Chamberlain and His Purposes. WASHINGTON, March 11.

Information received here to day indicate that Mr. Chamberlain has about made up his mind to resign all pretensions to gubernatorial honors in South Carolina. It is stated by his | mington. influenced solely by a desire to benefit the country generally, and to remove, in so far as he can, all obstacles in the way of a favorable inauguration of President Hayes' Southern policy in South Carolina. If he can be induced to accept, it is understood that Mr. Chamberlain will be properly provided for elsewhere. Mr. Chamberlain will probably accept.

From Washington. [Special to N. Y. Herald.] WASHINGTON, March 10.

It has become known not only that the President does not like delegations who push the claims of favorite sons, and is apt to take a dislike to. people who appear before him by a numerous and importunate band of next friends, but that he does not even believe that to confer offices is the noblest or the best use to which he could put his time. The coolness with which he received deputations of Maine, Pennsylvania, New York and other statesmen, solicitous to advise him about his Cabinet, dampened the ardor of delegations in pursuit of minor offices. Some occurrences at the White House have also produced an impression that to ask the President for an office or to file claims is perhaps the best way not to succeed, and one may now hear on the street that Mr. Blank, who wishes to be so and so, is understood not to be making any efforts himself, but de-pends upon a few friends, less than a delegation in any case, to keep his interests in mind.

There is a frightful rumor this evening that the President absolutely means to make no changes in any of the offices, high or low, for a month

Southern Republicans are pressing the Solicitor General of the Treasury, Samuel F. Phillips, for the vacant seat on the Supreme bench. The claims of Judge Settle, of North Carolina, were stated long ago.

Ex-Congressman Solomon L. Hoge, of South Carolina, is mentioned for Minister to the Hague.

The Secretary of the Navy issued instructions to-day rescinding the obnoxious and famous General Order No. 216, which placed officers on shore on waiting orders or furlough pay. This will not only enable these officers to receive their full pay henceforth, but will also give them the amount heretofore withheld.

Press Bispatches. WASHINGTON, March 11. Senator Morton will make an effort to have the case of Kellogg, claiming a seat as Senator from Louisiana, acted upon at this session of the Senate, and the impression prevails that a favorable report in his case will be made by a majority of the committee on privileges and elections on Tuesday next. In the Pinchback case Messrs. Christiancy, Edmunds, Morrill, of Vermont, and Paddock, who are now members of the Senate, voted with the Democrats against his admission. Messrs. Booth and Dawes, who would also have voted against his admission, were paired with Messrs. Ogles-by and Wright. In the Senate of Wednesday last on the motion to refer the credentials of Kellogg to the committee on Privileges and Elections, Messrs. Booth, Burnside, Christiancy, Conkling, Davis, of Illinois, Jones, of Nevada, and Morrill, of Vermont, voted with the Democrats in Tayor of the motion. In view of all the circumstances it is believed that Kellogg's case will not be disposed of before next winter. The same may be said of the South Carolina contest. There is good reason to believe that Senator Blaine has abandoned his opposition to the President's Southern policy. He dined on Saturday night with Secretary Evarts and Secretary Schurz. In the afternoon Mr. Blaine attended the reception at the White House, and was received with very marked cordiality by the President and Mrs. Hayes.

Siderable damage at Newbern. The Nut Shell says: The large car shed at the depot, about 125 feet long and some 30 feet wide, which cost $1,500, was lifted bodily from its foundation and hurled across the railroad track, being shattered into thousands of pieces; the false front of Mr. J. A. Suydam's store, on Hancock street, was torn from the building and tumbled into the ditch, being reduced to a heap of smashed up lumber, leaving a portion of the store without a particle of covering. One or two passenger coaches which were under the railroad shed at the time of its destruction were slightly injured. We learn the storm was equally severe throughout the county. A large barn only a few miles from Newbern was taken up by the wind and conveyed some distance from its former site leaving the corn, which had former site, leaving the corn, which had been stored in it, in a large heap on the ground. The barn was totally destroyed in its fall. Farm fences were scattered in disjointed piles in every direction, while large oaks and pines in the woods, which had withstood many previous storms, were uprooted and broken down.

Capture of a Cattle Thief.

Yesterday morning Mr. Woodcock, living about thirty-three miles above this city, discovered that some thief or thieves had visited his premises during Sunday night and carried off one of his fine steers, and upon going round the neighborhood to see if he could find any trace of the missing animal, he found that two other parties in the vicinity had also been relieved of a steer each during the same night. Mr. W. start, ed his son on the lookout for his own steer, who soon got on the trail of the animals and the thieves who had carried them off, and finally succeeded in tracking them to a carthouse on Fourth street, in the northern section of the city, where he found them. The thieves, who were three colored men, named Lowe McAllister, John Lamont and Elijah Lamont, upon seeing Mr. W. approaching darted off and tried to make their escape, which two of them succeeded in doing, but Mr. W., with the assistance of a colored man, was fortunate enough to overtake and capture one of them, Lowe McAllister, who was taken to be county jail and locked

The stolen cattle, which the thieves were in the act of selling when Mr. Woodcock came so suddenly and unexpectedly upon them, were fully identified.
