Attitude of President Hayes. WASHINGTON, March 17.

The week just ended has been one of great rush and hurry at the Executive Mansion, as it was thought necessary to prepare a great number of nominations to be sent to the Senate and to hear the claims and petitions of great numbers of persons who had come a long distance. It was also necessary to give attention to members of Congress of both branches. There will now be a much more systematic order of things at the Executive Mansion. The Cabinet meetings will be held regularly on Tuesdays and Fridays, unless some extraordinary emergency arises, and time will be taken for careful deliberation over subjects that have heretofore been alluded to. In the Cabinet next week, according to the present understanding, the President will refer to his Cabinet the important questions belonging to the condition of effairs in South Carolina and Louisiana. The President, who feels that the earliest attention should be given to these distressing issues, insists that they shall receive the very fullest investigation, so that when judgment is given by the general government it shall be final. The Attorney General has already before him, by regular reference, all papers bearing on the affairs of the Judge W. W. Gibbs, colored, of Arkansas, who was an Elector at large on the Hayes and Wheeler ticket, had an interview with the President to-night. Judge Gibbs said that the nomination of Mr. Key as postmaster-general had excited some alarm, but it fully offset by the nomination of Mr. Douglas. Judge Gibbs assured the President of the intention of the colored people to support him in his measures of reconciliation between the sections and the races. The President said he was sincere in his policy, and would adhere to it until satisfied of its impracticability. For eight years, the President said, the policy of force and the musket had been tried in the South, but had failed, and public sentiment demanded a change. It appears that the Administration still has some hopes that Messrs. Chamberlain and Packard will yield to the suggestions of those who claim to be the best friends of the Republican party of the country, and of the persons directly in question. The pressure is very strong to give them a few days' grace, and it is now possible that Federal support will not be withdrawn until after Friday's Cabinet. Meantime propositions honorable to all parties, and looking to the quiet enforcement of the policy of reconciliation, will be pressed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16. The Virginia Republicans, under the leadership of Mosby, had an interview with the President yesterday. Among the party were Mr. Charles Wise, son of Gov. Henry A. Wise, and Captain Chapman, of Mosby's battalion. In the course of the conversation Hayes stated that he had War Department to Gen. Joe Johnston, but that he had rescinded the ntention in deference to the feelings which the New York creditors of

of the North; but that he yet intended to act handsomely by him.

All those politicians whom I have conversed with say that Hayes is a very unsatisfactory person to interview; he is fidgety and nervous, and seems to lack the power to concentrate his attention. Grant, with all his faults, was a rarely good listener, and gave each applicant his undivided attention.

In a tour around town I ran against many partisan Democrats who are after the crumbs that the political Dives shakes from his table. Among them I noticed

GEN. DARNEY MAURY. who, it is said, is trying for a soft place in Richmond, the collector of the port, I believe.

Mr. Haves made one false move yesterday in nominating Fred. Douglas for the marshalship of the District. of Columbia. It was a veritable bombshell in the camp of the Conservatives and moderate Republicans. From time immemorable this office has been considered the very highest office that the President could confer upon a native of the city, and as the nature of the office was one requiring great business tact, a knowledge of law, and, above all, gentlemanly and social attributes, it required the highest combination of the scholar, the courtier and the gentleman to fill it. The marshal has all the delicate, complex affairs relative to the ceremonials, processions, &c., of the city government to settle. He is the CONFIDENTIAL ADVISER OF THE PRESI-DENT in regard to all municipal matters. He is to the White House what the Usher of the Golden Rod and Knight of the Bed-Chamber is to the palaces of Europe. He introduces all strangers, and in all receptions stands on the right hand of the President. So | your money and you takes your choice. it will be seen that though the dusky Fred would make a first-class waiter, have indicted Judge Cloud for an assault palace. --- New York markets: Money easy | and a very respectable waiter, yet the | on the clerk of the court. "Thar, now!" at 4@5 per cent; gold quiet at 1048@1048; Republicans think that their man and brother is lifted a little too high when he is elevated to the Marshalship, with perquisites and salary amounting to $12,000 per annum.

MR. MORRILL, in a speech in the Senate to-day, said that an extra session of Congress would be called on the first Monday in June. When it does meet look out for storms; it will probably be even more irreconcilable than the last, that is, if the Western members can make it so, for reports from the West indicate anything but a satisfactory feeling there. We are used to political afflictions. An eel, they say, can get used to being skinned, and the South has learned these Christian virtues of patience and re-CHASSEUR. signation.

