A REPUBLICAN RESELLION THREATENED.

For some days we have given more or less evidence to show that the Grant-Hayes party is bent on keeping possession of the Government, even though it should have to be done with the army. The evidence is hourly accumulating that such is the purpose of the Administration. We regard this matter as our readers to understand now the revolutionary purposes of the Radical leaders. Dick Badger was not talking altogether at random in the speech he made to the negroes of Craven. The Administration and its henchmen are now menacing the country with a new and terrible "rebellion." They mean to overthrow the Government set up by our forefathers and to set up one of despotism and corruption in its place.

Jim Blaine, the Globe-Democrat, a bitter Radical organ, Badger and other lights of the party, have spoken in no uncertain terms. And now Murat Halstead, the editor of the Cincinnati Commercial, in an interview held in New York- with a reporter of the Daily Graphic, plainly states that a revolution will be attempted if Tilden is elected, and that "trouble in a more dangerous shape" than that of 1861 "would come apon us" in that event. We quote from his remarkable utterances:

"I have heard the suggestion made that it would be moral perjury in Vice-President Ferry and President Grant if they should consent to allow the electoral vote of States to be cast for the restoration of the Southern Confederacy, when they know that a majority of the people of those States had been practically disfranchised, and when they had in their hands the legal proof of that fact.
"Now, if the Presidential election should turn upon the votes of say Mississippi, South Carolina, Florida, of Louisiana, it would be impossible to avoid a desperate dispute between the two legislative Houses of the Government. The way is already pre; ared, by the declarations of Republican Senators, for Mr. Ferry, acting Vice-President, to assume the entire responsibility of counting the electoral votes. The House will not, of course, consent to this. The next thing is the position of President Grant. Grant is the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States. The very practical question would arise whether he would sustain Mr. Ferry in the Senate. I imagine that the weight of inference is that he would

The situation will be exceedingly diffi cult if not hazardous. Trouble would come upon us in a more dangerous shape than it del sixteen years ago. There is a sort of the councils of the Republican party, the friend of Hayes, and the strongest newspaper advocate of his election in the West, intend to convey to the people of the country? It is simply this: If Hayes is defeated, the Republicans will begin a new civil war!

"We are then to have an insurrection of the Mexican sort in case of Tilden's elecion, according to Mr. Haistead; and Prestdent Grant, claiming to hold over his office, will attempt to bring to the support of the linurgents the army and navy of the United States, and will use those forces in this new civil war. Trouble would come upon us in more dangerous shape than it did sixteen years ago,' Haistead says.

"And what must we do to escape this new civil conflict, with its threatened blood hew civil conflict, with its threatened blood, shed? We must not follow our own judgment and cast our ballots for Tilden in the blate of New York, but must gratify the desire of Zach Chandler, Secor Booson and General Grant, and give our suffrages to Hayes. If we carry this State for Tilden the threatened bolt of war will fall according to Mr. Hustead. The Republican Cording to Mr. Hustead. The Republican President of the Senate will throw out the Southern electoral votes, the Democratic House of Representatives will, of course, stand by the rights of the people under the Constitution, and then Grant will come to the aid of Acting Vice-President Ferry

A Quiet Fire. A small dwelling house, located on Green ville, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, in the extreme southeastern section of the city, the property of Mr. John L Wilkins, and occupied by a family of colored people, was destroyed by fire on Thursday night. The owner of the building, who resides not far distant, was not apprised of his loss until yesterday morning. Not even the chimney was left standing. The origin of the fire is not known. The loss on the property will amount to about $300, which is covered by insurance in the London and Liverpool and Globe Company, represented by Messrs. J. W. Gordon & Bro. There was no general alarm.

HIVER AND MARINE ITEMS. terday.

Speech of flon. George Davis in City Hall Last Night. As we take our seat to write a few line about this splendid effort of Wilmington's greatly admired and revered son, we feel in a peculiar degree the exactions of a daily paper. At a late hour, with limited space and in a very hurried way we are forced to express our admiration in poor and inadequate terms, when we would like to have an entire day at our command, and the columns of an uncrowded paper. The speech to which we listened to is a very memorable one. It will long abide with us as one of those felicitous, rounded, finished efforts of a highly endowed and noble in tellect, that will be "a memory and a joy forever." We have pigeon-holed that great speech in the escritoire of our mind where we have stored but few of the productions of the men of our generation.

