COLUMBIA, February 17. The Hampton taxes are still being paid in rapidly. All classes and colors of people seem to be eager, to contribute to the support of the honest goready been received at the Executive office. Charleston, of course, leads off with her $25,000 payment. Next to her comes Newberry. The colored people are responding as freely in many sections as the whites. In Barnwell county nine hundred colored people have paid their taxes to the Hampton Government. Other counties are doing nearly as well. The collector of Aiken county received the other day a note from the President of the Graniteville Manufacturing Company inviting him to come to Graniteville and receive the company's taxes. To-day the company's check for $1,000 was received by Governor Hampton. Judge Mackey says that he has it from good authority that Chamberlain's collections in the entire State do not amount to much over $950.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. The Republicans feel that they have a certainty of success before them, and don't care what course their opponents may take. Morton says the decisions of the Commission conform strictly to the Constitution, and he deplores the partisan votes of the Democratic commissioners. Ferry, too, regrets the perverse party votes of the Democrats, and calls attention to the fact that in no instance did they vote with the Republicans, but that Bradley did vote with the Democrats upon an important question of evidence. This kind of talk provokes the Democrats, very few of whom are willing to admit its truth, or can see any joke in it.

"The impudent remarks of these fellows are almost as annoying as the decision of their Tribunal," Senator Bayard says.

The electoral bill was framed with honest intentions, but its object was defeated by the appointment of two bitter partisans, Garfield and Morton. Deplorable as is the result, he thinks it should be acquiesced in.

Senator Whyte, who opposed but voted for the bill, says it was a compact, and, for one, he is in favor of making the best of a bad bargain.

The Democrats who voted against Lamar's motion to postpone the joint convention until Monday were Savage, Southard and Walling, of Ohio; Gordon, of Kansas; Potter, of Michigan; Haymond, of Indiana; Tarbox, of Massachusetts; Wells, of Missouri, and Whitehouse, of New York.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. Senator Bayard made an address

full of feeling and eloquence. Senator Kernan made a patriotic and sensible speech. Messrs. Hill, Singleton, John Young Brown and others spoke advising the most rigid adherence to law. Messrs. Hurd,

The bill to incorporate the town of Walling, Southard, Jones of Kentucky, Lynde and Thompson spoke in disagreement with the resolution, afterward offered and adopted. But, strong as the excitement was, not a man in the caucus advocated irregular or unlawful proceedings or fili-bustering. Several of the speakers thought it desirable to use all legal and constitutional means to delay the count with a view to a new election. but the suggestion was not warmly received. Finally Mr. Reagan, of Texas, brought out the following re-

ecution of the act of Congress creating the Electoral Commission, whose decisions shall be received and acted upon in accordance with the provisions of the said law.

This was accompanied with strong protest against the action of the Commission in the Louisiana case. This resolution was adopted by a very strong majority, and was voted for by almost all the Southern members. Extended conversation with members after the adjournment of the caucus shows that it is almost, if not quite unanimously, acquiesced in. The caucus broke up in excellent spirits and with general good feeling. It was resolved that five members be appointed to draw up a protest concerning the action of the Commission, to be sent to the country. It is understood that in this the circumstances of the election in Florida and Louisians will be briefly and intelligibly presented, so that the whole country may understand them.

"The Law of Retailation."

On Sunday morning Rev. Dr. Wilson disgussed the law of retaliation, and other points suggested by the latter portion of the fifth chapter of Matthew, with singular power, clearness and pointedness. It was a masterly discourse, very thoughful, very lucid, very cogent, very impressive. It was the most practical sermon we have heard in years, and we regret that every man and woman in Wilmington did not hear it. His discussion of the law of retaliation was from the Christian stand-point, and was as scriptural as felicitous and forceful. It is true there were some hard sayings, but they were true sayings. But in this he was faithful to the teachings of the Master, and elaborated, explained and enforced some of those sublime and exalted teachings that seem to the natural eye and natural understanding so perplexing and so impossible.

The law of retaliation lies at the very foundation of civil society, but it is not placed in the hands of the private individual for vindication and enforcement. It is the natural feeling of the human heart to retaliate when assalled, and to return injury or injury. The hardest lesson to learn in forgiveness. Neither Plate nor Socrates neither Aristotle nor Cicero ever conceived of any ideal manhood that was invested with the virtues and graces with which the true hero of Christianity stands clothed as he is sketched by the awful pencil of the Master of life and death. The standard of excellence, the pattern of perfection, at once complete and symmetrical, which Christ sets up, is far above any imaginings of the wisest philosophy, or any of the conceptions of the most adventurous poet.

The Master forbids all private retaliation and revenge. He teaches that murder is but the ripened fruit of sinful anger-that charity to all men is absolutely right-that forgiveness of injuries is a noble Christian virtue-that we should exercise a disposition to oblige others whenever it is possible to do so-that it is manlike to love our friends, but it is godlike to love our enemies.

These are not so much the points preexcited by it.

