MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT.

The President's Message to Congress, which is fully synopsized elsewhere, is not a very remarkable document, for all its dragging in, in an unseemly manner, the questions of religious faith and education in the public schools. On the Cuban question the President takes more moderate ground than was some time ago expected. He is opposed to recognizing the independence of the island or interfering between the belligerents. His policy seems to be to watch and wait. The President's financial views are stated with some degree of fulness in the synopsis, and we therefore refer the reader to that. reserving comment until another time if we desire to make any.

Bryan and a colored individual by the name of Sam Robinson got into an affray on the wharf yesterday afternoon, during which the latter was severely pummelled with a piece of iron gas pipe in the hands of the tormer, quite a profusion of blood flowing from the wounds he received on the head

THE MORNING STAR.

VOL. XVII.---NO. 64. WILMINGTON, N. C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1875.

CLOSING PERSONALS OF THE COS-PERENCE. One of the most accomplished members of the body which has just adjourned was Rev. Adolphus W. Mangum, of illustrious lineage, who, as scholar, orator, poet and pastor, is a household word in many counties of North Carolina. The age of Professor Mangum is about 40. He came to the Conference in 1856, and was made Professor of English Literature and Belles Lettres last summer in the University of North Carolina. Professor Mangum had been, previous to his election to the Professorial chair, a minister of the Methodist Church in full connection. Handling a fluent and graceful pen, his contributions of prose and verse have enriched the newspaper and book press for many years. He has published one volume of poetry, "Myrtle Leaves," and was for a time on the staff of a weekly religious and literary paper, the Message, published at Greensbero. He graduated at Randolph Macon College.

Professor Mangum is above the medium in height, is lithe, graceful, erect, with his fine shapely head covered with greyish dark hair and beard thrown back. His expression lights up strongly in speaking, and he talks with energy and fervor. His style as an orator may be inferred from this physical inventory.

Rev. Henry H. Gibbons is a preacher of powerful frame, has bluish eyes and reddish complexion and hair. Mr. Gibbons joined the Conference in 1850. He is about 48 years of age, or perhaps a year or two Marquis L. Wood became a member of the Conference in 1855. He has been a missionary to China, and is an accomplish-

Among the young men a very fair rank must be accorded Rev. Junius T. Harris, of Davidson county. His is a stout-hearted, spmpathetic nature which works out its course in life as much by knowing how to feel for others as by hewing a good path for itself. Junius Harris will accomplish a good work, having the brain as well as the heart and the serve.

Premiums. Geo. Z. French, of Pender county: $5 in gold for the best crop of peanuts raised on one acre of ground by a colored man in the State, specimen to be presented at the fair with proper certificate; $5 in gold for the best crop of corn raised on one acre of ground by a colored man in the State, specmen of the same to be presented at the fair with a proper certificate.

Owen Dove, assistant engineer of the fire department: $2 50 in gold to the colored fire company who unreels 500 feet of hose, connects the same and is in readiness for action in the shortest space of time.

James W. Winfield: $2 50 in gold to the colored man who makes and presents the best plow, hand-made, in the State.

Wm. H. Moore: $2 50 in gold for best specimens of photographs made by a colored man in this State and presented at

By Geo. W. Price, Jr.: $2 50 in gold or its equivalent to the Sabbath school scholar under 16 years of age who can produce a certificate of punctual attendance at Sabbath school the greatest number of days within the last two years.

Capt. R. P. Paddison, of the steamer Northeast, has consented to bring articles to the approaching fair free of charge, up and down Black River; also from Point

John Kirkpatrick has made application to enter a trotter from Charlotte.

The premium list will be closed Dec. 15th, 1875.

Let the Unfortunate Be Glad. The mite-box which the kindness of Messrs. Green & Flanner had allowed the ladies of the Benevolent Association to place in their drug store on Market street was opened yesterday and found to contain twenty-five dollars in gold. We cannot tell whether this was the quiet gift of one, or, as in the case of our Sound party heretofore mentioned, the result of a concert of action between several generous souls, but be it as it was we think the prayers of the unfortunate and heart-stricken will go up for them with power to pre-

A New Paper. The prospectus of a new weekly paper entitled the Pythian Echo, the publication of which will be commenced early in January, will be found in our advertising columns. The paper will be the organ of the Knights of Pythias, but will also be open to other benevolent orders in our midst and elsewhere. The editors and proprietors are Messrs. W. H. Gerken and V. D. Macumber, of this city, both being devoted to the interest of the order and both young men of energy. We wish them abundant success, pecuniarily and otherwise.

A Huge Deer.

