The Late Gen, Custer and His Family.

[Cincinnati Times.] The fate of Gen. Custer is sadly felt here, where his brother, Brice W., has lived for many years. Boston, aged twenty-five, forage master, and Thomas, a lieutenant, aged twenty seven, both unmarried, are the brothers killed. The brother-inlaw killed was a captain, and is the husband of Gen. Custer's only sister, who, with Mrs. Custer, is with the expedition. Mrs. Custer was the only child of Judge Bacon, of Monof General Custer also reside. His parents are old and feeble, both being "pward of seventy. His mother and all the family were devotedly attached to the General, and his awful death will doubtless kill his mother. As a son, he honored his father and mother to the full letter and spirit of the law given on Mount Sinar. But, alas! his days were not as long in the be. He had no children. His brother-in-law had no children. Mrs. Custer never would leave her husband. She had traveled three hundred miles with him on a pony, slept with him in ambulances and in tents, to be near him. When duty called him to battle her distress was next to the bottomless depths of anxiety until he returned.

Somebody having said that Mr. Parke Godwin did not like the "tail" of the Tilden ticket, Mr. Godwin promptly replies that Mr. Hendricks is at least as sound as Mr. Ferry, whom the Republicans made Vice President, and that he is, moreover, in very good company, so that, on the whole, he prefers him to "a halffaced fellowship with Grantism and the Grantists, which must be inevitably of Gov. Hayes and his tail."

Death of C. C. Stilley, an Ex-Jourmalist. [Tarboro Southerner.]

This, in many respects, a remarkable man, after a truly chequered career, was found dead on Friday night, about 7 o'clock, in front of A. B. Roane's grocery in this place. He commenced life, we believe, as a minister of the Free Will Baptist denomination, which calling he pursued up to the time of his marriage with a Miss Hunnicutt, of Fredericksburg, Va., just before or soon after the close of the war.

After the war he obtained the appointment as assessor of the cotton tax for Pitt county. He then bought and ran the hotel at Greenville, and a large dry goods store in the same town. In connection with these pursuits be established the Greenville Expositor, a weekly independent journal. He soon became known as vigorous attractive writer.

Affiliating with the Democratic party, he made a brilliant canvass of Pitt county. In 1870, we believe, he removed his office to Rocky Mount and established the Rocky Mount Mail, a weekly Conservative paper. Being pressed down with physical afflictions and financial distress he sold his paper to J. II. and W. L. Thorp, by the latter of whom it is now ably conducted. Suffering for the bare sustenance of life, he sent his family to their home in Virginia, and commenced delivering lectures on phrenology, examining heads and giving charts of character. Being a sensitive man, his bodily and mental woes preyed so heavily on him that, like many others, he sought solace inthe fatal cup, and houseless, homeless, friendless and penniless, he ended his wretched existence as above described.

Mr. Stilley was a native of Beaufort county, endowed with a liberal education, possessed of a quick per- it required considerable rolling and other ception and a grasping mind, well stored with information on politics, religion and polite literature.

The Enemy Concede His Wonderful strength.

[From the New York Tribune.] "It is not I, but the idea of reform which I represent," he says and repeats, and will keep repeating till the canvass is through. He puts forward this notion everywhere, and all the time, for he knows it is his strongest point. In his response to the committee last night he gave his opponents no chance for an advantage. He will be equally careful and shrewd in the preparation of his letter of acceptance, and whoever is looking for the exposure of a weak or assailable point in that document will be disappointed. The Opposition may as well understand first as last that they have to deal with a politician of remarkable shrewdness, whom it will not be easy to corner. The weakness of his position is in the record of his party and his associate upon the ticket. What he means to do, though, is to keep hammering upon the distinctive idea of administrative, reform, to the exclusion, if possible, of everything else. It may be a dodge, but it is at least a shrewd one, and it will not do to underestimate its effect.

Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church.