Forged Recommendations. Persons who are under the necessity, as nearly every family must be at times, of employing servants of whose experience, capacity and good qualities generally they have no personal knowledge, should be very careful as to what sort of recommendations or certificates of character are presented for their consideration, satisfying themselves particularly as to the genuineness of the article, even if they have to go to the trouble of submitting it to the impartial consideration (?) of a returning board or a grand high commission. Instances are no doubt frequently occurring which go to prove the propriety of proper judgment and discretion in this matter, one of which has just come to our knowledge. It seems that a colored woman who had been employed in a family as cook took it into her head to leave very unceremoniously, thus putting her employers to considerable trouble and inconvenience. Shortly afterwards the woman called upon or sent to the lady of the house for a recommendation. The lady, in the kindness of her heart, wrote her one, giving her a pretty good general character, but candidly stating as the principal fault she found with her the fact that she had left her employ without giving her proper notice of her intentions Not satisfied with this certificate, the woman got some one to rewrite it, leaving out the objectionable features, and making it could have conscientiously written it, on the strength of which she succeeded in getting an excellent place. A gentleman friend of both families, who saw the cer-proached her on the subject, when the fact of the forgery was brought to light. A Female Pickpecket. Martha Williams, the colored woman who was arrested a few days ago on the charge of stealing a pocket-book from Charles Herring, but was released because the prosecuting witness, who is an employe on one of the railroads, failed to make his appearance before the Court, was again arrested vesterday on the charge of stealing another pocket-book, with its contents, from one Ramas Thomas, colored, on Friday night last. It appears that Thomas had the pocket book in a pocket in the back part of his pants, and the accused, having volunteered to fasten one of his suspenders, took the occasion to abstract the pocketbook while doing so. The woman was lodged in the guard house to await a heartificate, being surprised that the lady should have given the woman such a strong recommendation after what had occurred, ap-tutional pickpocket. The Rey. Dr. Charles F. Deems, formerly of the North Carolina Conference and at one time pastor of the Front Street Methodist Church of this city, but now of the "Church of the Strangers," in New York city, arrived here last evening on the 7 o'clock train, several of his friends meeting him at the depot. The Doctor will remain here two days only, leaving on Wedin the meantime he will be found at the Raid Upon Revenue Viciators-Es- Firemen's Celebration. cape of the Prisoners, &c.

Two violators of the revenue laws, named McCullough and Ross, purporting to hail from Guilford county, in this State, were overhauled about seven miles from Bennettsville, S. C., on Wednesday last, as we earn from parties who arrived in this city yesterday, and their wagons, horses and about thirty boxes of tobacco captured. The boxes, we learn, had no stamps upon them at all, the excuse being given that they had been put on with paste and the rats had gnawed them off. After marching for some distance, at the request of the prisoners, they were allowed to step aside from the road, accompanied by the colored guard, and just here the fun came in; for, no sooner had the two men gained the cover of the woods than a bargain was struck with the guard, who were bribed to the tune of five dollars each, when the prisoners fled for parts unknown, leaving the tobacco, wagons, horses, clothing and other effects in the hands of the capturing

Sudden Beath. A colored man by the named of Henry Johnson, residing in that part of the city known as Brooklyn, dropped on the streets Sunday morning and died soon after being conveyed to his residence. He was apparently in his usual health on Saturday night and early Sunday morning, and at the time he was attacked with the disease which so soon terminated in his death he was on his way home from Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church, where he had been in attendance upon the services. Deceased was about 30 years of age, and had been subject to fits of apoplexy. Corone: Hewlett was notified and held an inquest over the body, the jury returning a verdict that deceased came to his death from natural causes. The remains were followed to Pine Forest Cemetery by the Good Samaritans of which order he was a member.

Another Sudden Death. William Price, a well-known colored drayman, aged about 51 years, residing on the corner of Ninth and Red Cross streets, died suddenly on Sunday last. He went home Saturday night in his usual good health, but about 1 o'clock Sunday morning was attacked with apoplexy, falling off the bed. A physician was sent for, but the stricken mannever spoke from the time he was seized with the fell disease, breathing his last in a few hours afterwards. Coroner Hewlett held an inquest yesterday, the jury returning a verdict to the effect that deceased came to his death from natural Thieves broke into a potato bank at the plantation of Mr. J. F. Garrell, known as Sans Souci, just beyond the Northeastern suburbs of the city, on Sunday night, and succeeded in carrying off about thirty or forty bushels of potatoes. Judging from the tracks there must have been two or three men concerned in the robbery, who brought bags with them for the purpose of taking the potatoes away. They were tracked to the edge of the woods, but the trail could not be followed any further. Mr. Garrell has no clue to the perpetrators of Mayor's Court.

There were several cases before this Court yesterday morning, but the most of them were continued over. Among these were one for selling liquor on Sunday, one for gambling and one for disorderly conduct. much stronger generally than the lady John Piver, charged with disorderly conduct, was required to pay a fine of $25 and the costs.
