BABCOCK'S LUCK.

Was it manly luck? Was it not all pretty well fixed up? The country will want to know all about that excluded evidence. It has been confidently asserted since the trial began that the Judge leaned strongly to the defence. This allegation may do His Honor injustice. But the country believes that Babcock never sent all those "Sylph" telegrams just in fun. It believes that there is more fire than the smoke raised at St. Louis by paid counsel has yet allowed to be seen. Babcock acquitted is not suddenly invested with celestial purity.

Morton and Blaine are "having it out" in Western Radical State Conventions. Indiana endorses Morton; Wisconsin, Blaine. The Radicals are worse mixed on the currency question than the Democrats.

Babcock is acquitted. Will Bristow step down and out? A great pressure was brought to secure a Babcock verdict. Will a like pressure be brought to oust his prosecutor?

In the Senate, Tuesday, Judge Merrimon presented a petition from Messrs. Tucker, of Raleigh, and others, urging the repeal of the bankrupt law. It was referred.

We are sorry to learn of the illness of James Barron Hope, Esq., the accomplished editor of the Norfolk Landmark.

Spirits Turpentine

—On the 22nd the Raleigh Sentinel entered upon its twenty-second semi-annual volume.

—On the 30th inst. the Hillsboro Recorder commenced the 57th year of its life.

—Fowle and Gilmer is the ticket for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor of a writer in the Washington Echo.

—Hillsboro Recorder: An industrious colored man, Emperor Loftin, living near Fairfield Church in this county, six or seven miles north of town, lost his house and all its contents by fire last week. This is the second time he has had his house destroyed by fire.

—Morganton Blade: Major J. W. Wilson, of this place, has in his possession the favorite sitting chair of Gov. Thomas Burke, of Orange, in honor of whom our county was named. The Major proposes to give it to the County Commissioners to be affixed to the walls of our handsome court house just over the judge's bench.

—Raleigh News: William Barker, a negro man, was shot the other night over on the outskirts of the city and died yesterday morning. He bled to death. Great handsful of peas were picked from his body. He made a dying declaration that he was drinking and had the gun loaded with peas in his hand, and was threatening to shoot any man that fooled with him, when one of his friends came up and tried to take the gun from him, and in the scuffle the gun went off and emptied the whole load into his own body. The coroner sat on the case and decided that Barker came to his death from accidental shooting.

—Morganton Blade: The Commissioners were in session at Old Fort on Thursday and Friday last. During their stay they ran the first passenger train through Point Tunnel and entirely up to Malone's Store. We learn the depot and the hotel, at the latter point, are being rapidly put up for the accommodation of freight and passengers, when regular traffic will be opened. Mr. Rice, of Wilmington, has begun operation on the tunnels which he was to complete, and Major Wilson is driving ahead in the Swannanoa or main one. The Burgin tunnel is about completed, and the work goes bravely on.

A Grand Colonial Ball in Richmond.

The most notable social event of the present season in Richmond took place on the night of the 22d of February at the Theatre. A special to the Baltimore Gazette says it proved to be a brilliant and highly enjoyable entertainment, combining in a happy degree the stateliness of bearing and the peculiarities of costume of the olden time with the graces and novelties of the present. It was known as the "colonial ball," and was designed to give an illustration of the vice-regal court at Williamsburg in the days of Queen Anne and the reception given Lord Botetourt upon his arrival as Governor of the colony. The credit for the successful management of the entire affair is due to Miss Nicholas, Mrs. Gen. Heth, and Mrs. Lewis N. Webb, of this city. The building was crowded to excess, and the warmest interest was manifested throughout. Among those present were Miss Nicholas, as Lady Fairfax, an early love of General Washington's; Mrs. General Heth as Mrs. Carey of Celeys; George Washington Basset as General Washington; Rob. Taylor as Patrick Henry; Philip N. Nicholas, of New York, as Robert Carter Nicholas; Captain J. Mason Jamison, of Baltimore, as George Mason; General H. Heth as General Heth, of General Washington's staff; Muscoe Spotswood as Sir Alex. Spotswood; Mrs. John Dunlap as Lady Spotswood; Mrs. Lewis Washington, nee Bassett, of West Virginia, as Mrs. Martha Custis Washington; Ethelbert Fairfax as Lord Fairfax, of Greenway Court; Henry T. Wickham as John Randolph, Lord Botetourt's attorney-general; Dr. J. B. McCaw as Dr. McCaw, of Lord Dunmore's staff; Byrd Warwick as Colonel Byrd, of Westover; Mrs. A. H. Dewry as Mrs. Colonel Byrd; Miss Harrison, of Brandon, as Miss Evelyn Byrd, wearing lace and jewels worn by Miss Byrd at a court ball in England when she danced with Frederick, Prince of Wales, father of George III.; Miss Lizzie Douthat, of Weyanoke, as Lady Gouch; Mrs. Yeatman as Lady Berkeley; Miss Bell Webb as Miss Dinwiddie. Many others, too numerous to mention, were also present.

