JACKSON.

To-day the statue of Stonewall Jackson, made by a distinguished sculptor of England at the instance of English admirers, and presented by them to the State of Virginia, will be unveiled at the Capital of the late Confederate States in the presence of uncounted thousands. No occasion of the kind has perhaps excited as much interest in this quarter of the Union. Jackson was not only a great soldier of the Southern cause-he was the most illustrious Lieutenant who ever carried out the orders of a chief and himself one of the noblest commanders in history. Living, all honored him; dead, all pay tribute to his sainted memory. .

A Heroine by Mistake. Lexington Gazette.

One night, not long ago, a burglar entered a private residence on Broadway. On ascending one flight of stairs he observed a light in a chamber, and while deliberating what to do, a large woman suddenly descended upon him, seized him by the throat, pushed him down through the hall, and forced him into the street before he had time to think. "Hero'c Repulse of a Burglar by a Woman" was the way the story was told next day. But when friends called and congratulated her upon her courage, she exclaimed: "Good gracious, I didn't know it was a burglar! If I had, I should have been ir ghtened to death. I thought it was my husband come home drunk, and I was determined he shouldn't stay in the house in that condition."

Keep the Brain Fallow in Childhood. When we are considering the health of children, it is imperative not to omit the importance of keeping the brain fallow, as it were, for several of the first years of their existence. The mischief perpetrated by a contrary course, in the shape of bad health, peevish temper and developed vanity is incurable. Some infant prodigy, which is a standard of mischief throughout its neighborhood, misleads them; but parents may be assured that this early work is not by any means all gain, even in the way of work. I suspect it is a loss, and that children who begin their education late, as it would be called, will rapidly overtake those who have been in harness long before

The Enoch Arden case at Farmington, Maine, has been settled by law. William Prescott went to California twenty years ago, leaving his wife at home, and after three years she married a Mr. Reed. Now Prescott returns, and instead of seeking some quiet vale to die, he asks for his property. Mrs. Reed sued for a divorce, and has got it.

The Savants hold that at one time there exhisted in the present United States a far higher civilization that what is now seen. Underground relics attest that our ancient predecessors had rings-but quite different from those in vogue in our times.

Cotton Lively.

There is an immense amount of cotton arriving at this port by railroad every day, mostly from Georgia and South Carolina, and destined for northern ports. The various roads, we understand, are about taxed to their utmost to keep up with the great avalanche of the staple which is constantly pouring in upon them. Huge trains, heavily laden, passed through Sunday afternoon, and the cry is, still it comes. The arrivals destined for this place, both by railroad and steamers, are also very heavy, and the compress machinery is kept constantly in motion in preparing the bales for shipment to Europe, by vessels which are waiting for it and taking it in as fast as it comes from the press. All day long and all night long the sound of the compress, very like the distant reverberation of artillery, is heard

Sunday, but promptly at half-past 12 Sunday night the machinery was in motion. Our Bar and River Improvements. In our issue of the 13th inst. we mentioned the fact that among the estimates for river and harbor improvements, contained in the reports of Cols. Craighill and Abert to Gen. Humphreys, chief of the Engineer Corps, was one of $210,000 for the Cape Fear River. We now have the additional information, embodied in the reports, that "It is expected by June 30th, 1876, to have to Wilmington an available channel, with a depth of 111 or 12 feet at low water, equivalent to 16 or 161 feet at high water," and with this object in view the appropriation of $210,000 is placed among the estimates as the amount required for the Cape Fear River for the ensuing fiscal year.

Highway Robbery.

Mr. Rising, residing on Wooster, between Ninth and Tenth streets, was down town on some business Saturday night, and about 9 o'clock he stopped and had a short conversation with a policeman near Lippitt's alley, after which he proceeded through the alley with a view of going home, while the officer left in a different direction. Mr. Rising had gone but a short distance, however, when he was suddenly assailed by two men, one of whom knocked him down and held him down, while the other emptied his pockets, which contained about $5 in money. He did not recognize his assailants, as it was very dark at the time, but he is under the impression that they were white men.

