a charge of seven per cent. per annum for interest, and if a party has, by a rigid economy, accumu-- We learn that although the lated a small amount in the way of an income, or, by close application to business, has merited and receives a salary larger than the amount of deduction authorized by the revenue act, he is required to pay a tax on the same of 6 per cent. in Wilminghimself up. He has a large family near | ton-four to State and county and two to the city, only leaving one per cent. per annum to the owner for the use of his money.

The County Jail. It seems that the "rumpus" in the county jail on Wednesday, some allusion to which paper, was caused by a fight between some of the prisoners, the two ringleaders in which have since been locked in a cell to remain there a week as a punishment for the offence. Any boisterous behavior on the part of the prisoners calculated to disforbidden, we are informed, and offenders are invariably punished when such conduct is indulged in.

The Commodore.

THE MORNING STAR looks upon its readers this morning through an atmosphere that seems dim with mist, for the hour of sorrow has come and the Commodore is gooe to sea. "The d-l," some called him, but we have for him no such hard name. He has been to us and yet shall be "The Commodore." It has long been evident that his free nature labored under a painful sense of restraint in the narrow limits of his calling as a cleaner of loky forms and greasy rollers; an element of distaste seemed to lurk in the broom with which the litter of the office is daily cleared away, and we have noted that a number of the little chores that attach to the early years spent in the typographical calling were apparently performed more from a sense of duty than from any attraction they inherently possessed, but this was to be expected in a youth of broad views. The sea would seem to offer a larger field for his activities. From his early years his taste would seem to have run that way, and it is thought that he learned his "C's" before either his A or B: at any rate it is certain that he knew how to see before he knew any of his letters; and he followed up this drift of inclination, as he grew, by frequently drifting in a canoe along the turbid waters of Alligator creek, and, when the tide set that way, into the deep and blue Cape Fear. Here it was that he first gained the title of Commodore by his skill in steering his craft among a fleet of driftwood, and here he seemed content to rest awbile on his laurels gained. He turned his attention to affairs of general, and was especially thought interested in all public matters of the nature of circuses, picnics, excursions-in short, all public doings for admission to which free tickets might be potent, and for a time seemed to have his maritime instincts satisfied in an incidental way. But now the urgings of his fate have Front streets, now occupied by Mr. Jno.