Local Dots.

—Somewhat warmer and clear or partly cloudy weather for to-day.

—Arrived out, British brig Nancy, McDonald, from this port for New Orleans.

—We note schooner Luola Murchison, Jones, of this city, at Galveston, 21st, from New York.

—Plenty of water in the Cape Fear now, and plenty of rafts arriving here from above.

—A barquentine and a schooner, names unknown, were reported in below yesterday afternoon, bound up.

—The masquerade ball, to be given by the Cornet Concert Club, takes place at City Hall this evening. It promises to be a grand affair.

—The work of raising the sunken tug James H. Murray, at Messrs. O. G. Parsley & Co.'s wharf, is progressing under the direction of the Messrs. Beery.

—The weather yesterday was decidedly winterish, considerable frost and ice being visible in the early part of the day. Many of the fruit trees will no doubt be injured.

—William Mitchell, a free colored man (old issue), a resident of Marion, S. C., before and during the war, but who has since lived in the southern part of this city, a painter by trade, is requested to call on Edward Cantwell, attorney at law, No. 1, New Hanover Bank building, and he will hear something to his advantage.

Suspension of Business on Monday.

The Board of Trade of this city had a meeting yesterday afternoon, at which it was unanimously resolved to celebrate Monday next, the 28th inst., as a holiday, and to request the members of the Board and our merchants generally to close their respective places of business on that day. The occasion for this action is the Centennial celebration of the battle of Moore's Creek, which takes place on that day in question, and which all wish to attend.

Target Shooting by a Bucket Company.

The First Ward (colored) Bucket Company paraded yesterday afternoon, followed by target shooting at Hilton. There were three prizes to be shot for in all, the first being a silver watch, the second a silver butter dish, and the third an article the name of which our informant could not remember.

Escape of a Prisoner.

Thomas Clark, the "wild Irishman," who was before the Mayor's Court on sundry charges on the 15th inst., and who had fines piled upon him to the amount of nearly $200 for disorderly conduct, rough handling of the police force concerned in his arrest, &c., and who was obliged to accept the alternative of about one hundred and fifty days on the chain-gang, in lieu of paying the fines imposed, succeeded, we understand, in effecting his escape on Wednesday afternoon, and has not since been heard from. We learn that he was allowed to leave his work for a few minutes, accompanied by a guard, and when he had reached a safe distance, he coolly informed his companion that he was going to leave. The guard started as if to seize him, when he put himself on the defensive, doubled his fists and said, "Come on!" This invitation was extended several times, the irrepressible Paddy varying his attitude of defence occasionally, spitting on his hands, &c., when he finally walked off unmolested.

The Late Fire in Brunswick.

