Discovery of a New "Whiskey Hing," A portion of a barrel of whiskey having been stolen from the freight depot of the Wilmington, Columbia & Augusta Railroad sometime during the past week, a search warrant was procured yesterday and placed in the hands of an officer, who proceeded to the west side of the river and succeeded in finding a keg containing some five or six gallons of the liquor in the possession of one Dick Crawford, colored. It appears from his statement, however, that another colored man, whose name he mentioned, had drawn the keg of whiskey from the barrel, hid it under the platform and had been taking his "drams" from it for some days, when he (Crawford) thinking he had as much right to it as the other. finally took the keg from its hiding place and carried it to his own house. Whether he will succeed in establishing this as a fact in evidence, when the investigation takes place, remains to be seen. The case will come up for a hearing before Justice Cassidey to morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The Charlotte Observer has the particulars of a fatal affray which occurred at Wadesboro' on Thursday afternoon, between Miller Jowers, and Alex. Birmingham. It appears the two men met at the restaurant of Mr. Jowers, which is near the depot, when a dispute arose concerning a gun, which had a bruise upon the barrel. Jowers said that the damage to the gun resulted from its having been dropped and a wagon wheel having run over it, which statement Birmingham pronounced "a d-d lie." Jowers asked if he meant what he said? The other responded: "If you say that a wa gon wheel ran over the barrel of that gun you tell a d-d lie;" saying which he struck Jowers a blow with a stick which he had in his hand. (Birmingham had the gun also in his hands at the time.) Jowers, being stricken, turned and seized a stick, with which he pursued his assailant, and was about overtaking him, when he turned, and with the gun almost at the breast of the pursuer, fired, the whole load lodging in the body of the unfortunate man, who dropped, and with the exclamation, "Birmingham has killed me!" expired instantly. Tue charge made a frightful wound, the whole of Jowers' heart having been shot

Birmingham immediately fled, and at last accounts had not been arrested. The Observer understands that the slayer has been more or less deranged for the past ten years. He is a school teacher by profession and his insanity has been of so mild a character that he has been pursuing his vocation during this time. He is a man of excellent parentage and family connection, and, up to the time of this occurrence, has borne an untarnished name. Jowers is also well connected and had a good char-

The affair, as may be supposed, caused great commotion in Wadesboro'.

The Lee Mausoleum.

As we have before stated, Gen. R. D. Lilley is now in our city as the accredited agent of the Lee Memorial Association for erection of a suitable structure, upon anpropriate grounds tendered by Washington-Lee University as a mausoleum for the recumbent statue of Gen. R. E. Lee, by Valentine, recently received at Lexington. Elsewhere the efforts of Gen. Lilley have been met with a most favorable response, and we are glad to learn that, so far, the indications are that he will meet with like

In this connection we may mention the fact that the ladies of Baltimore recently gav.ng a charming entertainment for the benefit of this fund, which netted the handsome sum of $1,300. The ladies of Lexing ton, Staunton, Norfolk and Danville are also moving in the matter, those of the two former places having already given entertainments for this object with very creditable results. New Orleans will follow suit, and we hear that the ladies of Raleigh and Favetteville are to enter the lists in contributing in a like manner to this noble ob-

Now what have the good ladies of Wilmington to say to an entertainment of the same character here? They can do much to aid the cause by getting up a concert or semething of the kind for this purpose. Wilmington should not be behind her sister cities in contributing to this sacred fund, and the ladies, we feel assured, are not lacking in devotion to the memory of the great chieftain whom the South so delights to henor. We hope to hear from the ladies of Wilmington on this subject at an early day.

Miss Kate Fisher and her celebrated horse "Wonder" will appear in this city on Wednesday evening next in her famous sensational play entitled "Mazeppa;" the advance agent, Mr. J. W. Spaulding, formerly of this city, being now here making the necessary arrangements. The Petersburg News, alluding to the performance of 'Mazeppa" in that city on Friday night, says: "The superior acting of this company and the handsome manner in which the piece was mounted deserved even from Petersburg a better audience than that of last night.

Explosion of a Lamp-A Narrow Eb4

Yesterday afternoon, about 6 o'clock, a Mr. Steinken, who has a grocery store on the corner of Hanover and Second streets, with a dwelling attached, was engaged in serving some customers, he was startled by the sudden entrance of his wife, who shouted "fire." and immediately ran up stairs again, from whence she had just descended. Mr. Steinken, accompanied by Mr. John C. Davis, who happened in the store at the time, quickly followed in the wake of Mrs. S., when they discovered that a kerosene lamp had been accidentally thrown upon the floor of the sitting-room by a little son of Mr. and Mrs. S., the oil from which, covering a large space on the floor, was in a mass of flames. The family were of course very much excited, but Mr. Davis, who took in the situation at a glance, and who displayed great coolness and presence of mind, rushed into an adjoining room, procured a quantity of bed clothing, and with their aid soon obtained the mastery over the rapidly spreading fire. thus preventing what might have proved a serious conflagration. A lounge in the room was also discovered to be on fire, the bottom having caught from the burning oil, but the fiames were extinguished without difficulty. Too much care can not be exercised in the handling of kerosene lamps.

[COMMUNICATED.] LET THERE BE PRAYER IN THE

LAND. It is admitted that history repeats itself. Are there then no parallels in the lives of men and pations? And if there be similar effects, must there not have been similar causes? Can any one have mingled with his fellow-men, or followed the chronicles of the day, and question the fact that we are an afflicted people, that our children, dropping from life like leaves in autumn? If you have none yourself go ask the anxious mother watching every flush of her darling's cheek, and listening, with trembling heart, to the breathing of her sleeping babe. He who has lost no lamb from his own fold must be both blind and deaf if he does not know that there is a sound of wailing in the land-the "voice of Rachel weeping for her

Fast upon the heels of our civil war-its wasted blood, its cruel deaths, its ravished homes and dark defeats-came political degradation, corrupt morals, thieves in high places, vast floods, blighted crops, unre-munerative labor, financial ruin, uncertainty, idleness, poverty and want; and now, to close a decade of national woes, the Angel of Death crosses the threshold of our homes, and casts the shadow of Egypt's last and greatest plague across our happy hearthstones.

Is not the parallel apparent, and is it not the part of wisdom to ask ourselves whether we, too, are not resting under God's curse, and, profiting by the history of that stricken land, endeavor to save ourselves from a like fate by searching for, acknowledging, and eradicating a like cause? Afflicted as never men were before, tortured auguish, breaking t to open the eyes of the blind Egyptians to we judge they had taken advantage of the the fact that they were wrestling with the time weather for a run in to get a look at Almighty God Himself, and not until that dread edict, "About midnight I will go into the midst of the land of Egypt," had been executed, and "there was a ery through all the land such as there was none like it nor shall be like it any more' did the stubborn creatures bend to do the will of their Creater.

Is there not a lesson and a warning for us in their story, and is it not time to look about us for that help which man cannot give? Already have one, two, three or more been taken from many households, but we may yet he in time to stay the hand of God, so that all shall not perish. "The prayer of the righteous man availeth much."
Would it not, then, be well for each pastor and parent, and for all who believe in the efficacy of prayer, to unite, in Church and in Home, upon some certain day or whenever each may think best, in earnest prayers that God may so "turn the hearts of the disobedient to the wisdom of the just" that we may be found an "acceptable people in His sights;" that the plague may be stayed, and we be spared a day like that in which "there was a great cry in the land of Egypt, for there was not a house in which there was not one dead."