Court Etiquette Abolished. [Philadelphia Times Special.]

WASHINGTON, March 14. Hayes broke through another one of the court rules of etiquette by

The President and Miss Cozzens. President Hayes said a good thing the other day to Miss Phæbe Cozzens, of St. Louis, who went to the White House to pay her respects to him. Miss Cozzens is a lady who has studied law, and who differs from nearly all the ladies who have invaded the professions usually practiced by men, in being decidedly attractive in personal appearance. In the course of her conversation Miss Cozzens playfully referred to General Grant's having talked of appointing her chief justice, and said that if he had done so, it would have been her duty to have administered the oath of office to him on Monday. Not Afraid of Work.

Commend us to the man who prefers any kind of honest toil, however humble, to a life of idleness or even that of doubtful propriety, involving principle or strict integrity in its accomplishment. Such a one, when he goes home to his wife and children at the close of his day's labor, has the proud consolation of knowing that he has done his duty by himself and family; and though his fare may be hard and plain, he and they are far happier in the knowledge that the little they have has been procured by honest endeavor than they would be with the richest of food and the gaudiest of raiment attained at the cost of self-respect or the violation of any moral principle, such as going in debt without any prospective ability, or, it may be, inclination, to liquidate the same at a future day. These reflections are suggested by an instance that has come to our knowledge only within the last day or two, in which a dry goods clerk of this city, who, having been thrown out of employment by no fault of his own, and being unable to secure another place, got him a saw and "horse" and went bravely to work sawing wood at twenty-five cents a load, rather than be idle or resort to any doubtful means of procuring the necessary subsistence for himself and family. Such an act is deserving of all praise and should be held up as an example worthy to be fol-

"Wilmington is a thriving city, deriving its chief trade from the exportation of rosin, turpentine, and yellow pine lumber. It contains a beautiful cemetery, in the centre of which stands Powers' statue, erected to the memory of the Confederate ran back five years, and recalled the genial host of the Purcell House, one Davis, a mise to make our party of eighteen all comfortable during the night seduced us, and well did he keep his word. Now the Colonel is a great wag, and few of his guests manage to escape from his hostelry without being numbered among the victims. He lays in wait for them with serious mien, and when his yarn is the toughest, you invariably credit him with telling the exact truth. Suspended over his office door the Colonel has what appears to be a huge battle axe, the product of a Confederate jackknife. It is made of wood, and weighs perhaps half a pound. Soon after 'the cruel war was over,' a very tender-hearted Massachusetts gentleman stopped with my worthy host, who gulled his susceptible guest with the most incredible of tales. The attention of the Yankee was soon drawn to the gigantic axe, and asking its meaning, was gravely informed by the Colonel that it was kept for the express purpose of 'killing niggers." The worthy disciple of Garrison looked awe-struck. Some weeks afterward the Colonel again met the gentleman, but no amount of suavity could induce him to tarry for the night at the Purcell House. He admitted the comfort of the beds, the excellence of the fare, but with indignation in every feature he in-formed the Colonel that nothing could persuade him to patronize a hotel where an axe

Mutiny of Seamen.

Six seamen belonging on the British Barque Maria, Capt. Stewart, which arrived here on the 7th inst. from Liverpool and cleared on the 15th for Trieste, Austria, conspired together before leaving port and refused to do any work, being to all intents and purposes in a state of mutiny. It was finally found necessary to apply to the city authorities for assistance, when Officer Geo. Sullivan of the police force was placed as a guard over them; but the men were so determined and resolute in their purpose of defiance to all constituted authority, and especially to that of Capt. Stewart and his officers, that he was obliged to put them in irons. The vessel is now lying at Smithville, with the men on board. Mayor's Court.

Overboard. A horse belonging to Mr. W. G. Fowler fell off the wharf at the Carolina Central depot yesterday morning, and a man who attempted to rescue the animal tumbled in after him, but found bottom and succeeded in cutting loose the fastenings attached to the horse, when he was coaxed for some considerable distance until a favorable point was reached for getting him on dry land.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases.

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phiegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, the patient has restand the lungs begin to heal.

To enable the Pulmonic Syrup to do this Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver. Schenck's Mandrake Pills act en the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver is seon relieved.

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative; the alkall of which it is composed mixes with the food and prevents souring. It assists the digestion by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition, so that the food and Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood; then the lungs heal, and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold.

All who wish to consult Dr. Schenck, either personally or by letter, can do so at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, every Monday.

Schenck's medicines are sold by all druggists hroughout the country.