We have further particulars of the burning of Mrs. J. H. Burney's dwelling house, near Shallotte Bridge, on the old Georgetown road, in Brunswick county, referred to in yesterday's paper. The fire broke out in the roof of the eastern wing of the building about 5 o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, the 22nd inst., and is supposed to have been caused by a spark or some defect in the chimney. The wind was blowing at the east at the time, and the flames spread so rapidly that before assistance arrived they had gotten beyond the possibility of control. Mrs. Burney lost all her upstairs furniture and clothing. We stated in our last, our information being to that effect, that there was no insurance on the building. We since learn from Mr. J. H. Chadbourn, Mrs. Burney's agent in this city, that it was insured for $1,200, in a company represented by Mr. T. C. DeRosset, of this place.

Caswell's Grave—A Correction.

A correspondent writes to this paper from Goldsboro to correct an error made by a letter-writer of the New York Sun from Raleigh. He says:

The inaccuracy is, substantially, that the grave of Richard Caswell, a revolutionary patriot, and the first Governor of North Carolina, is in the cemetery at Kinston.

The remains of North Carolina's first chief magistrate repose at least a mile and a half from the place referred to in our epitome of the letter of the Sun's unreliable correspondent. The historic grave is west of Kinston, on a farm formerly owned by Lewis Desmond, Esq., while the cemetery skirts the town in a southwesterly direction.

I know the spot, and now recall with feelings of profound reverence and admiration that I, when a child, gazed at the monumental cedar, conceived by nature in the bosom of his tomb, and born to hold above the rustic mausoleum a perennial laural to crown the memory of him who rests beneath.

Respectfully,
JOHN R. MORRIS.

The Late Suicide at Magnolia.

The Magnolia Record, referring to the suicide of Ashby J. Carroll, at that place, on Tuesday of last week, an account of which appeared in our paper a day or two subsequently, says: "The immediate cause was a slight chastisement inflicted by his mother for some disobedience. The real cause was in some mental derangement. Ashby was not a bad boy, nor hard to control; and his disobedience and other derelictions were rather less than those of the generality of boys. His father and mother, while strict, are kind, Christian parents, and were by no means cruel. The only explanation of his rash, startling, horrible act is the fact that he was sometimes not himself. His father and mother were not fully aware of his weakness, which was superinduced by sun-stroke, sometime ago, or they would have treated him more tenderly. It is a sad, sad affair, and has cast a gloom over the whole community."

Mayor's Court.

The following cases were disposed of yesterday morning:

Badger Stone, charged with the larceny of railroad ties, the property of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad Company. Judgment reserved.

Mary Eliza Lively, one of the members of the chain-gang, charged with striking the janitor, Jacob Wise, with a glass bottle, while attempting to put her in the Guard Room, was ordered to pay a fine of $20 and costs or work for thirty days on the streets, the prisoner in the meantime to be kept in close confinement every night.

One case, in which the defendant is charged with keeping his bar-room open on Sunday, was continued over for a future hearing.

The Small-Pox.

It has been officially announced that there is a case of small-pox on the steamship Pioneer, which arrived in the river near this city two days ago, where she has been quarantined. There will be no communication between the steamer and the shore, except by the physician, and no danger can therefore be expected from this source.

No new cases, with the above exception, have been officially announced.

Magistrate's Court.

Pompey Harriss, colored, charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses, had a hearing before Justice Gardner. Defendant waived an examination, and was bound over in the sum of $100 for his appearance at the next term of the Superior Court.

Range of Thermometer.

The following was the range of the thermometer at the Signal Bureau, in this city, yesterday:

7 A. M., 25; 12 M., 42; 2 P. M., 46; 4:30 P. M., 45; 9 P. M., 39; 11 P. M., 39. Lowest temperature 24 degrees.

Cincinnati Southern Railroad.

Our dispatches report the passage by the Ohio House of Representatives of the Senate bill to issue an additional $6,000,000 of the bonds of Cincinnati, for the purpose of completing the Cincinnati Southern Railroad from the Ohio metropolis to Chattanooga. An amendment, providing for a popular vote upon the measure, returns the bill to the Senate, but there is now little doubt that it will become a law, that it will receive a popular endorsement, and that the road will now be speedily completed.