OTTAWA, ONT., July 12. The General Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church met here this morning. There is a large attendance. Bishop Nicholson, of Phildelphia, preached the opening sermon. At the close of the sermon an enlogy on the late Bishop Cummins was delivered. The council was called to order by Judge Hughes. In the afternoon session the election of a presiding bishop was proceded with. Bishops Cheney and Nicholson were nominated, the result being the elec-ican, sufficient space for a few words in regard to the influence of Mr. Carl Schurz. The Germans to-day are as enthusiastic for the abolition of slavery. Then Carl Schurz led them: to-day he has betrayed them. They never will forgive him. Whatever may happen, his influence with the Germans is dead.

PHIL BONFORT. New York, 48 Broad street, July 12,

The battle in Ohio is becoming unexpectedly exciting. With Judge Stallo, Fred. Hassaurek and General Brinkerhoff coming to the front of the Tilden ranks, and plunging in or an aggressive campaign, it is no ticed that even Ohio is to be contested step by step for October. All of these able leaders supported Hayes for Governor last fall against Allen.

Thus the Index-Appeal, of Petersburg: "Settle, we imagine, is a sort of dignified dead-best, not without brains, but travelling mainly on his shape and manners. The ticket ought to be easily beaten by the two sile and popular Conservatives who head the opposition ticket."

THE CITY.

Local Dots.

- Mayor Canaday gave positive orders, yesterday, that no street cart should under any circumstances be used for private yurposes.

- One of the new members of the police force was found asleep on his post, at 2 o'clock, Wednesday morning, and was suspended in consequence. - Partly cloudy weather, continued high temperature, southerly to westerly winds, with rains and slight fall in temperature in the northern portion of the South Atlantic States to-day.

- Complaint is made that Toomer's alley, or one of the adjacent lots, or both, require overhauling, as persons who pass in that direction are sensibly impressed with a very offensive odor, having its origin somewhere in that quarter.

A Nafrow Escape from Drowning. Yesterday morning, about 11 o'clock, a small colored boy was walking on the side of the wharf, at the old depot of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad, when he stumbled and fell off the wharf into the river, which at that point was about fourteen feet deep. The little fellow, not knowing how to swim, had one down and come up to the surface again two or three times, and had sunk probably for the last time, when a young colored man by the name of David Bryant, who happened to be close at hand when the accident occurred, seeing that the boy was about to drown, plunged into the river with all of his clothes on to effect his rescue. Bryant says he went nearly to the bottom before he got hold of the boy, and that as soon as had fastened his hand in his clothing, he kicked ogainst the bottom, giving himself an impetus upward, and rose to the surface. He then managed to get the boy on the wharf, when measures to restore him to consciousness.

A friend who was present gives us the following account of the trip to "Appleton," yesterday, by the children of St. Paul's (Episcopal) congregation:

On last Christmas Eve, when all the presents had been distributed from the richly laden Christmas Tree of St. Paul's, gladdening the hearts of the little ones, as official envelope, extending an invitation from Mr. R. E. Heide to spend a day at Appleton, at some future- time; was read; and this, we thought, was the best present upon the tree. Yesterday, at 8 o'clock, A M., sharp, by previous arrangement, all were ready with eager hearts to mount in hot haste" on horseback, in ambulances and carriages, and "go for" the pic-nic at Appleton. It has long been a question of debate, whether there is most pleasure in anticipation or in the realization. . We an ticipated a pleasant day, and we did certainly most hugely enjoy the good things set before us—dead to all sympathy for the long table groaning 'neath the weight of choicest fruits and sweet viands. It would be pleasant to be there alone, fauned by the fresh sea breeze and lulled by the roar of ocean wave-yes,

