THE CONVENTION. This body considered the subject of local government on Thursday and vesterday. It is all important to the Eastern section of the State that something be done to relieve the people from the enormous and intolerable burdens of government, as it is administered in many counties. We care not what the particular mode is, only let it be sufficient to accomplish the purpose.

The ordinance providing for the disfranchisement of all persons convicted of crime passed. This is the good citizen's safeguard.

By an arrangement between the parties filibustering will not be resorted to henceforth during the session by the Radicals. The disgraceful scenes of the past week have greatly retarded the work the people expected the Convention to do.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

TWENTY-BIGHTH DAY.

|Abridged from the Raleigh News.]

RALEIGH, October 7.

Mr. Turner presented a petition from citizens of Wake county against paying special tax and penitentiary (Deep River) bonds until ordered by a vote, and asking the passage of an accompanying ordinance to that effect He asked a suspension of the rules to consider the matter.

The motion to suspend did not prevail for want of a majority of the Messrs. Albertson, Badger, Block er and Munden stated that they believed the consideration of this matter would be legislative in its character, and were excused from voting.

Mr. Turner presented a petition from the citizens of Wake county to pass a resolution in relation to the Chatham Railroad concerning to the Deep River Navigation Company. Looking to preventing an exchange of bonds. Signed by "Otho Crabtree

By Mr. Badger, a resolution of adj moment sine die. Lies over.

By Mr. Thorne, an ordinance abolishing certain tests of eligibility to olice. Amends art. 6 of the Constitution. Referred. [Authorizes womas suffrage and admits every one who car claim a temporary existence outside of the grave to a vote.

By Mr. Kerr, an ordinance to submit as a separate amendment to the people the amendment to sec. 3, art. 9; refers to mixed schools. Referred. Mr. R id moved to suspend the rules to consider a certain ordinance relating to the publication of the amendments to the Constitution. -

A substitute was offered from the committee to the ordinance considered a few days since, providing that the Constitution as amended be pubfi hed in pamphlet form, 100,000 copies to be published, instead of being advertised in the newspapers of the different Congressional Districts.

Adopted. Mr. Badger moved an amendment that the Governor and Secretary of State be authorized to have the amendments published weekly for six weeks in two newspapers in Raleigh prior to the election. Lost. The ordinance as amended than passed its second and third readings.

On motion of Mr. Boyd the rules were suspended to consider his resolution of instruction to the Judiciary Committee in relation to the public debt. The resolution was adopted.

Ordinance in relation to suffrage and eligibility to office came up on its third reading. It requires ninety days residence in the county to entitle one to vote, and prevents felons | we judge, be pleased with the change.

But he thought the measure would work hardship to both white and blacks. He wanted the Democrats on the floor to show "for reason why" this thing should be done. He just wanted to 'anylize" the question a while. Caswell was entitled to a "Sinator." but it would now say to other counties you shan't "emigrant." He wanted the purification made equal on all hands. He thought the gentlemen here should "disbandon," the idea of "midnight conclaves" (cancases) which directed the way men should vote and act the next day. He saw the day not "fair" distant when he should feel himself free to vote as he pleased irrespective of color.

Mr. Dockery, Rep., spoke at some length in opposition to the ordinance. He did not think the ballot-box was the place to punish crime.

Smyth, col., said he only asked mercy for his people. Mr. Badger opposed the passage of the ordinance. Mr. Jarvis argued in favor of the passage of the ordinance as a matter of simple justice to the honest voters of the State. Mr. Turner was surprised at the zeal shown by some members in their opposition to this measure, which called for nothing more than protection to the honest voters of the State. Mr. Thorne, Rep., (after vain efforts to obtain the floor against the previous question.) was granted ten minutes in which to expatiate, which ten bills and 12 not true. The following members of the bar from other counties put in an appearance: W. Foster French, N. A. McLean, W. L. Mc-Kay, Kerr & Kerr, A. Empie, Alf. Roland,

J. W. Ellis and Walter L. Steels. The cases tried in which the State convicted are: John P. Smith, white, defacing a church, fined $100; W. E. Day of Atonement. To-morrow-covering, according to the incient method of dividing time, "the even ng and the morning," or the time from sunset this evening, to sunset Sunday-is the great Hebrew "Day of Atonement." Following, at ten days distance, the "Day of Remembrance" of the giving of the La by the hand of Moses, we may say this is a fast of absolution from those sins for which the former day, with those following, was a season of contrition or repentance. Now follow four days of observances somewhat similar to those of the "Day of Atonement," though less riserous, at the end of which will be celebrated for a week the festivities of the solemn Fest of Tabernacles. All the ceremonies of this season may be found laid down and commanded n the Books of Moses, and in some of those Christian churches which hold most closely to the letter of the text, a vestige of this Feast of Tabernacies is now found in their annual campagetings.