As a composition the effort of Mr. Davis was very admirable. There was humor there was sarcasm, there was exquisite irony, there were flashes of wit, there was an outburst of corrosive scorn and indignation that were wonderfully artistic and effective. At times a felicity of illustration would arrest your attention, and a grand outburst of high and ennobling eloquence would thrill you with the mos pleasureable emotion. The taste was exceedingly fine, and from beginning to end the workings of a highly cultured, refined, graceful and elegant mind was manifest. There were passages delivered with high dramatic art that would have electrified any audience on earth. If that speech had been delivered before an Athenian audience in the days of Pericles, or in Rome when Cicero thundered forth his bruning and sonorous eloquence, or in Westminster Hall, with Burke, and Fox and Sheridan among his auditors, he would have received their loudest acclaims, and his fame would have gone down the ages as one o those rarely gifted men who knew well how to use his native speech, and to play with the touch of a master on that grand instrument, the human heart. We feel co fident that no man of taste, culture and intelligence who heard Mr. Davis will charge us with undue enthusiasm or excessive laudation. It was unquestionably the matured production of an exceedingly gifted mind and produced the happiest effect upon a large and highly interested audience-

And now, with this general statement of our impressions, how shall we attempt to reproduce even a meagre abstract of so able and imposing an effort? We could refer at length, if opportunity allowed, to the scheme of his argument, but time and space would fail us. We could tell something of his reference to Tilden and Vance-to the kind of peace Radicalism had brought usto the terrible cumulative, powerful arraignment of the usurper Grant-to the noble conduct of the Northern Democratsto the many cogent and convincing arguments to show that upon the success of the Democratic party depend the preservation and purification of our government-to the Belknaps, Blaines, Schenks, et id omne genus, who have cursed and debased our land to the Christian Statesman and Puritan Statesman, those genuine American productions-to the amusing and very humorous references to Blue Jeans Williams and the rich bill of expenses the exhumed-to his splendid description of liberty-to his scathing, incisive, vigorous, eloquent arraignment of the Judiciary of North Carolina—to the fine and glowing eulogy he pronounced on Judge Brooks-to the invasion of civil liberty and the rights of the people as seen in Louisiana, Arkansas and North Carolina-to the awful days of the Kirk war-to the necessity of securing a Demoeratic victory that the supremacy of the white race may be maintained—to the Jones county outrage—to his magnificent peroration, in which passion and imagination swept the audience and led them captive at the will of the magician-to the exquisitely opposite illustrations, now quaint and humerous and then delicate and pathetic, drawn with admirable art from history and poetry and story and the sacred truth-to these and other points we might refer, but it would be in vain. How can words, empty words, reproduce the glowing eloquence and entrancing power of the human voice, when that voice is one while soft as Apollo's lute or resonant as the blast of a bugle, under the influence of deep passion? How can the pen convey to others the sweet melody of harp or viol, or how can human language bring back a torgotten strain, or convey an exact impression that is made by the tongue of fire when burdened with a majestic eloquence? But our sheet is ended, our time is up. We can only thank the gifted orator for his nasterly effort.

each case. The Grand Jury were summoned into Court about 4 P. M., when His Honor con. gratulated them upon the marked improvement, as evidenced by the docket, in the peace and quiet of the community, especially noticeable at the present time as being on the eve of an important election, and expressed the hope that such a state of things would continue to exist. Made some suggestions and animadversions upon the duties of magistrates and peace officers in preserving the peace and good order and improving the morals of the community. Spoke of the houses of ill-fame as being a fruitful source of crime and disorder, and adverted to the duties of city officials, magistrates, peace officers and grand furies with reference to this class of the community. He also alluded to idleness as being another source of much evil, and argued that the law in regard to vagrants magistrates and city officials. The jury were then discharged. The remainder of the afternoon session was devoted to hearing motions, &c., and the Court then adjourned for the term:
