FLORIDA FOR HAYES.

Although the injunction of secrecy has not yet been removed, it seems to be understood at Washington that the Electoral Tribunal has decided that Hayes and Wheeler are entitled to the four electoral votes of Florida.

It is scarcely necessary to say that this result is a disappointment, not only to the Democrats, but to a very large number of honest Republicans, who have long since reached the conclusion that by every principle of moral right Tilden and Hendricks should have received the electoral vote of Florida.

But we would advise both those who approve and those who disaptience for the final result. The decision who is to be our next Presi--dent has not yet been reached, nor will it be until the work of the Electoral Tribunal is concluded. There are many legal questions yet to come before that body, and not until the very last one is settled will the Presidential election be determined. Then, and then alone, shall we know who has won the coveted prize.

The same necessity for good temper, good faith and patient waiting in which the electoral compromise plan was founded still exists, and will continue to exist through the varying scenes of the struggle, and until the final and decisive point is reached in the declaration of the result according to the original terms of the law.

It will be observed from our telegrams that it is claimed in Washington that the conclusion in the Florida case was reached by two of the Republican members of the Commission on grounds fatal to the final success of Haves.

The Electoral Tribunal-The Diversity of Opinion-Alternate Hopes and Fears.

Tho feeling among politicians is more quiet since the ruling of the Commission has become better understood, but among the Democrats there is a considerable number who think the chance for the success of Tilden in the Presidential race is very slim, and there is a very general dread that the tribunal may yet continue its former ruling so as to practically exclude from consideration much of the evidence the Democrats submitted in joint convention through the President of the Senate. Morton and Garfield look more cheerful than they have for a week. Thurman says the Democrats have gained a great victory in the preliminary skirmish. Jencks (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, considers the orders not unfavorable. Terry, of Virginia, says eight can't beat seven. Foster (Republican), of Ohio, says God and good luck are with Hayes. Rusk (Republican), of Wisconsin, says it's all right. Ben. Hill deprecated the apparent division by party. Senator Dennis (Democrat) of Missouri, gives up the case. Chief Justice Waite says the question decided is merely preliminary, divesting the case of much matter unnecessary to be considered, and it is a victory for neither party. Senator Wallace (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, does not think Tilden's chance jeopardized, though the decision is somewhat unfavorable. Walker, of Virginia, thinks Tilden's chance as good as ever.

[Special to Richmond Whig.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. The prospects of an upright and impartial decision by the Commission are far from being good. Few Democrats now expect the vote of Florida to be counted for Tilden. Messrs. Edmunds, Miller, Garfield and Hoar no longer take any pains to conceal; even in public, their partisanship. From Strong and Frelinghuysen nothing is now hoped. The only

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. The counsel for the Democratic party in the Florida case hesitated about making the point as to the ineligibility of Humphreys, because on the facts it was so much weaker than three or four other cases of the same kind they have in reserve; but they did make it in deference to some leading men of the party, and fully and ably argued it.

Mr. Merrick is confident that on this subject, as it progresses, whether we succeed or not before we get there, Oregon presents an impregnanable barrier.

The argument on the Florida case has been made in anticipation and with a view to all the cases, and the object of counsel has been to place the Commission in such a position that, though they might decide against us in the pending case, they would be committed upon some ques tion which would secure us a favor able decision in cases hereafter to

If they decide against us in the Florida case, it must be on the technical ground of the jurisdiction of the Returning Board, and such a decision must inevitably throw out Louisiana. If they decide against us on the case of Humphreys, the question has been so made that they must decide in our favor in the case of Watts in Oregon.

The counsel are not apprehensive at all about the election of Tilden. They only fear for Hendricks, and are of course distressed at the partisanship of the Commission, but believe that this is only apparent.

The arguments on the merits were made to-day by Judge Hoadley, of prove of this decision to wait in pa- Ohio, and Green, of New Jersey, for the Democrats, and by Evarts, of New York, and Shellabarger, of Ohio, for the Radicals, and was closed by R. T. Merrick for the Democrats.

OPERA HOUSE.

The Concert.

Visitors to the Opera House last evening enjoyed a rare musical treat, and this fact had evidently been anticipated, judging by the large number present.

The concert was certainly delightful, and reflected the highest credit on all participating.

It would indeed require a much more thorough knowledge of music than we possess to discriminate, especially where all was so charming; and we can but add our acknowledgments to those of the large audience who reluctantly departed last evening enraptured.

There has been such a dearth of amusements at the Opera House this season, now nearly passed, that we must have appreciated any effort on the part of amateurs, but in furnishing such a truly artistic entertainment as characterized the performance last night we not only feel a grateful appreciation, but would desire to express our highest admiration at the musical skill exhibited, which is rarely excelled by the most experienced professionals.

We congratulate the recipients of the benefit on their flattering success.

Incendiary Fire.

The residence and store adjoining, the property of Mr. C. Jackson, situated on the corner of Third and Wooster streets, were destroyed by fire yesterday morning, between 4 and 5 o'clock, the conflagration being no doubt the work of an incendiary. A colored man by the name of James Strudwick, living in the neighborhood, discovered the flames and awoke the family in time to save the furniture and most of the stock, though some of it was in a damaged condi-

Mr. Jackson's loss is estimated at about $1,200, upon which there was an insurance of $700 in a company represented by

Messrs. Taylor & Giles. We understand that several attempts have heretofore been made to set fire to the building, on the last occasion, which was oaly a few weeks ago, a box of matches and bundle of charred lightwood being found under the store, and immediately beneath a large kerosene oil can which stood in one corner of the building. After this last attempt Mr. Jackson dispensed with the can and stopped selling the oil, but the floor had become thoroughly saturated with the inflammable substance in that particular part of the store. The fire of yesterday morning, from all appearances, originated in the same portion of the building. We learn that Third street, in that section of the city, is in such a condition that the engines could not get near enough to be of service, while the facilities for obtaining water are also sadly deficient.

A Deserter Comes to Grief. A deserter from the United States army was brought down on the train from Robeson county, yesterday, and sent to the garrison at Fort Johnson on the steamer J. S. Underhill. The man, whose name we did not ascertain, is a native of Robeson, who. it appears, enlisted some time during the year 1871, while troops were in that county operating against the outlaws. In three weeks after enlisting the newly made soldier deserted. Several times since then he has been arrested for being concerned in some difficulties and lodged in fail. About three weeks ago he again got into trouble and was consigned to his old quarters, soon after which Sheriff McMillan telegraphed to United States Deputy Marshal Neff that he had a deserter in his custody, and desiring information as to what disposition to make of him. The Sheriff was advised to communicate direct with Col. Pennington, in command at Fort Johnson, Smithville, which he did, and received instructions to send him to that post.
