WELCOME TO HAMPTON.

Monster Meeting in Columbia of the Citizens of the Whole State. [Special dispatch to the News and Courier.] COLUMBIA, April 3.

At a meeting of the citizens of Columbia, held to-day, it was deter-mined to give Gov. Hampton a public reception on his arrival here from Washington. Committees have been appointed to perfect all necessary arrangements. A special train and committee of twenty-five will meet ciety, was held at the Yarborough him at Charlotte, Friday, and escort | House last evening. Plans for the him to Columbia, arriving here at 3 | coming State Fair were perfected, p. m. the same day. All civic and military societies in the State, together with citizens en masse, are earnestly invited to meet at Columbia on Friday to welcome him upon his arrival. All railroads will arrange excursion tickets for that purpose. The invitation is signed by W. B. Stanly, F. W. McMaster and J. P. Southern, executive committee. It is intended to make the occasion one of the greatest ever known.

The Louisiana Commission-What the President Says. Washington, April 3.

The Herald's special says: "The President has taken pains to impress his own views upon some of the Commissioners, and it appears that he has insisted with them on two points-first, that it is imperatively necessary that they shall do their work quickly; second, that in whatever they do they must take as the basis of their action the fact that the troops will be withdrawn and cannot be allowed to interfere in the local affairs of the State. The President is quoted to day as saying to new and beautiful quarter of the one of the commissioners that one town is thereby opened up to enterthing is certain; the troops must be prise and improvement. Also at the withdrawn from any interference or control over State property or the action of State authorities.' That, of course, settles the Louisiana ques-

Lumberton. [Raleigh Observer.]

The wealthiest man in the town, and perhaps in the county, began business in this county with little or no capital and with a limited education. He still adheres to the oldfashioned ways of economy, industry and prudence. I am told that a very prominent business man here came to this place just after the war as a "ditcher by trade." He now buys hundreds of bales of cotton a day in the streets of the town where he so lately pursued his humble vocation. There are two steam saw-mills here, the only ones in the county. Our business men should try to get the lumbermen of Maine to bring their mills here and use up the pines which have been ruined in the turpentine business, and which may soon be destroyed by fire. It is too late now to look mournfully back on the past and wish that there had never been a barrel of turpentine made in the State. It becomes us now to derive all the profit we can from our scarred and ruined pines.

The so-called Indians are here in large numbers. They have Indian names such as Lowry, Oxendine, Locklear, &c. In personal appearance they resemble the aborigines of our soil, but do not always have their noble qualities. The trees along the banks of Drowning creek are becoming green and beautiful, giving the town a gay appearance. Many years ago a canal was surveyed and marked out which was to connect the waters of Drowning creek with those of the Cape Fear, thirteen miles from here. Small steamers were to ply between this place and Wilmington. It was found that the canal would cost $200,000, and so the project was abandoned. As its name implies, it has always been famous on account of the number of persons who have found watery graves beneath its dark NIVLAC.

Moncure D. Conway tells the following story of an irate British judge: "The court room of Mr. Justice B. was the scene of rather an alarming outburst of feeling on the part of the judge. A case came before him pre of Reeds. The capital is all subscribed.

THE OPERA HOUSE. Bramatic Recitation by Miss Manly and Mr. Haywood. The lateness of the hour precludes such a notice as we would like to prepare of the delightful entertainment, given at the Opera House last evening, by Miss Manly and Mr. Haywood, of Raleigh. We are glad to be able to say, with entire candor and conscientiousness, that the recitation was artistic and enjoyable to a most unexpected degree. Miss Manly has unquestioned histrionic gifts. But nineteen years of age, and without any of the usual training that professional actresses have, she evinces considerable gifts, and proves herself a versatile and accomplished amateur. Her rendition of Poe's remarkable poem, the "Raven," was really admirable from beginning to end, and produced a marked impression upon the audience. She also performed the part of Belvidera, in "Venice Preserved," with decided spirit and effectiveness. Her Widow Bedott was a capital specimen of character delineation. Miss Manly has a fine presence, and a bright, attractive face, that will make her friends among refined and cul-

Mr. Haywood is but eighteen, and knows nothing of the careful training of practised elocutionists. He has talents that will enable him to secure some day the hearty commendation of severe theatrical critics. He needs age and discipline, but he has the stuff of an actor in him, as no one can doubt that saw him play the part of Jaffier or heard his capital recitation of that extremely difficult poem, Poe's "Bells." His delinea tion of Elder Sniffles was a success. We must mention that Miss Manly's rendering of the famous walking scene in Macbeth was impressive and artistic. Of course it would be unfair and unkind to compare her acting with Jauneschek or any great tragedienne, but she was, nevertheless, not without a right conception of the difficult scene, and manifested cleverness in presenting it. We write hurriedly, but not without cerity. These two young candidates for popular favor are our people-"native and to the manner born," and when they go before a North Carolina audience of ladies and gentlemen they have a right to expect both sympathy and applause. We again repeat that the entertainmen joyable, and we trust a large and appreciative audience will greet them this evening. They had a paying audience-exceptionally good, considering the very inclement night. At the request of a number of delighted auditors they have consented to repeat the

Meeting of the New River Canal Com

At a meeting of the Company, and citizens generally, held at the Court House in Wilmington, on the 3rd inst., Henry Nutt was called to the Chair, and N. Jacobi was requested to act as Secretary.

The Chairman explained the object of the meeting and invited explanations and discussion, when Major Young, being called upon, addressed the meeting at some length in a very satisfactory manner, submitting the following plan for the consideration of

ON THE FIRST PART,:

That when the New River Canal Company shall have constructed eight (8) miles of the New River, and nine (9) miles of the Duplin Branch Canal, and said canals and water-way shall be 35 feet wide and give an unbroken depth of five feet below tide-level from the North East River at the Sand Hills to Burton's old field, upon same River;

And that when said Canals shall be so ocated and constructed as to take off the overflow of the swamp and overflowed lands upon the North East River from Bannerman's Bridge to Burton's old field, the overflow from North Angola Bay, (Gum Swamp), so said lands can be reclaimed for Agricultural purposes by small plantation ditches;
And that when said Company shall secure to the citizens of Wilmington local rates of toll upon said trunk-line Canal and waterway as constructed from Wilmington to a point of equal distance between Wilmington and Norfolk: And when said Company shall mortgage to the citizens of Wilmington the seventeen miles of constructed Canal, and said Company's rights, franchises and privileges, and the half of all lands drained by said

ON THE SECOND PART: Then the citizens of Wilmington shall purchase from said Company $30,000 of said Company's ten year eight per cent.

first mortgage bonds at par.

When said canal shall be extended to New River, then the said citizens shall further purchase $20,000 of said bonds: And when said canal is further extended to Pamlico Sound, said citizens shall further purchase $10,000 of said bonds, ma-king in all $60,000, and no more. Provided, however, that when said canal shall be completed to New River said citizens shall release from mortgage the nine (9) miles of canal of the Duplin Branch

Whereupon, it was moved by P.