There is a pleasure in the pathless waves, There is a rapture on the lonely shore, There is society, when none intrudes, By the deep sea, and music in its roar, but with the happy surroundings of yester day, the woods re-echoing to the merry laugh of the bright-eyed little ones, it was supreme pleasure that even Byron would have preferred to solitude. A beautiful Norwegian flag floated from the flag-staff, and the piazza was also profusely decorated with flags, altogether presenting a gay and animated appearance, while in the centre of the table was erected an adornment n the shape of a globe, from which floated flags of all nations, gathered by Mr. Heide while at the Centennial. In the way of amusements there was croquet, park fishing, &c., while thousands of trees, laden with golden fruit, delighted the hearts of the children and added a charm to the surroundings,

All things sublunary have an end,—the sun retiring behind the tree-tops goldcrimson, amber dipped in purple clouds, warned us night would soon throw her curtain over the earth, and we reluctantly quitted these scenes of joy to return to our city homes, charmed with the pleasures of the day, and with all hearts gladdened by the genial hospitality of our kind host and Yours, sometimes, NoLLY.

shall We Have a Ratification Mee

We renew our suggestion for a grand old-fashioned rally and ratification meeting by the Democrats and Conservatives of this city. Our tickets, both State and national, are such as should arouse the latent enthusiasm of the most lukewarm and indifferent. The names of Tilden and Vance are the synonymus of victory, and should inspire the hearts of the people here, as they are doing elsewhere in the State, with feeling of intense glorification, such as cannot restrain itself, but is bound to burst forth and make itself heard and felt. Our Tilden and Vance Club, which completes its organization Monday night, should signalize their entrance upon the most brilgeneration and salvation of the countryby taking the initiatory steps for a grand Tilden and Vance ratification meeting in our city, to take place at the earliest practi. cable day. We hope they will do so.

We saw yesterday, at the store of Mr. D Pigott, a plug of tobacco fifteen years old. It is one of the sample plugs of some fifty city discovered it while rumaging in an old The first Lord of the Admiralty camp chest, and although it had lain there Typhus Fever.

As this dangerous and malignant disease is prevailing to some extent here, as well as elsewhere throughout the State, we have thought it might not be out of place to publish a remedy recommended in such cases many years ago by Dr. McLeod a fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh. The extract is copied from a strip cut from a newspaper in 1847 by a gentleman now residing in our city, who has carried it in his pocket ever since. The remedy has been used frequently in his own family, and in numerous other instances which have come under his observation, and, to use his own words, "it has always worked like a charm." Dr. McLeod took the position that typhus fever could not be arrested by any drug or medicinal means.

This is the plan of treatment recommend ed, which must be resorted to in the earlier stages of the disease:

"Place the patient, as soon as possible in a sheet well rung out in cold water. This sheet should be laid on a blanket extended on a mattress, which should be wrapped close around the patient as high as the neck. Let the blanket be folded tightly over, so as to exclude the external air, and two other blankets or a small feather bed be added Repeat the process every time the patient becomes restless or uncomfortable, until the dry, hot skin has become softer and more prone to perspiration, and the fever entirely subsided, even should its repetition be necessary every ten minutes, or should the fever last twenty-four hours. Immediately after each envelope, the patient should be washed in a slipper bath, or common tub, the temperature of the water being seventy five degrees Fahrenheit, or and bandages wrung out of cold water kept applied, chang ng them each time they beme warm, until all headache is removed. A similar bandage should be folded once around the stomach, carefully and closely covered by three folds of dry cloth, to prevent evap ration. Let the patient drink as much cold water as he pleases during the whole course of the disease, a free circulation kept up, and the room be cool.

"The process of Dr. McLeod will usually overcome the fever in twenty-four hours. For three days thereafter, however, let the wet sheet envelope be applied morning, noon and afternoon, the patient remaining in each time for three-quarters of an hour, and the body be washed after each with water of the natural temperature. If the bowels be constipated, use every morning an injection of tepid water, as long as required. Gentle exercise and moderate diet should be used; all stimulants and medicines avoided."

City Rattlesnakes.

