Generrl Johnson, after addressing some words to him, struck him severel blows with a cowhide, which up to that moment he had had concealed in his sleeve. General Imboden seized General Johnson, and was defending himself from the blows, when policeman Wallace Rowe stepped in between them and caused a cessation of hostilities.

Both gentlemen were put under arrest, and were bailed by Justice idea of immediate resumption, which he Crutchfield. Amenities of Social Life in Southwestern Kentucky.

[From the Hopkinsville Conservative.] Mr. Geo. Merritt and wife, who reside in this city, but own a farm in the country, upon which a brother of Mr. Merritt resides, rode out to the farm one day this week, and when arriving at the residence, Mrs. Merritt alighted from the buggy and preceded her husband in the house, where she met with a violent assault by her brotherin-law. On hearing her screams, her husband made haste to reach the honse, when he found his wife down on the floor and his brother stabbing her with a large knife, which he had succeeded in repeating some two or three times. The unnatural brother then turned upon the husband, and, armed with the same deadly knife and shot-gun, threatened. him also with instant death. Mr. Geo. Merritt, however persuaded his brother to desist from his bloody purpose, and conveyed his wife to the residence of his father. It is reported that Mrs. Merritt is in a very dangerous condition, and that little hope of her recovery is entertained. No arrest has been made.

bandry and household fabrication without which a fair is not agricultural whatever else it may be. An informant says the whole occasion was pleasant, and he believes profitable to managers and attendants. On Thursday there was a full attendance. The address of Hon. A. M. Waddell on "The Situation" was listened to attentively throughout, and apparently produced a deep impression. It was partly agricultural, partly financial and partly political, giving a summary and analysis of the causes of the present depression, and pointing out what the speaker considered to be of eosts.

the safe and seasonable remedies for the same. Col. Waddell strongly opposed the said was impossible. If it could take place at all, it would bring about national distress, and would be dangerous to every interest in the broad land. The address, we understand, will be printed this week in full in the Fayetteville papers.

We are glad our friends in Cumberland have been successful in their annual exhibition. It is creditable to their skill and industry and gratifying to their pride.

Selling Chickens Uunder Difficulties. An old lady from Brunswick county arrived here vesterday morning, after, as she says, camping out two nights, with a coop of about thirty chickens for sale. She sold a pair of them to one party and the remainder of the coop to another, upon which she says she was arrested and taken to the City Hotel, where she was fined $5 and costs for violating a city ordinance which forbids the selling of such things by wholesale before a certain hour.

We heard of no such case before the City Court, but if the old lady did have to pay such a fine it was certainly a great hardship in her case, as she was evidently unaware that such a law existed.

Thanksgiving Services.

We are requested to state that there will be joint services of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and Lutheran churches at the First Baptist Church on Thursday (Thanksgiving) morning, at 11 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Bernheim of the Lutheran church officiating. We also learn that the evening services at the Lecture Room of the First Presbyterian Church will partake of the spirit of the day.

There will doubtless be services in most if not all the other churches, due announcement of which will be made.

Fayetteville Fair Bail

Some of our Wilmington fair were present at the Fayetteville Fair, and of course the ball room at Williams Hall on Friday evening was graced by them. The Raleigh News says "some one hundred couples not only from Wilmington, but from many other places] were on the floor. The elegance and taste of dress exhibited by the ladies formed a peculiar attraction of the evening to the masculine eye. We looked cost of the prosecutor. Lane, however, was committed on five cases in the same Court on which judgment had, on certain conditions, been previously suspended. Before Justice Gardner, Wm. Daniels, Mack Daniels and Cornelius Daniels were arraigned under chapter 209 of acts of 1874 and 1875, commonly known as the Landlord and Tenant Act, charged with having removed the crop from certain lands. The evidence being such as to show that the defendants had satisfied all liens on said crop, judgment was suspended on the payment

The Lunstic Once More.

Laura Knight, the alleged lunatic who came here from Laurinburg last week, reference to whom has been made /several times in these columns, was yesterday taken before Justices VanAmringe and Gardner, who, after proper investigation, decided that she was indeed a lunatic. She still insisted that she had property in Virginia, and said that she was here on business that the parties in whose house she was found had robbed her of $2,000, and that she wanted them all arrested. Upon being asked when the money was taken, she said it was about 14 years ago, and that it was in bills like one shown her, which was a greenback. She said that her child was taken from her about the same time, but as it was not likely she could now recover the one that was lost, she would be satisfied with any other child about the same age of her own. Other statements made by her were equally wild, and it was finally decided by Justice VanAmringe, as one of the Board of County Commissioners, to give her up to the party who claimed her as a sister and furnish a guard to attend her to Laurinburg. Thievery in the Country.

Mr. D. C. Davis, residing about three miles below this city fon the Middle Sound road, went home from town on Saturday night, between 11 and 12 o'clock, his wife and children being at the house of a neighbor in the meantime, and upon arriving at his dwelling the first thing he discovered doubtless become imbedded in the sand (where Mr. Davis afterwards found them)

Complimentary.

"Paddy's Hollow," after undergoing a season of comparative quiet, fully sustained its old reputation again on Sunday. From 'early morn till dewy eve," we understand, it was an almost continued scene of drunkenness and disorder, in which seamen from the large number of vessels in port took a prominent part. About 74 o'clock in the evening a colored man by the name of Rias

Turner was passing that way when he was assailed, as he says, by a sailor known by the name of "Dublin," who bantered him for a wrestle, and upon his refusing, seized him by the coat, wrestled him around considerably and finally struck and kicked him several times. Turner got away from him once, but "Dublin" pursued and finally overtook him, when the act of kicking and cuffing was repeated.

Warrants have been issued for "Dublin," and other parties implicated in the scenes of disorder referred to.

Determined Boy.

A boy employed on one of the vessels in port was arrested in the early part of last week and put in the Guard House for safekeeping, it being stated that he had cursed and abused the officers of his ship and evinced a very insubordinate disposition generally. On Friday last, upon application, he was delivered on board the vessel which soon after set sail. Arriving off Smithville the boy was again sent on shore and put in confinement at that place for safe-keeping until the vessel should be ready to go out. A day or two afterwards he was taken out and once more put on board ship; but before she cleared the bar, as we are informed, he seized a favorable opportunity and escaped, taking a plank with him, upon which he swam for about two miles and was finally picked up by a boat coming up the river and brought to this city.

Escape and Re-Arrest of a Prisoner.

One of the colored girls attached to the chain-gang seized a favorable opportunity vesterday afternoon, while the prisoners were at work somewhere in that part of the city known as "Brooklyn," and made her escape, running in the direction of Hilton. Norton, the overseer, dispatched one of the remaining prisoners after the fugitive, who after a hot chase, succeeded in overhauling her, when she made the girl cross her hands, tied her securely and took her safely back to the "squad." On the principle that it takes a thief to catch a thief" this was a wise move, on the part of the over seer, and the result in this case seems to have substantiated the truth of the saving.
