NARRATED AT LAST.

A Chicken Thief Comes to Grief—One of the Most Exciting Chases of the Period—Jumping from a Second Story Window—A Dog Bites Into the Sports—A Tall Hero Proves Better than None, &c.

Yesterday morning about half-past 7 o'clock as Robert McKenzie, captain of the Night Police, was on his way home, going up Chesnut street, he saw coming up Sixth street a colored man with a basket on his shoulder, whom he recognized as the somewhat notorious Jere Forbes, and in regard to whom his suspicions were immediately aroused.

He appeared, however, to pay no attention to the movements of the man, who turned up Chesnut when he reached the corner going up on the right hand side, while McKenzie was on the left. The latter lives on McKee street, between Chesnut and Mulberry, and arriving at Mr. Huta's store, corner of Chesnut and McKee, he turned in the direction of home; but immediately retraced his steps, and cast a sly glance after Forbes, who had gone in the direction of Ninth street, where he found that he (Forbes) had also retraced his steps and approached Mr. Huta's store on the Chesnut street side.

The officer thereupon immediately stepped up to Forbes, placed his hand on his collar and walked him into the store, where he took charge of the basket to examine the contents being at the time between his prisoner and the street doors, thus blocking up the avenue of escape in that quarter.

As soon as the officer's attention was directed to the basket, which was found to contain nine large hens and a turkey, all with their necks wrung, together with a quantity of eggs, Forbes made a sudden dash behind the counter. The officer shouted "Stop that man!" and Mr. Huta's little boy seized him by the collar as he ran, but he gave a sudden jerk, sending the youth spinning across the room, and made for the private apartments of Mr. H., running up the stairs and through various rooms, breaking a fine mirror in one of them, and finally dashed into a closet, the door of which he closed after him and locked.

All this time Forbes had been closely pursued by McKenzie, who, upon arriving at the closet door just as it had been closed against him, detected the sound of a raising window and ran down stairs and into the back yard, when he found that Forbes had jumped from the window of the room he had entered, a distance of some twenty feet into the yard below, and was rapidly making his way across lots in the direction of Mulberry street, jumping the intervening fences. The officer started to follow, but as he was mounting the fence he was seized by the leg by Mr. Huta's trusty watch dog, whose fangs, just grazing the flesh, became fastened in his garments, which effectually impeded his progress. He was quickly released, however, by the intervention of Mr. H., and made for his man. Reaching Mulberry street he was just in time to see Forbes emerge from a cross alley about midway the block and run up towards Ninth street. The officer, as he ran, shouted for persons passing to stop the fugitive, when his (Forbes') coat-tail was grasped by a small boy, who held on with such pertinacity that the fellow's progress was considerably impeded, and in the meantime McKenzie had reached the corner of Ninth street he had his hand once more securely fastened in Forbes' collar, who was thereupon taken to the Guard House and locked up.

The basket of poultry was taken to the Marshal's office, where six of the fowls were subsequently identified by Mr. Geo. Hooper, whose premises on Third, between Queen and Wooster streets, were raided upon the night before and his coop robbed of seventeen fine hens and pullets.

Forbes is an old offender and much of the chicken stealing that has been going on lately, to such an outrageous extent, is no doubt traceable to his expertness in the profession.

Another Attempted Burglary. An attempt to burglarize the residence of Mr. G. F. Tilley, on Third, between Walnut and Red Cross streets, between 2 and 3 o'clock yesterday morning, was happily frustrated by the awaking of a child, who was probably aroused from its slumbers by the noise. Upon becoming thoroughly awake one of the inmates of the room in which the family were sleeping, detecting a draft, proceeded to the front window and raised the curtains, when it was found that the blinds had been forced open, the sash raised and a stick placed under it. The thief no doubt heard the noise made by the child and thus became frightened from his purpose. The house, which is located a short distance from the street, is usually thoroughly guarded against such intruders by watch dogs, but they happened on this occasion to have been accidentally locked out in the stable yard. Mr. Tilley found the track of the would-be burglar yesterday morning and took a measure of it.

Mayer's Court. The following cases were disposed of yesterday morning: Isaac Baker, charged with disorderly conduct, was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $20 and costs, or work for thirty days on the streets.

Korman Eldridge, alias P. Crawford, charged with being drunk, flourishing a razor on the public streets, and acting very disorderly generally, was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $20 and costs, or work for thirty days on the streets.

Superior Court. In this Court, yesterday, judgments were entered in several civil suits:

In the case of Henry Robison, charged with larceny, judgment was suspended on condition that he pay a fine of $100 by next term of court and give a bond of $200 for his appearance.

In the case of Brunhild vs. Nichols, judgment against bond for costs, to be paid instantly.

In the case of Lucinda Sili, charged with retailing liquor without license, judgment suspended on the payment of costs at this term, with bond of $200 for her appearance at next term.

In the case of the State vs. W. H. Moore, convicted of assault and battery equipped for defendant argued at some length in favor of the clemency of the court on the ground of ignorance, the influence of persuasion, the absence of corrupt or malicious intent, &c. At the conclusion of the argument, which was participated in by Mr. Emile, Mr. Holmes and Judge Cantwell, His Honor briefly reviewed the case, saying that ignorance and persuasion afforded no excuse for violations of law, that it was not the province of a Magistrate or other judicial officer to hunt up cases upon which to exercise his functions, and that as to the plea of ignorance, it was to be presumed when he had himself placed in the position of a judicial officer he understood the duties which it involved, &c.

The sentence of the Court was that the defendant, W. H. Moore, should be imprisoned for twelve months and pay a fine of $20.

Col. Devane, one of defendant's counsel, then craved a new trial, on the ground that His Honor had failed to instruct the jury on certain points of law to which the counsel for the defence had called his attention, &c.

His Honor's decision in the matter was finally postponed until the next term of the Court, the defendant being required to furnish security in the sum of $200 for his appearance.

This case will be remembered as the one in which W. H. Moore, a Justice of the Peace, caused W. T. Jackson alias Caleb P. Snow, charged with the murder of William Jackson, colored, to be taken from the county jail and carried into the room in which the corpse of the murdered man was lying, when he was required to touch the body, this being done in accordance with the superstitious theory that if the accused man was guilty the wound of the murdered man would bleed.

Range of Thermometer. The following was the range of the thermometer at the Signal Bureau, in this city, yesterday: 7 A. M., 38-19 M., 49; 3 P. M., 47; 4:30 P. M., 46; 9 P. M., 30; 11 P. M., 27.

Thermometer Record. The following will show the state of the thermometer, at the stations mentioned, at 4:30 P. M., yesterday, as ascertained from the daily bulletin issued from the Signal Office in this city:

Augusta, 47; Charleston, 48; Galveston, 53; Montgomery, 50; Mobile, 52; New Orleans, 53; Norfolk, 38; Savannah, 48; Wilmington, 46.

Frickell, the Wizard. It is announced to give a gift entertainment at the Opera House on Tuesday night, when all sorts of queer doings in the way of legendaries and unheard-of performances by trained birds are to be looked for. Everyone is promised a ready-mounted chromo and a chance to get a gift of greater value.

We learn that the cars on the Wilmington and Weldon railroad, which arrived here from Weldon yesterday morning, were covered to the depth of about three or four inches of snow. As Wilmington can't afford any of its own, we should have liked to have seen some of the imported article.

Mr. W. L. Moore, of Rocky Point, had a curiously yesterday in the shape of a pig, but which was found growing upon the roof of the limb of a tree. It differs from the ordinary burr in that it is perfectly solid, and of exactly consistency under the shell or covering.