Wilmington and North Carolina have a good deal at stake upon the result of this legislation, Ten million dollars of the bonds of Cincinnati have already been expended in constructing the road from the Ohio south, and that sum was the original estimate of the entire cost of building the road to Chattanooga. When, therefore, the Commissioners had expended this amount, and on a supplementary estimate raised the probable total cost to the extent of $6,000,000 more and asked that this amount be voted in addition, a pretty strong sentiment became developed in Cincinnati in favor of saving four or five millions of this amount by turning the unfinished road into Knoxville, and thence to connect with the rapidly extending lines of our own Western North Carolina and Carolina Central Railroads—as well as the Spartanburg road of South Carolina—thus making the shortest existing line between the great Northwest and the Atlantic seaboard, via Cincinnati, Knoxville and Wilmington. This would likewise have placed the entire railroad system of the two Carolinas and East Georgia in direct connection with Cincinnati by a considerably shorter route than will be possible via Chattanooga and Ducktown, and at a vastly decreased expense.

The vote upon the bill just taken indicates the defeat of the party favoring these views in Ohio, and that for the sake of the connection with the roads in the States lying west of Georgia the representatives of Cincinnati at Columbus are willing to go to the extra expense of building the Chattanooga route and at the same time risk their opportunity for turning almost the entire trade of the Southeastern seaboard with the West and Northwest, by the operation of natural laws, in the direction of their city. In other words, the Carolinas are relied upon in time to complete their own roads to Chattanooga or by Knoxville to a junction with the Southern road at a point that will throw the trade of the Southeast into Cincinnati without the necessity, on their part, of contributing to that result. We shall see. It is possible, though not probable, that the measure may fail on the popular vote and the route be changed in our favor. If we build our roads to completion without assistance from without we shall at least be able to make our own selection of connections and it is quite possible that we may reach the valley of the Kentucky at a point that will make it advisable to ship by Louisville to St. Louis; or, if we must go to Cincinnati, say to connect with the Kentucky Central Railroad.

We do not forget, however, that if the Southern Railroad goes at once to Chattanooga we shall still be benefited. That will make certain the completion of a spur of our Central road to Chattanooga, through our southwestern counties, in time, and give us a valuable connection there, while at the same time turning a large part of the trade of cities as far south as Memphis in our direction. Whatever be the route finally fixed upon, we shall be to some extent gainers from the connection. The Cincinnatians might profitably remember at this time, however, that the trade of the eastern coast is the one, for geographical reasons, to be the most important to their city, in the long run, that now we have no other northwestern connection, and that the southwestern roads are, in time, quite as certain to extend their lines via Chattanooga as we are via Knoxville.

Railroad Accident Yesterday—Man Killed.

The Carolina Central Railroad hands have been for some days past engaged in filling in gravel upon the low ground between the bridges over the rivers at Hilton and the Navassa Works, for the purpose of laying a second track thereon. The gravel is obtained from the hillside just above the Central depot, in this city.

Yesterday, at noon, the hands employed on Captain Wiggins' gravel train left the cars at that point and climbed upon the locomotive and tender for the purpose of riding down to their shanty cars, near by, for dinner. The engine was running backwards at the rate of five or six miles per hour—the tender in front—when a young colored man from the country, who had obtained employment on the road but a few hours before, and who was sitting on the rear of the tender, suddenly remarked to a companion that he had left his coat on the gravel car and would get it. Thinking only of the possibility of losing his coat he at once jumped off in front of the moving tender and was instantly struck thereby and knocked down upon the track. The engineer noticed the jolting of the tender in passing over the body, and knowing something must be wrong, reversed his engine and brought it to a stand within a few rods, but not before it had dragged the unfortunate man ten or fifteen feet and passed entirely over him.

Life was entirely extinct when his companions came up—his head having been crushed, an arm and a leg severed and the body horribly mangled. The remains were collected and the Coroner notified.

It seems impossible to attach blame to any one but the victim of his own carelessness. We were unable to learn the man's name, and understood that he was entirely unknown to his fellow-workmen.