Further from Gen. Colston. A letter was received by Maj. J. A Byrne, vesterday, from Gen. R. E. Colston, dated at El Obeid, Kordofan, August 25th, and also one by Col. John L. Cantwell, in reply to one written by him in April last under the auspices of the Officers of the Third N. C. Regiment, of which he is Secretary, in which he says that he is slowly but steadily improving, though still very helpless, unable to walk or even stand alone, and could not say when he would be able to recross the desert on his return to Cairo. He is receiving every attention and comfort at El Obeid and has for his quarters a very commodious building, well ventilated, convenient and pleasant. He rides out every day in a little donkey cart which he carried with him on the expedition, and which is an object of great curiosity to the natives, who never saw a vehicle before, while hundreds ot men, women and children follow him in his daily trips. "He describes a tree which he saw during one of his rides, which is known as the Baobab the singular dimensions of which are very striking and peculiar. It was seventy feet in circumference, from forty to fifty feet in height, and at a distance resembles a huge cabbage. He received a letter from Gen. Stone, Minister of War and Chief of the Khedive's staff, and also communications from Cols. Purdie and Mason, commanding another expedition which was to act in concert with his, highly complimenting him for the zeal and indomitable energy he displayed in his determination to remain with and conduct the expedition in despite of the sufferings he was experiencing, only giving up his purpose when death was actually staring him in the face and it was absolutely impossible for him to proceed further.

The best wishes of the numerous friends of Gen. Colston in this city, as well as elscwhere, are with him in the trying ordeal through which he is passing, as well as their earnest hopes that he may be soon restored to health.

The Colored People to Have a Fair.

The colored people propose to have a grand fair or exposition in this city on the 27th, 28th and 29th days of December next. The Board of Directors of the "Industrial Fair Association," under whose auspices the exhibition is to take place, have procured for the purpose a large threestory brick building, with out-houses and spacious grounds attached. On the opening day addresses will be delivered by ex-Congressman Robert Elliott, of South Carolina, O. H. Dockery, of this State, and other prominent speakers. Among other atractions there will be a grand review of fire companies, together with a Masonic parade by Lodges from all parts of the State, while two bands will be in attendance to furnish music.

In a circular issued by the Association they say they desire to show the world what our colored people can do in the way of farming, mechanism, art, needle-work, cabinet-work, masonry, blacksmithing, stock-raising, &c. Parties making entries are requested to send their names and articles by December 15th, addressed to Jos. C. Hill, Wilmington, N. C. Gold and silver premiums will be awarded, and arrangements will be made to have the fares on the railroads reduced for the occasion.

The Board of Directors are Jos. C. Hill, Chairman; Elijah Lane, Wm. J. Kellogg, Jas. W. Telfair, ex officio, Evander Mc-Bride, Jas. P. Green and Chas. E. Cleapor,

This will be the first Fair ever held in the State by the colored people, and we hope they will receive every encouragement in their laudable purpose.

Marine Matters.

Capt. John H. Marshall, coast pflot of the steamer Urbana, writes to us from Georgetown, S. C., in reference to a report in the Charleston News and Courier of the 21st inst., in which it is stated that the steamer referred to had been found in a disabled condition. He says the circumstances were as follows:

At the time referred to there was a gale of wind blowing from the northeast, both anchors being down and the boat riding easily. In attempting to get under way the steam-pipe collapsed and of course disabled the engine for heavy sea work. The flag was set for a steamer in sight, which proved to be the U. S. steamer Alanthus, Capt. Brown, which took the Urbana in tow and carried her inside Georgetown bar, where she got up steam and ran up to George town. The steamer had a life-boat capable of holding thirty persons and a clinker-built boat capable of carrying fifteen more, while there were only thirty persons on board, all told. Capt. M. says the boat was in 71 fathoms water when taken in tow by the Alanthus, and that any pilot would say she was perfectly safe. There was a heavy sea, it is true, but she could have of the ladies and children that he asked

Broken Pavements.