Arthur Fisher, a colored man residing on Tenth, between Church and Castle streets, had occasion to go out in his back yard a few evenings since, when, upon opening the door, he was somewhat startled at discovering a huge rattlesnake stretched out near the door-step, taking things as coolly as possible, considering the condition of the temperature, while a lot of chickens were frolicking around and occasionally pecking at its scaly "narrative." Fisher speedily armed himself with a club and slew the reptile, when it was found that it was about five feet in length, and was possessed of eight "rattles" and a "button." He skinned the snake and stuffed it, and now has it hanging up on his premises as a curiosity. Fisher says they appear to be quite numerous in that locality, as a neighbor of his was suddenly awakened one morning recently to find a large rattlesnake snugly ensconced behind the pillow, upon which her head had just been resting. He has also seen the track of another large snake in his yard since the killing of the one referred to, which he supposes was that of the mate to the deceased reptile.

Noisy Demonstrations. Complaint was lodged at the City Hall

resterday morning, to the effect that such a noise and disturbance had been kept up at night at a house on the northwest corner of Third and Ann streets, occupied by colored people, that the neighbors could get no rest, some of them having been kept awake during the entire night. It was subsequently ascertained that the noise was caused by a "wake." It would naturally appear out of place to find fault with any proceedings connected with the dead; but even in this case it seems to us that a proper regard for the interests of the community generally should require that a reasonable degree of restraint be imposed. People of active habits require a certain amount of rest at night to enable them to discharge the duties incumbent upon them during the day, to say nothing of the requirements of nature, and it is no little hardship for such to be deprived entirely of their coveted repose by such noisy demonstrations, even though they have their origin in what the actors no doubt conceive to be the performance of a sacred duty.

Police Arrests. There were five police arrests Thursday night, which will furnish material for the Mayor's Court this morning. These were Edward Jefferson, Francis Chavers and liant political campaign known to modern Alex. Robinson, found asleep in the porch times—a campaign for the reformation, re- of the Dawson Bank building; Fannio Gordon, found drunk and disorderly on the streets at 5 o'clock in the morning, having made an early start with the evident intention of having a good day of it; and a crazy colored youth, who, when arrested on the charge of vagrancy, gave his name as "General Washington," but who afterwards, in his cell at the Guard House, when questioned on the subject, said his real name was "John That Saw the Number," a queer name, truly, and suggestive of a relationship with some such distinguished individuals as "Sitting Bull" or " Hole in the Day." The parties are all of the colored they want to buy his lemonade or not, are obliged to do so to get rid of him. He never takes "no" for an answer. If they say they don't want it he insists upon their trying a glass anyway, "free gratis for nothing," and then teases them out of the money to pay for it. He is considered by some a first-class "drummer," but by the country people, white and black, he is esteemed a first-class "bummer," a nuisance and a torment. He is certainly a genius in his way, and if allowed to have his way, regardless of the "rights and liberties of a free peopie," may yet become a'millionaire.

Yacht Race at Wrightsville. The yacht race, previously announced to come off yesterday at Wrightsville Sound, was a splendid affair. The race commenced at about 31 o'clock On account of the strong wind that pre vailed, only six of the boats entered, in the following order: 1st, the Frolic; 2nd, the Fannie; 3rd, the Empie and Marion; 4th, the Qui Vive; 5th, the Curlew; 6th, the Carolina.

The Little Sister and the Bessie Lee were present, but did not participate in the race, the wind being too high.

The boats kept well together at first. The Fannie was the first to round the buoy off Masonboro Inlet, and the Carolina next. The Fannie kept well shead for some time, but unfortunately shipped a good deal of water, and while the crew were engaged in bailing her out the Carolina passed her, and kept the lead throughout the remainder of the race.

The boats were all reefed and kept well together. The Empie and Marion had her tiller broken soon after starting, but returned, repaired the injury and started again, the judges timing from the second

The Empie and Marion and the Frolice withdrew from the race.

Altogether it was a very interesting and spirited race, and the only regret was that there were not more boats entered.
