The Northern Ku Klux.

The testimony in the trial of the Molle Maguire, now in progress at Pottsville, Pa., establishes beyond a doubt the propositions:

First. That the organization in Schuylkill county is a criminal one of the blackest kind, and that no one but a person willing to commit crime could belong to it.

Second. That to prevent a prearranged murder was an offense against the laws of the organization which was punishable by expulsion.

Third. That the members of this organization were so devoid of all moral and religious sense that they attempted to give an appearance of justice and solemnity to their horrid proceedings by opening their meeting with prayer, an awful sacrifice.