We understand that all owners of property who have broken pavements in front of the same will receive notification to-day, urned out yesterday to attend the funeral from the City Marshal, requiring them to of a fellow-member, Mr. W. N. Highsmith, repair and put them in good order within which took place from Fitth Street M. E. the next ten days, as per city ordinance; Church yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, and that, in case of failure to comply, the hence to Oakdale Cemetery. Mr. High- same will be done by the city at their exa large one.

If you wake up at night and hear a great grumble and gush and roar, like the snorting of an uneasy volcano in the distance, don't get frightened. It is only the exhaust from the big cotton compress, now running night and day and then scarcely able to keep the staple out of the way of the railroad men who bring it, or to turn it over in the reduced shape fast enough to suit the waiting shipmasters.

We took a stroll up that way yesterday morning, and found such a change from the steady ebb and flow of traffic on the down-town streets that it really seemed as if the life and motion of the city had been concentrated for the occasion within the purlieus of the cotton warehouse and buildings adjacent. Between the railroad tracks the ground was strewed with cotton bales awaiting delivery or transfer; the depots were filled with it, an army of laborers were rolling it; the train hands were unloading it, the platforms were covered with it, and under the iron roof and between the firewalls of the warehouse there did not seem to be much available space for more. But a file of truckmen were trundling it off out of the way, to the press. And the press was opening and shutting its great hungrylooking jaws, at the rate of once in a minute or a minute and a half, and, with a force of tons upon tons urging them together, crunching up every time a balecrunching up a bale of four and five feet in height with such a tremendous impulse of eagerness that we almost looked to see the iron teeth meet each other throught it. But cotton in the bale, like cotton in the bol and perhaps in some other forms of doing up, can stand some pressure without hurt. we're told, though, of course, there's a point where pressure can go no further, and this point seems to be reached, with the bale, when it has been reduced from a thickness of perhaps five fect when unhooned to one of six or eight inches. Then comes the exhaust of steam, the jaws open as the ties are made fast, and as the pressure is removed of course the bales swell a little, but emain permanently reduced to one-half or one-third of their former size. All the cost of compression is borne by the ship-owners, as they are paid by weight for carrying cotand thereby be enabled to stow away twice or thrice the number of bales into a vessel that they otherwise could.

As the press yields up its bale, on comes a throng of laborers again-cotton-ties a-clipping, cotton-bales a-rolling; cotton on end, cotton on trucks and going out to the sheds and wharves piled up with compressand the sailors singing over it, and drying their cotton sails up aloft to bear it to the lands where, for the present, all the sailcloth is made, and whence the manufactured wraps and traps and trinkets are brought back to show us how great are the uses of

The large auditorium of the First Baptist Church was filled on Sunday morning by an assemblage equal to those it has held on former great days in its history, who followed most intently the exhortations and ceremonies incident to the accession of the Rev. James B. Taylor to its pastorate.

On the platform with the chosen pastor were the Rev. Messrs. Durham of Goldsboro, Bailey of Raleigh and Taylor of Wake Forest, the latter a brother of the

From information obtained from a source that is usually well informed (and in the absence of the usual notice from the church authorities) it had been stated that the Rev. Mr. Durham would probably preach the installation sermon, and such was the gereral expectation, but the event proved that this office had in fact been delegated to the Rev. Mr. Bailey, while the pleasure of l'stening to Mr. Durham had been reserved for the evening.

The text was taken from Ephesians iii, 8 'Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ."