WILMINGTON AND SHELBY!

As the time for the Fair of the Cape Fear Agricultural Association begins to draw near, we again remind our readers of the fact that on the second day of the Fair all the survivors of the battles of Fort Fisher (Confederate) are invited to meet their brethren in arms in social communion, to renew, one with another, the fading memo ries of their heroic deeds, to preserve the truth of history, and to keep fresh the per sonal attachments formed in the hour of supreme test and peril. In the hope that it may now come to the notice of some of the veterans who have not seen it before, we reproduce the call entire, which is addressed "To the survivors of the Confeder ate forces, (Army and Navy,) engaged in the battles of Fort Fisher, N. C., Decem ber 25th, 1864, and January 15th, 1865:"

COMRADES: In response to what seems to be a very general desire on your part, I invite you to assemble in the city of Wilmingon, N. C., on the morning of the 10th of November next, (being the second day of the Agricultural Fair) for a social reunion.

Ten years have clapsed since the flag and the cause we loved went down in blood and we parted in sadness. We did not then surrender our right to live in history when we laid down our arms to overwhelming numbers. When we swore allegiance to the Federal Government we did not forswear all the hallowed memories of heroic association, nor our ceaseless love for those who died in defense of self-government by Fight Between Two Ragles.

An interesting contest between two birds s said to have occurred at Masonboro Sound a few days ago. A large number of persons were at the different landings along the Sound at the time, when their attention was attracted to the combatants by a piercing cry, often repeated at short intervals. The birds were each of the genus falco, of the bald eagle species, and when first observed were about two hundred yards above the Banks channel.

One of the birds held pendant from his talons an enormous eel, which the other bird was endeavoring to gain possession of. The bird possessing the eel was taken at great disadvantage, as it required the use of his talons to hold his prey, which left him but his beak with which to ward of the assaults of his foe. The attacking bird, realizing his advatage, swooped upon his enemy, startling the numerous seabirds with his shrill triumphant cry and tearing the feathers and flesh from the back and breast of his opponent. Ever and anon during the fierce conflict, the severed feathers from the gaudy plumage of the struggling birds would catch in the erratic eddies, and, after whirling and tossing in all directions, many of them would fall at the spectators' feet Long and fierce the struggle waged. Each of the birds was of enormous size, yet one of them, taken at so great a disadvantage, at last perceived that resistance was in vain, and, after one despairing wail, released his prey. As the eel descended, and had hearly reached the water, the triumphant bird, with victorious cry, swooped upon it, and, firmly closing it in his talons, bore it away to the distant

The East and the West-Carolina's Great Artery. In accordance with an invitation most hospitably extended by the authorities and citizens of the enterprising little city of Shelby to the President and other officers of the Carolina Central Railway Company, to the Mayor and other officials and the citizens of Wilmington, to participate in a public jubilee in honor of the completion of the Carolina Central Railway to their city, on Wednesday afternoon a party, consisting of Dr. C. H. Roberts, President of the Road, Capt. I. B. Grainger, Vice President, W. P. Canaday, Esq., Mayor, and J. J. Cassidey, Esq. Alderman of the city of Wilmington, representatives of the press and of the merchants of Wilmington, left this city on a special train, and, after a pleasant ride and inspection of the road, arrived at Shelby on the afternoon of Thursday. The party was met at the depot by His Honor, Mayor Durham, and a committee of citizens with carriages, who escorted them to the hotel, where, after the removal of the dust and stains of a long ride, the excursionists were ushered into the dining hall, where they were seated at a most ele_ gant and bountiful banquet, which was presided over by Dr. Millen, one of Shelby's oldest and most honored citizens, whose jovial face and cordial greetings made guests and entertainers whike feel that they were already firm and fast friends. The tables were crowded with good things, and at a glance it could be seen that the fair hands of fair ladies had been busy in the preparation and arrangement of the viands. After the cravings of their keenly whetted appetites had been allayed, a stroll about the pleasant little city was had, followed by a visit to the vineyard, winepresses and wine-vaults of Maj. Wells, where a general sampling was indulged in of the delicious and sparkling beverages. (It need scarcely be mentioned here that this sampling business was entered into with great spirit and energy, and what the Wilmington delegation don't know about Cleveland county wine is not worth knowing).