At or near Little Sugar Loaf, Bladen county, one day last week, Mr. W. E. Atkinson shot and killed the largest deer ever seen in that county, the weight of the animal being 364 pounds, its length 8 feet and its horns measuring 28 inches in length. Mr. Atkinson, we learn, will have the horns on exhibition at the Centennial in Philadelphia next year. We are glad to know that old Bladen will be represented in that great exposition of the world's wonders.

Mr. T. N. Ramsey arrived in the city last evening. He is just from Sampson county, where he has been lecturing on temperance and receiving members into the Good Templar order. Notwithstanding report, he is still unmated and marriageable.

EASTERN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

Business Visiters from Charlotte. The merchants and business men generally of Wilmington had the pleasure of welcoming to our city yesterday morning a business delegation from Charlotte, consisting of Col. J. E. Stanhouse, Col. J. G. Bryce, and Messrs. J. T. Johnston, D. W. Oats, W. T. Wheatly, W. H. H. Gregory and Chas. D. Snow, all prominent mer chants and cotton dealers of our sister city of the West. The principal object of their visit, we learn, is to ascertain our facilities for handling cotton, to enquire into the freightage of the staple and other matters pertaining to foreign and coastwise shipments, and to cultivate closer and more intimate business relations with our port generally. The representatives of the business interests of Charlotte were most warmly and cordially received by our merchants and others, who cheerfully gave them all the information in their power. During the forenoon they were invited on 'Change where they met a number of our merchants, and later in the day, in company with a committee delegated by the Exchange, paid a visit to the Cotton Compress and also to the vessels loading at the wharves of the Company for foreign The delegation express the desire of them selves and other cotton dealers of Charlotte to ship through our port, and we are glad to learn that they are very much gratified with what they have seen and heard in this connection during their short stay in our city.

It will no doubt redound to the interest of both Charlotte and Wilmington to establish and cultivate more intimate business relations between the two cities, and we hail the presence of the delegation now here as the dawning of a new era in the history of the twin sisters of the East and the West. The delegation, who are stopping at the Purcell House, will remain here until this

The Berger Family.

This exceedingly meritorious and popular troupe, accompanied by the justly celebrated and popular humorist and delineator, Sol Smith Russell, who have long since established a most enviable reputation with our theatre-going public, will appear at the Opera House in this city in two of their chaste, amusing and superb entertainments. commencing with this evening. Of their visit to Augusta the Chronicle and Sentinel says: "An entertainment, composed of good music and genuine humor, would hardly fail to please in any community with the smallest pretensions to cultivated taste. Augusta has the reputation of being more than ordinarily fastidious in this respect, hence the approbation of those of her citizens who attend performances at the Opera House is a very fair indication of merit. This being the case the Bergers cannot but be gratified at the reception they have received. The company is exceptionally meritorious. Its principal members are possessed of talent of a superior degree, and there are none who can be classed as mediocre. Miss Anna Berger is a fine musician on the cornet and the violin, and a charming vocalist. Miss Annie Morgan has a remarkably sweet soprano voice, which she uses with skill and judgment. Her rendition of favorite ballads went to the hearts of the audience, and secured for her hearty and well deserved applause. One of the most artistic and skillful musicians in the company is M'lle. Klaisy. Her performance on the violencello was a masterpiece. Sol. Smith Russell is-himself; we can hardly say more. Mr. Russell is undoubtedly the greatest of living humorists and delineators of character. His representations are inimitable. Successive presentations but develop new features of wit and humor.

Magdalens Gone to a House of Ref-

We learn from the Charlotte Observer that Catholic clergyman of this city was in Charlotte last week and while there encountered two girls, inmates of the Exchange Hotel, a house of ill repute, who yielded to his entreaties and agreed to abandon their lives of shame. Our contemporary adds: One of these was Jo Flynn, a girl who has been here for several years, and the other was comparatively a stranger, having but recently come. The first is of Irish birth and Catholic education, and was by reason of these things rendered more approachable to a Catholic priest. She was first persuaded by the man of God, and her influence then carried her companion with her. They consented to accept the offer made them, and, throwing aside their flashy toggery-memorials of the days of their wickedness-arrayed themselves in plain dresses, and, accompanied by the priest, left for Wilmington, whence they shipped to New York, where they will enter an asy lum for magdalens.

* * * * "If he who gives a cup of cold water to a disciple in the name of a disciple shall not lose his reward, how much more shall he not lose his reward who snatches a soul as a brand from the eternal

This, we are informed, is only one of many instances in which the good Priest alluded to has been successful in rescuing from lives of shame such deluded victims, several in this city having through his instrumentality been induced to abandon their unholy associations and seek refuge in asylums established for their reclamation and benefit.