Beginning with a reminder that the Gospel had been first preached by angels to Saul, on the way to Damascus, the Rev. gentleman proceeded to speak of the importance and duties of the pastoral office and the objects to be gained by its crcation and maintenance. Mr. Bailey's remarks were listened to with great attention

The sermon was followed by the address of welcome to the pastor-delivered on behalf of the First Baptist Church of Wilmington and 120,000 Baptists in North Carolina, by the Rev. Mr. Durham. The exhortation to the people was brief and to the point, showing one great necessity to pastoral success to consist in the countenance and assistance of his people, and was given by Rev. Mr. Bailey. After prayer and the hymn "All hail the power of Jesus' name," the congregation dispersed with the benediction by Rev. Chas. E. Tay-We make this statement in justice to lor. In the evening a great congregation again assembled at the church to listen to the Rev. Mr. Durham. The attendance was fully equal to that of the morning, and the exposition of the Epistolary "It is appointed unto all men once to die, but after death the judgment," was much commented upon afterward.

Thus the exercises of the day came quietly to a close, and we trust it may prove to be It will be copy-righted, and of course will

The Opera House.

A very fair audience assembled at the Opera House last night to witness, the first appearance in our city of "Buffalo Bill," "Texas Jack"and Mile. Morlacchi supported by an efficent company.

The petite comedy "Thrice Married" was first put upon the stage and was well rendered and thoroughly appreciated.

This was followed by the drama entitled "Life on the Border," the principal feature of the evening's performance. "Life_on the Border" abounded in thrilling scenes, hairbreadth escapes and striking tableaux, all of which were rendered with fine effect, winning for the troupe the applause of the audience. The main features of this drama of course were the introduction of "Buffalo Bill" and "Texas Jack," the "scouts of the plains," and it is but just to say that all that was promised seemed to be accordingly fulfilled. The audience were highly in terested and pleased with the performance. The plot was well sustained and the play moved along easily. Another performance will be given tonight, with change of programme.

Mayor's Court. The following cases were disposed of by this tribunal yesterday morning: Charles Stevens, charged with cursing and other disorderly conduct in the barroom of Herman Woebse, was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $10 and costs or work for twenty days on the streets.

Henry Williams, charged with the same offence as above, was fined $10 and costs or required to work twenty days on the Josh Clark, charged with the larceny of a knife, was ordered to give a justified bond in the sum of $200 for his appearance at the present term of the Superior Court.

Herman Woebse, charged with permitting disorderly proceedings in his bar-room, was required to pay a fine of $25 and costs. S. A. Norwood, disorderly conduct; case dismissed on the payment of costs.

ton, and it is evidently to their interest to ferred to as having been found camping out pay the Compress Company a small tax in the vicinity of Taylor and Thirteenth streets, were discharged from custody on condition that they would leave the city immediately.

An Important Case Decided.

By reference to our Washington dispatches of last night it will seen that the U. S. Supreme Court ed cotton, where the ships are a-stowing it has decided the case entitled "Wilmington & Weldon Railroad vs. King, executor." In this case the decision rendered is one affecting large interests in this State and throughout the country. We refer to the dispatch for particulars.

W. H. HOLABIRD,

Dear Sir;—The Hunting Suit arrived in good condition by express this afternoon. It fits me splendidly. It seems to me a perfect miracle of cheapness, when I consider the quality of material and the labor involved in making it. My wife says it is the best looking suit I've got. I shall take pains to show it to my iriends, and you may hear from them on their own account. With many thanks for your courteousness as well as your skill, I am respectfully yours, have ever had. You can use my name in recon mending it for fit, color and general adaption over anything for the same purpose I have tried, either at TROY, NEW YORK, February 17, 1875. MR HOLABIRD,

Dear Sir:—Have just received your water-proof suit, and to show my appreciation I send an order for two more suits. Was so well pleased with the quality and price that I went immediately to work among my brother spo tamen and hope soon to send you more orders. The cap is the only thing I ever saw to fill my idea of a shooting or fishing cap. S. W. BEAUCLERK.
